1,000,000 May Strike

Poland Copies Hitler
Useful Newspaper Work

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE REAL and unpleasant news, as the week ends, is that one million men may go on strike in the steel and textile industries. The President will seek next week to prevent disastrous strike wars and keep business going, now that it has started.

Unfortunately, workers show a disposition to ignore the orders and advice of labor leaders, and the President can deal only with the leaders. He cannot come directly in contact with the mass of workers, although he can reach them with his voice and through printed appeals.

The strike is the big problem now. If, following more than four years without work, men decide that they won't take work when they can get it, or stay on a job when they have it, or let other men take it, restoration of prosperity will be difficult.

Watching the price of wheat go up—December wheat yesterday sold at one dollar and seven cents and a half a bushel—farmers wish the government had let them plant all the wheat they wanted to plant, instead of paying them a bonus to plant less.

Until government can control weather, wind, rain, and heat, as it controls farmers, it should be cautious about artificially and arbitrarily reducing crop wealth that the farms would produce, if left to themselves.

The Russian ambassador, whose instructions from Stalin are the same as those given to Russia's ambassador to Japan: "Listen to everything, observe everything, say as little as possible," believes in seeing for himself, and is about to make a trip of exploration and observation on the West Coast, visiting Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

He might take the recently appointed, highly intelligent young Japanese ambassador with him on that trip across the United States, and up and down along the Pacific Coast. After such a trip, the Russian ambassador would probably say to the Japanese ambassador:

"Whatever difficulties we may have with each other, it is evidently wise to let this American country alone."

An imitation of Hitler's Nazi party develops in Poland, where sympathy for Germany has been increasing in spite of large sums that France has contributed to build up an independent Polish nation. Poland's Nazi party, the "Grey Shirts" (every new dictatorial party, it seems, must have some kind of a shirt) includes in its program a war against Jews.

The Official Polish Gazette, deploring the rise of a new anti-Semitic party, warns Poland that "extermination of the Jews will not cure economic ills."

"Extermination," or rather driving out Poland's Jewish citizens, will go far toward destroying Polish business, a poor way to "cure economic ills," as the Spaniards discovered long ago. The Official Polish Gazette "hopes that Poland will outlive attacks upon Jews, as it has outlived other stupid and dangerous political creeds."

The Polish "Grey Shirts," held responsible for "anti-Jewish outbreaks all over Poland," have established a daily newspaper, The Sztafeta, that prints daily violent anti-Semitic propaganda. Students, and young girls especially, are wearers of the light grey shirts, which, in place of the Nazi Swastika, are decorated with an embroidered small sword.

President Roosevelt sent a telegram of congratulation to Arthur S. Draper, at the conclusion of his first year as editor of the Literary Digest. All working newspapermen are interested in Mr. Draper's success, because it confirms the theory that the best possible foundation for any branch of the publishing business is a thorough training in newspaper work.

Mr. Draper, before entering upon magazine editorship, had been a reporter, city editor, foreign correspondent, and had learned what things interest human beings and how to present them.

William Randolph Hearst is another "practical newspaperman" who proves that in building newspapers you learn to build other things. When he bought the Cosmopolitan Magazine, a well known magazine editor remarked:

"Mr. Hearst has done well with daily newspapers, but he will find himself out of his depth in the magazine field."

That magazine editor, who, by the way, was soon afterwards out of the magazine business, because he could not stay in it,

SIX FIREMEN GIVE BLOOD ON PLEA TO AMERICAN

Mother Begs for Newspaper Aid; Record Race to Hospital

The Boston Evening American, the Boston Fire Department and hospital authorities swung into action today in a race for the life of a two-year-old baby at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Six firemen from the nearby Bowdoin sq. fire station were despatched to the hospital. The blood of four was found to be suitable and they stood by.

The mther grew anxious during the wait for the donors, who were being called by the hospital, and appealed to the Boston Evening American.

The mother is Mrs. Minnie Speranza, 2 Pembroke street, Chelsea. The baby is her son, Joseph, now at Massachusetts General Hospital.

In five minutes a man was found who would give his blood and he was rushed to the hospital by taxicab with a Boston Evening American reporter.

The volunteer was David Baker, 365 Marlborough street, Back Bay.

In 23 minutes Baker was at the hospital with his offer of blood. Shortly afterward the firemen arrived.

Mrs. Speranza's child had a hemorrhage last night and was rushed to the hospital. There was another this morning.

KILLS SELF AT UNDERTAKER'S

The cellar of an undertaking establishment in Cambridge street, East Cambridge, was picked by Thomas W. Mullins, 63, retired, reputedly wealthy Cambridge man as the place to commit suicide by shooting today.

Howard Bates, an employe at the Joseph J. Kelly and Sons funeral parlors, 430 Cambridge street, East Cambridge, found his body, a bullet hole through the head and a .38-caliber revolver nearby. Medical Examiner Dr. David C. Dow, of Cambridge, said death was due to suicide.

Mullins, who made his home at 104 Ellery street, was a retired post-office clerk and Cambridge bail commissioner.

He was to have appeared in Middlesex Probate court next Tuesday to answer a separate support suit brought by his wife, Mrs. Helen G. Mullins, now living in Providence, R. I.

Hounds Trailing Killer in Texas

Maxwell, Tex., June 2 (AP)—A gunman who shot and killed Miss Nora Mueck, about 50, acting postmaster, and fatally wounded William Wedegge, 40, a roomer in her home, was sought today by Texas offcers using bloodhounds to trail the assailant.

The victims were seated at the supper table when the gunman stepped to the window and fired several times. Miss Mueck was killed instantly.

Worcester, June 2—Still in the role of an "old grad" on holiday, President Roosevelt snatched a few extra hours of sleep here today before making his 26-mile auto trip for the second day of activities at Groton School.

The smiling First Lady of the Land, however, emerged early from the Presidential train in the Garden street railroad yards. She was met by 100 members of the Worcester Women's Democratic Club, in a surprise visit.

The President remained in his special car during the visit but later emerged to greet two old friends of his Harvard days—George Sumner Barton of Boylston and Fred A. Nelson of Burncoat street, this city.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the Presidential party headed over the hilly stretch to Groton. A blazing sun beat down on the cavalcade as it moved on. President Roosevelt sat in his long, open touring car with Mrs. Roosevelt and John, the son he came to see graduated from the school he was graduated from 34 years ago.

PAUSES IN BOYLSTON

Once he gazed at the sun. Then he turned away to acknowledge the cheers that opened his second day of reunion with old schoolmates. He ordered his driver to make a brief stop at the Barton home in Boylston, which is along the route.

Before the start, Mrs. Roosevelt heartily thanked Mrs. Margaret X O'Brien, president of the women's club that called on her; Mrs. John C. Mahoney, wife of Mayor Mahoney, and Mrs. John F. J. Herbert, widow of Colonel Herbert, World War hero and one-time political leader. They had presented her flowers.

All the women in the delegation were introduced by name and Mrs. Roosevelt greeted each with a smile. A short time later the

IL DUCE TALKS OF WAR PLANS

By Associated Press.

Rome, June 2—Premier Mussolini told 10,000 war volunteers today that Italy will fight her next war for herself alone and not on behalf of any other nations pretending to be her allies.

"Italy's volunteers, if war is necessary, will shed their blood only for Italy," declared Il Duce. "Experience has shown them that it does not pay to help by land and sea the people who pretend to be our allies."

Mussolini was interpreted as referring to France and her World War ally, Serbia, now part of Yugoslavia. France, he has said, did not give Italy the colonial territory promised in the London treaty of 1915, following which Italy entered the war.

CHIEF SIGHT TEXTILE PEACE

Labor Leaders Showing Readiness to Aid in Efforts

By Associated Press

Washington, June 2—NRA hoped today that only a few more hours of argument over details stood in the way of peace in the cotton textile industry.

With a threatened strike of 300,000 workers in North and South only two days away, prospects of a settlement were declared good despite a last-minute hitch. The settlement may be announced today, some observers thought.

A peace conference broke up last night, after discussion of a proposal by Hugh S. Johnson, details of which were not disclosed. A report that Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers, had agreed in general to the proposal, was followed by a further report that a complete settlement had been reached.

This, however, was spiked by word from George A. Sloan, head of the Cotton Textile Institute, that no pact had as yet been approved. It was believed that details remained to be discussed finally.

A principal point at issue is an NRA order permitting a 25 per cent cut in production during the summer slack season. Union leaders, declaring this mean a proportionate cut in pay, called the strike. Sloan countered with a charge that an attempt was being made to overthrow the cotton code.

'Let Father's Killer Die!' Begs N. H. Girl

Concord, N. H., June 2—Between the tearful plea of a gray-haired mother and the stern "eye for an eye" demand of a murder victim's daughter, stood the life of Sydney Thorp of Biddeford, Me., today.

Young Thorp, a former Lynn man, convicted slayer of Joseph Trudeau, Portsmouth baker, will either hang or go to prison for life when the decision is made. It must be before June 15, the date set for execution.

Miss Helena Trudeau, pretty 23-year-old daughter of the slain man, demanded "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" when she called on Governor John G. Winant.

Landlord Loses Speakeasy Rent

Springfield, June 2—A landlord cannot collect rent through legal process when he knowingly leases his property for the illegal sale of liquor, according to Judge James E. Davis. The finding was made in a case in which the plaintiff sought to collect $430 due for rental of property here which, acording to evidence introduced, was conducted as a barricaded speakeasy for three years.

Girl Dying In Fall of 65 Feet

A 65-foot fall down an airshaft today probably will cost the life of Josephine Madden, 11, of 8 Chambers court, West End.

The child was visiting at the home of her uncle, Charles Toti, 16 North Russell street, West End. Playing on the roof of the house, she slipped and crashed through a skylight, falling down the airshaft. At the Massachusetts General hospital, doctors found she had sustained a fractured skull and multiple other injuries. Her name was placed on the danger list, with slight hope for recovery

SALEM FUGITIVE SEIZED IN PA.

Edward Birmingham, 18, of Beverly, whose escape from Salem jail, May 16, cost the life of another prisoner, was captured today in Ebensburg, Pa.

State police were informed by Ebensburg authorities that Birmingham had been caught. He will be held until the arrival of Essex county authorities to return him here.

Daniel J. O'Leary, 34, an inmate of the jail serving a short sentence was shot by a guard who tried to halt Birmingham, as the latter scaled a 14-foot wall to make his escape.

CARDINAL GETS POPE'S PRAISE

Vatican City, June 2—Pope Pius today sent a long personal letter to Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, Congratulating him on the forthcoming celebrations of the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination June 8, 1884.

His Holiness wrote the Cardinal that he was particularly glad the whole Archdiocese was preparing to celebrate the event.

Kidnap Plot by Boy of 12 Bared

New York, June 2 (INS)—One of the most extraordinary kidnaping plots on record, a plot concocted by a 12-year-old honor schoolboy came to light here today.

The intended victim of the plot was Mary Hart, 12, daughter of Charles M. Hart, polo player and architect. The boy, who devised the scheme, was apprehended by Department of Justice agents, but his name is being withheld.

Hart allegedly received a letter, directing him to place $500 in a vacant house.

AGREEMENT WITH U. S. HINTED

London in Contact With Roosevelt, Is Disclosure

London, June 2—Reliable sources said today that Great Britain apparently had reached an understanding with President Roosevelt on the war debt question and will make a token payment in June.

The only comment from official quarters, however, was:

"We are studying Mr. Roosevelt's message with much interest."

Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, arrived here today from Geneva, where he left the World Disarmament Conference yesterday. Sir John had opportunity to be fully informed of the content of Roosevelt's message.

It is known that the message occasioned the British government no surprise, and indicated that both Washington and London knew each other's views before Mr. Roosevelt's message was sent to Congress.

A formal communication regarding Great Britain's plans for the payment, June 15, probably will be sent to Washington next week.

Washington, June 2 (INS)—An all-around default on the foreign debt payments due the United States on June 15 appeared probable today in the wake of President Roosevelt's firm message to Congress stating that the American people expect these debts to be paid.

It is understood, however, that Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, has already been instructed by his government to advise the United States of Britain's unwillingness to make full payment and her unwillingness to make a token payment unless Mr. Roosevelt will again say that he does not consider such a procedure to constitute default within the meaning of the Johnson Act.

This act prohibits the floating of securities from any defaulting country in the American investment field.

Only Finland, one of the smallest of the debtors, whose total obligation amounts to $8,726,645, is expected to meet its current instalment of $166,538.

As for the others, Great Britain, who owes $4,636,000,000, and due to pay $85,670,000; France, who owes $3,860,000,000, and is due to pay $59,000,000; Italy, Belgium, Poland, et al., nothing is expected—unless Britain has a last-minute change of heart and decides to preserve an unsullied record of centuries of financial integrity by meeting the contracts.

FOOD SHORTAGE LOOMS AS DROUGHT PARCHES CORN BELT

MIDDLE WEST PRAYERS GO UNHEEDED

Weather Men Unable to See a Sign of Relief Close at Hand

By International News Srvice

Chicago, June 2—Prayers of sweltering millions in the parched Central States went unheeded today, with drouth and record-breaking heat spreading further destruction among farm crops of the Middle West.

Unless general rains fall over the sun-baked plains states within two weeks a food shortage is imminent, agricultural experts admitted. Dr. W. C. Coffey, Federal Farm Relief director for the Northwest, declared:

"Should the drouth remain unbroken for another two weeks practically every section of the country known as the food producing area will be wiped out. The situation is acute."

NO RELIEF IN SIGHT

Yet government weather experts could offer no immediate hope of relief. Temperatures that climbed well above the 100-degree mark yesterday to shatter records in many areas still held sway. There was still no promise of general rains, although conditions in the upper air strata were forecast as "unsettled."

A broiling sun that was blamed for 10 deaths here in 24 hours blazed down out of virtually cloudless skies. Crops that have thus far withstood the ravages of the long-continued drought were being parched in the fields.

Heavy local storms at St. Louis and at Urbana, Ill., brought relief to those sections. Rain, followed by hail, broke a 105-degree heat wave at Urbana.

CHICAGO SWELTERING

Only once before in Chicago's history was the official maximum temperature of 102.2 degrees exceeded. That was in July, 1901. The sweltering temperature caused 10 deaths. Eight others were reported dying and two met death by drowning.

In downstate Illinois temperatures of 107 degrees were reported.

Weather reports indicated that the extreme heat would continue for another 24 hours at least over most of the middle West.

Expert Awaiting "An Act of God"

By Universal Service

Washington, June 1—The government's foremost climate expert, Dr. Joseph B. Kincer, believes the present drought may perpetuate itself until a literal "act of God" occurs to bring relief.

Dr. Kincer finds no basis for comparing this drought with the three great droughts of the past, in 1895, 1901, and 1930. He said:

"Only the Southwest states were affected in 1895, only the North Central states in 1901. The 1930 drought affected eleven states but was intense only in the Ohio valley and middle Atlantic states. The present drought, a culmination of 12 to 14 years' abnormal rainfall, now covers three quarters of the United States."

Explaining the tendency of the drought to "breed on" and perpetuate itself, he said:

"The normal diffusion of rain over inland states is a progressive process. Water is evaporated from the Pacific or the Gulf of Mexico, carried over the mountains and dropped, let's say in the Southwest states. With the soil thoroughly saturated, evaporation again occurs and the rain clouds are blown further inland, again saturate the soil, and again are evaporated in successive process.

"With 2,000,000 square miles of soil now baked dry, the saturation and evaporation process is impossible. Hence no relief can come unless a major climatic disturbance occurs to deluge the ground and restore the interrupted process."

Dr. Kincer has prepared three tables showing how the drought intensified and spread simultaneously.

How Dry Spell Is Spreading

OIL FIRE LOSS IS $1,000,000

By Associated Press

Huntington Beach, Cal., June 2—Damage estimated at $1,000,000 by fire officials was caused in the old section of the Huntington Beach oil field early today when a gasoline blast ignited a string of oil derricks, endangering the lives of about 25 persons, most of whom had been accounted for.

Earlier reports that one death had been verified by police proved erroneous.

The blast occurred when a loading hose, carrying high test gasoline and leading to a truck, broke, spraying the volatile fuel into a fire box. Three men on the truck and one in the refinery plant of the O. C. Field Gasoline Company sprinted out of danger.

A man and woman and a small child, living in a cottage at the scene of the blaze, also escaped.

RAIN IN MAINE ENDS FIRES

By Associated Press

Augusta, Me., June 2—Showers in the southern part of the state, and heavily overcast skies in the northern sections where forest fires raged, today buoyed up the spirits of weary fighters who for four days have fought the destructive flames. More than 35,000 acres of woodland and an estimated total of 26 summer cottages and homes have been destroyed.

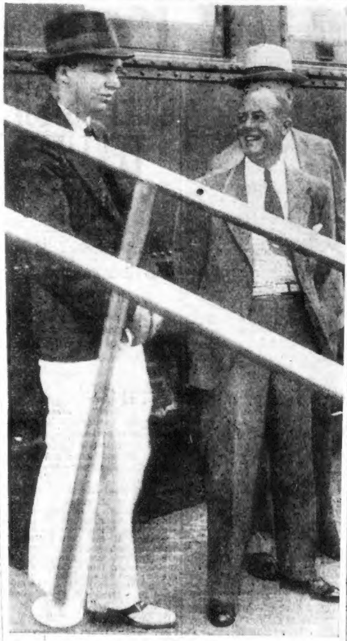
The fire in the Five Islands section of Georgetown Island, 18 miles from Bath, had nearly burned itself out. Promise of rain gave hope to 1200 men fighting three large fires that have roared uncontrolled through forests at Topsfield in Washington county, Eagle Lake in Aroostook country, and Township 2, range 8, in Penobscot country.

Taken After Chase As a Tipsy Driver

Halted after a chase of a half-mile by Motorcycl Patrolman Leon Wilson last night, Patrick Kaplapinski, 29, of Elm street was arrested on charges of driving under the influene of liquor and leaving the scene of an accident.

Kaplapinski, according to police, was the operator of the machine that struck th parked car, owned by Alfred Chauss, 243 Boylston street, and continued on without stopping.

Patrolman Wilson was passing at the time and chased the machine from Hospital square to Marion street bfore catching it. The owner of the car was in the seat with the drivr, police said.



JOHN ROOSEVELT

The most elusive person the press cameramen had to deal with yesterday was John Roosevelt, the graduating son of the President, who dodged every time he saw a camera pointed his way. He was caught unawares as he chatted with the secret service men guarding the President. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt following the exercises at Groton paused numerous times to allow photographers to get the best poses. They are shown as they sped back to Worcester. Along the 36 miles of country road they were forced to repeatedly acknowledge the cheers and good wishes of the populace. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

RIFT IN STEEL RANKS SEEN

By Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 2—Strife within the ranks of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, which has threatened to tie up the steel industry with a nation-wide strike, was increasingly apparent today.

While the Federal Government joined with capital and labor in seeking to stem the walkout, tentatively set for the middle of this month, Earl J. Forbeck went ahead with plans for a new convention, disregarding the leadership of M. F. Tighe.

Forbeck, spokesman for the self-styled "rank and file committee," announced a general convention will be called within a short time to formulate strike plans. Tighe last night referred to the June 10th deadline set by the union for formal recognition, as unauthorized The demand, under thereat of a strike? was decided upon at the Amalgamated's annual convention held in Pittsburgh

3 WAY CELEBRATION

Today the school is celebrating graduates day, and the President was to be one of about 500 former students revisiting the campus to celebrate at once the 50th anniversary of the school, the golden wedding anniversary of its founder and headmaster, Dr. Endicott Peabody, and his 77th birthday, which actually occurred on Wednesday.

Most of the returning alumni reached Groton in time for the prize day ceremonies and spent the night in the dormitory cubicles they occupied in their school days. The President, however, elected to spend the night aboard his private train in the Worcester railroad yards and started his motor procession back to this city promptly at 5 p. m. yesterday afternoon.

The big event on today's program will be the talk that the President is to deliver during the course of a dinner for the returned alumni in the evening. He prepared this in his private car before retiring last night.

DINNER WITH GRADUATES

Other events scheduled for the day include chapel services, baseball games between teams of former Groton stars and alumni water sports on the river. President Roosevelt also plans to eat luncheon with the graduates at noon as well as being a guest of Rev. Peabody for tea.

He will start back for Worcester almost as soon as he delivers his evening address—his only speech during the two days at his alma mater. The start for Worcester will be made about 10 p. m. or a little earlier and his special will pull out for Hyde Park about midnight.

He will rest in his home there on Sunday, starting back for Washington in time to reach the White House Monday morning, ready to plunge into the mass of work that demands his attention before he can go to Yale June 17 for an honorary degree

CHEERS THE PRESIDENT

If yesterday afternoon's drive from Groton to Worcester was a tour of triumph for the President, it was also the big chance for many New Englanders to satisfy their curiosity about the nation's leader. Young and old they lined the roads with the children waving flags and shouting:

"Where's the President?" and "Hurrah for Roosevelt," or even "Hello, Frank," while their elders gazed with sympathy and admiration on the man who has undertaken the gigantic task of recovery and still has a ready smile for everyone.

If the public was excluded from the Groton ceremonies, there was nothing aloof about the return trip. Just outside the main gate of the school the presidential car paused for almost 10 minutes while the President shook hands with admirers and Mrs. Roosevelt in a smart white hat and coat, signed autograph albums and greeted reporters as "the gentlemen who were not wanted."

They had their first chance to ask a few questions of the President's tall, slim, well-tanned youngest son. John ducked his head whenever he saw a camera lens pointed his way, but he took it good naturedly.

"I feel great after the operation," he said when questioned about the attack of appendicitis that kept him out of the Groton shell this spring.

"Going to Harvard in the fall?"

"I most certainly want to," came the quick answer, "but I sure wish I knew I could get in. You know there are those college board examinations."

ROOSEVELT TO AID HARMONY IN STATE

Harmony Plan of Ely to Be Given O. K. by President

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Worcester, June 2—President Roosevelt, having indicated a desire to co-operate in straightening out the gubernatorial situation, a harmony plan is scheduled to be drawn up next week by Governor Ely and other party leaders for submittal to the President in Washington.

That the plan will center around the candidacy of former Mayor Curley is indicated by the reports. The "Insiders" are saying that all factions of the Democracy will unite in urging the President to solve the problem through the tender of some government position acceptable to the ex-mayor.

EYES ON PRESIDENT

The likelihood of the President's acceptance of such a solution is regarded as by no means certain. However, in spite of the natural interest of Mr. Roosevelt in wishing to see Massachusetts retained in the Democratic column, there is feeling among those closest to the President that he will make no move until the pre-primary convention choice is made. The convention will be held here on June 14.

It is argued that the convention may nominate a man for governor who will be satisfactory in every way to the national administration.

Also, it is pointed out, the convention may decide to make no nomination contenting itself with the drawing up of a party platform upon which the candidates can run in the September primary. There is nothing in the pre-primary law which makes such a nomination mandatory, while there is sentiment in favor of defaulting.

POPULAR MAN NEEDED

One of the big arguments against nominations is the fact that but 10 per cent of the voters turned out to elect the delegates. Any candidate nominated by a body with so small a mandate, some of the strategists hold, would court the danger of a repudiation in the primary, unless the man selected is clearly popular with the rank and file of the party.

But in the event that the convention endorses a candidate for Governor, the man so nominated must within 10 days, file his acceptance with the secretary of state. During this interval, the President, it is figured, would be likely to step into the picture.

ENTHUSIASM CITED

Aside from the gubernatorial tangle, the visit of the President to Massachusetts is regarded of distinct benefit to the party here. Along the line between Worcester and Groton, inhabitants of the cities and towns turned out in force to welcome him. Observers detected no lessening of the enthusiasm which his presence here on former occasions evoked.

Health Leaders to Hear Tech Head

The address of welcome at the ninth annual conference of the New England Health Education Association at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology this morning will be made by Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the institute.

The conference brought together a large number of health experts, school officials and state authorities of public welfare.

Board Rules on Ross' Titles

New York, June 2 (INS)—Barney Ross, recent conqueror of Jimmy McLarnin, can defend only one title at a time, the New York Athletic Commission had ruled today.

Prof. Rogers' 'Wife Ideal' Has U.S. Job

Prof. Robert E. Rogers of the Technology English department, goes a step farther today in his philosophy of "marry the boss' daughter."

Now, according to the professor, the daughters should be forgotten and the aim of every young man seeking a bride should be a college girl, one, preferably with a government job.

For, Prof. Rogers explains, when the wife has a job with the government, sh ecan procure one for her husband, guaranteeing both of them an easy time for the rest of their lives.

"The government rarely discharges an employe,' 'said Prof. Rogers.

It would be necessary, however, for both of them to get on the payroll if they were to enjoy the quiet and easy life because, he said, the government doesn't pay one person enough for two to live on.

Professor Rogers' theory that the wife could probably get her husband a government job was based upon his claim that Washington is being run by "lady specialists," who have graduated from Smith, Vassar and other colleges for girls.

Not only must the bride be able to get the job for the hubby, but she must carry on her wifely duties at the same time, he declared.

The depression has a lot to do with picking a college-trained girl and forgetting the boss' daughter.

"A serious minded, studious girl four or five years older than himself should be the young man's choice," said Professor Rogers.

He issued his new idea in his annual address to the graduating class of the Institute at the University Club.

Fairbanks Peace Outlook Fading

Los Angeles, June 2 (AP)—Talk of a reconciliation between Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks faded today as the famous actress' lawyer, Loyd Wright, took steps to prosecute the divorce suit she filed last year. On Wright's application, Superior Judge Frank C. Collier signed an order for publication of summons of action. Ninety days must elapse before the case can be set for trial.

Wright presented an affidavit, signed by Miss Pickford, saying that Fairbanks is not in California, having left more than a year ago.

DEMOCRATS IN POWER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Leaders Plan to Rule Congress With Iron Hand

By International News Service

Washington, June 2—Dmocratic leaders of the House, armed with almost unprecedented authority, today planned to rule that body with an iron hand if necessary in their drive toward adjournment.

Having smashed a Rpublican filibuster by obtaining adoption of a special rule giving them the right to dictate the program, leaders prepared to forestall all anti-administration thrusts.

MINORITY POWERLESS

Although the small Republican minority was virtually powerless, a fight was planned on the "gag" rule. Republican leaders contended the oHuse had reverted to the "czardom" of Cannon days.

Speaker Rainey and Rep. Byrns of Tennessee, majority leader, insisted they invoke the special rule only to break up a Republican filibuster and prevent future threats.

The cause of the filibuster, which began Thursday, was uncertain. Rep. Snell of New York, the Republican leader, insisted it did not begin until Speaker Rainey refused to recognize a point of no quorum.

BLOCKING CHARGED

This explanation was scoffed at by both Rainey and Byrns, who said the filibuster had been in progress for hours.

Report that Republicans were seeking to kill off the Wagner bill, Housing bill and other administration measures were denied by leaders.

Opponents of the Democratic plan charged the special rule was sought partially to block the McLeod 100 per cent payoff bill, and other measures which bi-partisan groups were pressing.

ROOSEVELTS GIVE ROADSTER TO SON

True To Type
GILBERT SELDES

Here is a letter from a criminal. All I know about him is what he himself says; he worte to me because I wrote something about lynching and kidnaping, expressing my opinion that the lynchings in California had proved a failure, since kidnapings occurred within a few months in and near California. That is all I know, except that the letter is interesting:

Gilbert Seldes

"I'm what might be called a reformed crook. I served my apprenticeship in crime of various sorts, mostly of the strong arm sort. I also served my time in prison, but it was not prison that reformed me. My family, together with a desire for a little security, a desire to be able to plan on tomorrow, accomplished that.

• • •

"But my interest in those who break the law has never diminished and I have read reams of stuff that some man or other has written on the prevention of crime. Every time I read an article on this subject I can't help but feel that these men do not quite understand the criminal mind. True, there are a few men in this country who have spent their entire lives dealing with the law-breakers, but the very fact that they are on the other side of the fence seems to prove they aren't possessed of the mental quirks of those they write about.

"It has always seemed to me that the views of some one who had himself been a criminal would be of interest to those striving to prevent crime.

"However, I have never yet heard anyone bring out the point that I consider the most important. They argue both for and against capital punishment as a deterrent to possibie kidnapers, murderers, and others of a violent nature, but let me tell you that punishment hasn't a great deal to do with it. Of course there would probably be a great deal more crime committed if there was no prisons or death penalty, but those who are deterred by thoughts of these would never get very far anyway.

"The thought of punishment never influenced me and most of the men I knew in similar pursuits laughed at it. For the criminal is essentially a supreme egotist. Otherwise, he wouldn't be a criminal. He is quite sure that while some other burgler may be caught, he never will.

"As to the reason for more crimes being committed in the United States than in England, France, or elsewhere, the answer is simple. There are more egotists in America than anywhere else on the face of the globe.

"The second greatest cause is the fact that criminals aren't a thinking breed. They plan, scheme and connive, yes; but they don't think much. There is a difference, you know. Make them think. There is your greatest preventive of crime."

QUINTUPLETS TO BE SHOWN AT FAIR

Father Signs Contract; Infants Survive Colic Attack

By Universal Service

Corbeil, Ont., June 2—If all five of the four-day-old Dionne quintuplets survive, they will be exhibited at Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition and their 31-year-old father will become the richest farmer in northern Ontario.

This is the substance, it was learned, of a contract Dionne signed with the approval of Father Daniel Routhier, the local parish priest.

In addition to $250 a week during the time they are at the Fair, Dionne, according to the contract revealed here, is to receive 30 per cent of the receipts and $100 weekly, starting at once, during the time the infants must wait permission from medical authorities to make the long journey.

If the babies continue to gain and are able by late summer to make the long trip to Chicago, Dionne plans to pay off the $3000 mortgage on his farm and establish better living conditions for his wife and the quintuplets, as well as for the five other Dionne children, none of whom have yet started to school.

Meanwhile Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the kindly country doctor who has seen the quintuplets, under his care, live more than a hundred times as long as any other set of quintuplets in medical history, announced the infants have emerged from a serious group attack of colic and are again showing improvement.

He said he had been advised that 25 pounds of mother's milk, procured by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Chicago health commissioner, is en route here by train from Detroit and should arrive some time today.

Dawes Is Opposed to Exhibiting Babies

By Universal Service

Chicago, June 2—Rufus G. Dawes, president of the Century of Progress Exposition, put himself on record as opposing efforts of a concession owner to exhibit the quintuplets of Mr. and Mrs. Ovila Dionne here this summer. Dawes said:

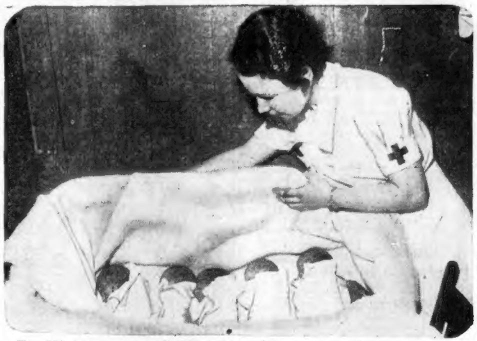
"I certainly would be opposed to allowing any one to bring those five babies to the fair for exhibition purposes until their lives are absolutely certain. Even then I can't say we would permit it."

Emmanuel Alumni Banquets Tonight

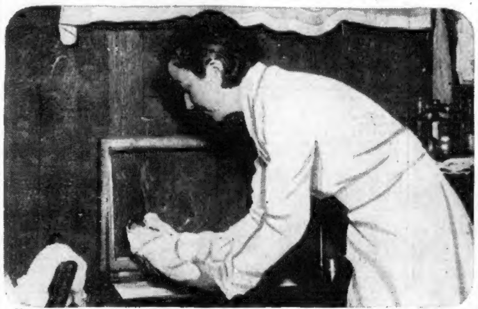
The annual banquet of Emmanuel College Alumni Association will be held tonight in the college gymnasium at 44 Fenway. Miss Kathleen Rogers, of Chatham, is toastmistress.

Miss Beatrice Eaton, of Dorchester, chairman of the committee, is assisted by the Misses Beatrice Hantz, Katherine Connor, Mary Butler and Margaret Scully. Others assisting are Genevieve McCrohan, Mary O'Shea, Estelle Donovan, Eileen O'Brien and Claire O'Neill.

Living Quintuplets Surprise Science



For 500 years, as far as medical history can show, no set of quintuplets have lived more than 50 minutes. The girls born to Mrs. Alzire Dionne in Callander, Ont., are living after five days. Nurse Mary Cloutier is shown with the tiny brood.



Nurse Yvonne Leroux, one of the two nurses aiding the Dionne family in efforts to keep the quintuplets alive, is shown placing one of the five girls in the almost obsolete hot water incubator which was unearthed in Chicago through the efforts of the Chicago Evening American and the New York Evening Journal. Miss Leroux was sent to the Dionne home on the Canadian frontier by the Canadian Red Cross.

GOW RESIGNS AS ENGINEER

Former Postmaster Charles R. Gow, appointed by President Roosevelt the Massachusetts state engineer for public works, has sent his resignation to Secretary Ickes, federal public works administrator, because of a ruling that federal officials must devote full time to their jobs.

"I couldn't do it because of my business," he said. "When I learned that the issue had been raised by the administrator, I sent in my resignation. I did not want the job in the first place and when pressure was brought on me to take it, I said quite frankly that I could not devote all my time to the work."

Science Eager To Study 'Thought' In Quintuplets

By Associated Press

Durham, N. C., June 2.—The cultured world may have its first chance to observe "five souls with a single thought," if the Dionne quintuplets prove to be "identical" children.

Identicals usually occur in pairs as twins. Recent scientific studies have revealed such persons as the nearest approach on earth to realization of the ideal, "two souls with a single thought." For their "soul" characteristics are as startlingly similar as their bodies, minds and habits.

The latest scientific study of "identical twins" is published today in Character and Personality, a scientific journal issued at Duke University. It reports on 13 pairs of identical twins observed by Helmut von Bracken of Amsterdam. The children ranged from six to 16 years.

These identicals were compared with 12 pairs of fraternal twins. It was found that the identicals spend more time together than the fraternals.

The identicals do not bore each other. They do not compete with each other. There is no tendency toward quarrels. Instead they try to avoid quarreling with each other, although they may bicker with other children, even of their own families.

When competitions were held between the twins, the identicals seemed to revolt at the possibility of differences in ability. On this point the report states:

"Fraternals like to put themselves forward and to diminish their partner, while identicals are fairer and even fall into the opposite extreme.

TWO MOTHERS RECALL 1900 GRADUATION

President's Wife Knits While Talking With Newsmen at Groton

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Groton, June 2—Most of the mothers gathered here for Groton School commencement are living in the thrilling present. Two Roosevelt wives and mothers are combining that thrilling present with memories of a commencement at the turn of the century.

One is the nation's First Lady, whose son, John, graduated yesterday and whose husband graduated 34 years ago. The other is Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, mother of the President and grandmother of the boy whose Groton days are just now over.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is beyond doubt the happiest and proudest mother in the entire gathering—with the possible exception of the grey-haired grandmother who is by her side.

GETS AUTO AS PRESENT

Today the President's wife told reporters of the roadster that John is getting for a graduation present. While she talked she knitted on a sweater for her husband.

"John is geting the same present his father and I gave Franklin, Jr., a year ago, a small roadster. Boys like a car of their own," she said.

"John's plans? Well, I don't think he has very definite ambitions yet. He's only 18, you know. He goes to Harvard next year, of course, and he plans to major in the same subjects his brother likes, history and government."

CRUISE IS PLANNED

Of the Summer plans for the young graduate, she said:

"His father is planning to take both the younger boys on his cruise to Hawaii when Congress adjourns."

All the while reporters kept eyeing the sweater that Mrs. Roosevelt was knitting. Finally the inevitable question and a gracious answer:

"No this isn't for a grandchild. It is to be a man's sweater."

Her next sentence revealed who was in her mind.

"My husband and I rarely take our vacations together," she said. "You see for a person of his occupation a cruise on the water affords the most complete change and relaxation. Unfortunately I am not a good sailor. But I shall go to Seattle to meet him when he comes back from Hawaii."

HEARS ADDRESS

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was rejoined by the President's mother for the 50th anniversary ceremonies today. Together they sat while the President addressed the alumni.

To the friends that the President's mother met, she talked of the Groton of today and of the Groton of yesterday.

Nothing has changed, she thought, not even in the types of graduating boys. They were tall, good-looking boys then. They are the same today. Young John, by the way, is 6 ft. 4 in.

O. O. McIntyre
DAY BY DAY

Los Angeles, June 2—Los Angeles stifles ennui with stunt parties. Hal Roach tossed one last night for Irvin Cobb. At the exclusive Bel-Air country club it offered a penal motif. As guests stepped from cars they were seized by roughneck guards, yanked inside, mugged and finger printed.

O. O. McIntyre

After being held awhile in a detention room, actually savoring of lysol, they were hurried into convict uniforms and marched lockstep into a bare diningroom containing rows of plank tables and hard benches. Food was brought by "trusties" on tin plates and coffee in tin cups.

The absence of knives, forks and spoons soon incited incipient mutiny with everybody pounding the table. The utensils were grudgingly brought but not before all saw Ed Hutton, whose ocean going yacht tugs at anchor in the harbor, tear chunks from his steak with his bare fingers. And sop gravy with bread chunks.

A rasping orchestra played "The Prisoner's Song" in sing-song or rather sing-sing fashion. Irving Thalberg, the young $350,000 a year executive, was threatened with the dungeon timidly asking for a second helping of ice cream. At 11, lights went out and everybody, rather bewildered, wandered away in the dark for something to eat.

Tonight another dinner at the California club offering an Hawaiian theme. Native guitars twanged island melodies and dusky hula girls, exploiting their pelvic school of torsion, swayed about the diners lassoing them with the bright coral tei Hawaiian singers—they are always singing good-bye but never go—chorused the farewell arias. Cecil De Mille arrived from the studio in his director's costume, a honey colored costume that was a honey. Indeed, he was a production. The affair was for the Ed Huttons who have been cruising in the South Seas and are off to Alaska. Will Hays was host. And what a host!

George McManus, dean of the comic strip, sat a chair from mine at the Hutton party. He came to Los Angeles from New York seven years ago for a two weeks' stay and has become a part of the local scene, a home owner adding a lusty cry to the chanson of eternal praise. He enjoys trips to New York at intervals, but goes as a visiting Elk. Incidentally, he is the only New Yorker I know who can tell you the precise technical reasons why the old Dead Man's Curve at 14th street was given that grewsome name. Many just think they know.

Today I saw Bob Williams' amazing dog Red-Rust, one of the most unusually trained in the world. It is a Manchurian sledge dog, suggesting size and coloring of a closely clipped chow. It has been taught completely to relax into a boneless lump and in such flexibility is as limp as a snake. Draped over an arm it suggests a red fox fur at only a few steps. Fixed in any grotesque position it remains until the master speaks. The owner spent one year, four hours daily, conveying the idea of relaxation. One morning it came like a flash.

Los Angeles, more than any city I know, harbors the most varied group of cults to poultice the spiritual bruises. A hundred and one religionists, from the yogi to the inhalationist, exhort from bungalows, tents and magnificent temples, each certain of having grasped the universal panacea and invoking it as casually as a drug from the pharmacopeia. Indeed, they have chronic "samplers" who go from one to another as materialists to the patent medicines.

Jimmy Swinnerton is in from the desert with a collection of paintings, touching western life at every tangent, he exhibited at a down-town hotel. Jimmy, now a picture of bronzed ruggedness, came out here to get his house in order for the last, long trail so many moons ago they are vague to the oldest inhabitant. He is sending me one of his cacti canvases that will occupy a wall space next to a Charlie Russell.

Chic Sale was out sprinkling his lawn late this afternoon. "Hi, Quinnie!" I called. "Well," he twanged in high nasal dropping the hose and hobbling, hand on hip, over in feigned rheumatic twinges, "If it ain't Elvira Hawkins' brother Roy, the beatenist gittar-picker in the whole durned holler."

'Girl Houdini' Makes Her Third Escape

HELEN ORZOLEK, HUNTED BY POLICE

Doctors Thought Medfield Could Hold Petter Bandit But She Vanishes in Night

Helen Orzolek, 19, this state's first convicted girl bandit, proved herself a "feminine Houdini" today by her third escape within six months.

The auburn-haired girl, sentenced nearly two years ago for petting party holdups in Springfield, escaped today from Medfield State Hospital. Last month and in January, she fled from officials at Sherborn Reformatory for Women.

After her re-capture last month, doctors decided on Medfield as the institution that could hold her. She had been found in a burned barn at Framingham.

Investigation of her room today revealed that she left in the early morning. Her disappearance was not discovered for hours, however.

Word was flashed to state and local police. It described the girl as five feet three inches tall, 130 pounds, medium complexion and clad in a blue and white dress and black shoes and stockings that belonged to other girl inmates at the hospital.

Hutton Pleads for Prince

By Universal Service

London, June 2—Franklin L. Hutton visited his daughter, the former Barbara Hutton, in her nursing home to intercede in behalf of her husband, Prince Alexis Mdivani.

Barbara's troubles, Hutton indicated, are those of a poor little rich girl who doesn't eat enough.

"I think the prince is a very fine chap, straight and square as they make them."

While in London, Hutton will seek to patch up any strain that has developed between the prince and princess. He disclosed that Barbara, in a temperamental outburst caused by her excessive dieting to keep slim, had moved from Claridges Hotel to the nursing home and had refused to see her husband.

Cambridge Explorer on Road to Recovery

Robinson Is Reported Out of Danger; Appendix to Be Removed Shortly

Panama, June 2—Doctors attending William Albert Robinson, Cambridge, Mass., writer and explorer, stricken by appendicitis while honeymooning with his wife, the former Florence Crane of Chicago, in the Galapagos Islands, said today that Robinson is out of danger and will recover.

The physicians revealed also that they have not removed his diseased appendix, and that naval officers who flew from the Canal Zone to the islands where Robinson and his bride were aboard the ketch Svaap, only made an incision to drain off the poison.

Dr. T. W. Earhart, in charge of the case, said the Cambridge explorer is suffering from acute appendicitis, peritonitis and a ruptured appendix. He said that Robinson's appendix will be removed as soon as he gains strength.

"We believe he will recover," Dr. Earhart informed Mrs. Robinson.

Frederick White, 58, of Andover, wealthy Boston business man, admitted in Salem probate court in divorce proceedings brought by his wife, Mrs. Emma J. White, that he paid visits to the apartment of his former stenographer, who is now his office manager.

White testified that he brings his office manager, Miss Frances Morgan, of Malden, home with her sister each night in his automobile and that he takes them to work in the morning "once in a while." The trial will be resumed Tuesday.

MILLEN-FABER JAIL GUARDS ARE GRILLED

By WIN BROOKS
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Dedham Courthouse, June 2—Eight state troopers, all members of the special guard over Abe Faber and the Millen brothers in Dedham jail, were summoned to the office of District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing today.

They were questioned separately at a session that Dewing said was in preparation for the state's rebuttal, due to begin Monday at the start of the eighth week of trial for the three.

One was Trooper Harold Searles, a classmate of Faber at Massachusetts Institute of Techology. Two others were Troopers Brown and Fitzgerald, who foiled an attempt to escape by Irving Millen several weeks ago. It was indicated today that some of the troopers may be rebuttal witnesses.

FABER NEAR BREAK

Meanwhile, at Dedham jail, Fabr seemed today to be cracking under the strain of trial.

The lethargy, which has characterized his every court appearance until yesterday, when he took the stand in his own defense, has been dissipated.

In its place are alternate fits of weeping and despondency. Fits which started when he was taken back to his cell in the "pit" of the jail after a period of cross-examination at the hands of District Attorney Dewing.

The grilling will be continued with renewed ferocity on his return to court Monday.

From the time he left the courthouse until he reached the jail he fought to restrain tears, his guards reported. When he reached the rotunda of the jail he could no longer restrain himself and burst into a fit of uncontrollable weeping.

Irving and Murton Millen gazed on his outburst with the same surly contempt that marked their reaction to his appearance on the witness stand. They said nothing, however, and as a refreshing change, Irving did not laugh.

In his cell, he flung himself on his cot and wept convulsively.

TRIAL END NEAR

Guards peered in the door and inquired as to the reason for his outburst. He refused to answer and continued to weep for several minutes. Suddenly he was asleep and remained, tossing fitfully, until 7 p. m.

Beyond Faber's coming appearance on the stand lies at least three days of rebuttal testimony. The evidence of these witnesses, by which the State will seek to disprove the three defendants are insane, that they did not know right from wrong last February 2, and that they did not realize the consequences of their acts, may drag the case out for the rest of the week.

It is expected, however, that the lengthy trial will come to a close next week and that the case will be in the hands of the jury before a week from today.

The Philippines think they want separation from the United States. They demand it, and this government seems inclined to give it to them, after having freed them from Spanish dominion, and, to some extent, from brutal ignorance and superstition. But there is one fly in the ointment of freedom.

Filipinos now enjoy the right to send products to the United States, without paying duty, cheap Filipino labor competing with labor in the United States. If the Filipinos decided to cut loose from the United States, they would have to pay duty, like anybody else, on goods shipped here.

At this point the Japanese consul-general at Manila, Atsushi Kimura, offers a suggestion. He thinks the Philippines would be able to arrange free trade with Japan. But "the Filipinos should reduce the cost of production of their products." In other words, they should work for a great deal less money.

They would work for very much less money if they should find themselves, as soon would happen, under the control of fiercely efficient Japan, instead of good-natured, easy-going Uncle Sam.

Brighton Tots in Candid

Music and posture demonstration attracted the candid camera to Brighton where school playground children had a big day. Elizabeth Beard, of the Winship School, did some wonderful baton tossing. She hails from Kendrick road.

1400 pupils of the Bennett District heard pretty notes from the trumpet of Elizabeth Martin, one of the competitors. Elizabeth, if you please, represented the William Howard Taft School.

All these doings took place at Rogers Park. Meet three good drummers, Mary Meade, Beachcroft street, Ernest Hatch, Atkinson street, Brighton, and June Meade, of Beachcroft street, Brighton.

Rattaning Old-Fashioned, Asserts Newton Woman

She didn't call them "fogies" but Newton's only woman member of the school committee does think that the committee's recently passed ruling permitting teachers to "maintain discipline by reasonable and proper means" is hopelessly old-fashioned.

"Rattaning is an outmoded form of discipline," she asserted yesterday. "When I voted against it—I and one other committee member—it was not because I believe it might do any physical harm to the child. It is simply because I think it is an antiquated and ineffective form of discipline."

She is Mrs. Kate C. S. Cornell, and her resignation from the committee has been regretfully accepted by Walter A. Amesbury, chairman of the school board, because the recent death of her husband necessitates her entrance into the business world. This, she points out, will leave her little time for other activities.

A former teacher in the New York schools, Mrs. Cornell speaks from both sides of the fence on this question of corporal punishment.

"I never found rattaning necessary when I was a teacher and I think with our new ideas of discipline and our increased knowledge of the why and wherefore of human behavior it is as out of the modern picture as is witch-burning," she said.

OLD LOVE RING DISCARDED BY YOUNG ASTOR

While John Jacob Astor, 3d, was in Andover today visiting his half-brother, his intended bride, Miss Ellen Tuck French, was in New York to purchase her trousseau.

The couple made their departures from Newport R. I., where they have spent the two days since the revelation of their engagement.

DATE KEPT SECRET

Miss French was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Livingston French, who described their trip as a shopping expedition and intimated that the purchases would be concerned with the coming wedding.

Mrs. French, before leaving Newport, declared that no date had been set as yet for the wedding and said that her daughter would complete her shopping and then take a short trip for several days.

Astor also declined to reveal the date set for the wedding and said that either Mrs. or Miss French would make this announcement.

There has been some question as to whether the date, tentatively set for July 3, has been postponed until later in the month.

In Dedham, Francis O. French, father of Astor's intended bride and divorced husband of Mrs. French, denied there had been any postponement of the wedding date.

"At least I don't know anything about any postponement," he declared.

NEW RING FOR ELLEN

Asked whether his daughter had received an engagement ring from young Astor and whether it was the same given to Miss Eileen Gillepsie, he snorted:

"Yes, Ellen has a new diamond. Of course it isn't the engagement ring Mr. Astor gave to Miss Gillespie."

ELY EXPLAINS NRA STAND

Schenectady, N. Y., June 2—Declaring "that the farm and the factory have a common interest" and upholding "a national spirit and religion" as the twin bulwarks of civilization, Governor Ely of Massachusetts, speaking on the WGY farm forum program here declared:

"I have criticized the NRA as a permanent institution, but never for a moment have I criticized the intentions of the President."

"I believe that it would be better if a new bill of rights were written into the laws for labor, establishing uniform practices throughout the nation, to provide for a minimum wage, the right of collective bargaining, the elimination of child labor and the protection of women in industry," he said.

"With this legislation definitely framed and definitely on the statute books, the chief inducements for support of a permanent bureaucracy required by the NRA is eliminated."

ILLEGAL RUM DEALER RAIDED

Worcester, June 2—Revenue agents today raided the liquor store of the man who proposed raising a fund for the Democratic pre-primary convention, seized 45 pints of whiskey and gin on the grounds that some had faked labels and others were not provided with revenue stamps.

The manager of the place is Joseph H. Lainer, vice-president of the Massachusetts Retail Liquor Package Stores' Association. Earlier in the week it was revealed that he was heading a "Convention Fund Committee" to raise money to help the Democratic convention to defray expenses.

Lainer and Sol Yates, the license holder, will be arraigned before the U. S. commisioner. The store raided is known as the American Products Company, at 624 Main street. This is the first raid of its kind since repeal.

BLAST ROUSES DORCHESTER

The police signal system was put out of order by the explosion. Gases forming in the manhole are said to have caused the explosion.

(This is the second of a series of articles recalling dramatic incidents high-lighting the assorted careers of two of America's most socially prominent families soon to be united by the marriage of John Jacob Astor, 3d, and Ellen Tuck French.)

By PEGGY DOYLE

Throughout the romantic and marital history of the families backgrounding the interesting principals in the coming marriage of Ellen Tuck French and John Jacob Astor, 3d, there is a reflection of the abrupt and decisive heart conduct represented in this unexpected romance.

But, usually, head, heart and will have been combined in most of the alliances of its two family trees, notably in those of the late Colonel John Jacob Astor and the beautiful Madeleine Talmage Force and Julia French and her chauffeur-sweetheart, Jack Geraghty of New York.

Brings Attack From Pulpits of Nation

Because the multi-millionaire Astor was a divorced man, announcement of their approaching marriage caused him and his 18-year-old intended bride to be the center of a storm of attack from the nation's pulpits.

Four of the highest dignitaries in the Episcopal church, agreed that the canon law of their church forbade such a union, handed down the decision that they would not permit any clergyman under their jurisdiction to perform the ceremony.

From his pulpit in St. John's Episcopal Church of Philadelphia the Rev. Dr. George C. Richmond well-known to fashionable congregations, averred:

"I intend to do all I can to make it impossible for the Astor wedding to be solemnized by a clergyman of any faith.

"This Astor matter has to do with the integrity and the vitality of the Episcopal church.

"The Force family appears to be merely climbers, dazzled by the Astor millions.

Says Women Sell To Highest Bidder

"The women of this country are responsible for the scandals, divorces and demoralization of American society.

"Nowhere else than in America may be found women who frankly sell themselves and their children to the highest bidder."

That was just one of countless pulpit attacks levelled at the prospective society bridegroom, who went stoically to his death on the ill-fated Titanic seven months later, in April, 1912, muttering something about "the greatest adventure of all," and at the charming young woman, who on August 14, 1912, gave birth to his posthumous son John Jacob Astor, 3d, the present bridegroom-to-be.

The Force family were "terribly upset" while Colonel Astor concentrated on finding a minister who would perform the ceremony.

Finally, his agents were successful in obtaining not one but two clergymen to perform this service and although their fees were never made public it was reported that the colonel's attorneys were empowered to give a clergyman $1000 who would perform the ceremony.

The ceremony took place, not in a flower-embowered church to the sweetly solemn strains of the wedding march and with the decorative background of beautifully-gowned and impeccably tailored attendants and a churchful of fashionables, but in the privacy of Astor's Newport villa, the Beechwood, on September 10, 1911.

Wedding Ceremony Almost A Secret

The wedding was unlike any other in which such wealth, social prestige and youthful beauty prevailed. Only the members of the two families interested were present.

It was almost secret, the reporters from the New York and Boston papers not learning the name of the officiating clergyman, even, until it was left with an afternoon newspaper for publication in a marriage notice. He was the Rev. Joseph Lambert of the Elmwood Congregational Church of Providence.

The ceremony took place at 10 a. m., and no sooner had the bridegroom and his exquisitely beautiful young bride departed on the Astor yacht, the Noma, for an unknown destination than a rising murmur of speculation arose as to the amount of the marriage settlement which had come into the new Mrs. Astor's possession.

The guesses ranged everywhere from $25,000,000 to $500,000. Although never officially announced, it was estimated at between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, making the second Mrs. Astor the richest bride in many years.

Monday's article, the third in a series dealing with the lives and loves of the two oldest socially prominent families in America, the families of the newly engaged Ellen Tuck French and John Jacob Astor 3d, will recall the tragic death of Colonel Astor and the widespread interest in his will.)

Newport Asks Radio

Washington, June 2—A resolution of the Newport, R. I., Board of Aldermen supporting the petition for a broadcasting station in that city was presented before a Federal Radio Commission hearing by Mayor Mortimer A. Sullivan.

MILK CONTROL OUTLINED

Decentralization of control is the aim of government experts in the milk industry with the hope the industry will eventually learn to govern itself, according to Arthur H. Lauterbach, chief of the dairy section of the AAA, who has just completed a two-day survey of conditions here.

He said it was his opinion that the industry should be controlled by market administrators with the advice and aid of committees of producers, distributors and consumers.

BOSTON CHAMP HOME AFTER 'BEST TRIP'

By THE SPELLING BEE EDITOR

Declaring Washington to be the "only city in America to compare with Boston in historic interest," young David Andrew Ward, Boston's Metropolitan Spelling Champion arrived home this morning. Accompanied by his mother the champion had enjoyed a thrilling week in the national capital as guest of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

"Although I placed tenth in the National Grade School Spelling Championship," said David, "I am keeping my chin up and doing no remorsing. There were 19 spelling champions in the national test. We all hoped heartily to win of course, but 18 of us were sure to be disappointed. I tried my darndest but along came the word 'ordnance,' and before I know it I had popped an 'I' into it after the 'D.' It only took a second but that settled it."

"The night before the national test we had a dinner at the Hamilton Hotel. The educators who spoke did a nice thing. They congratulated the losers in the next day's match. They explained that losing is always hard no matter what winning has preceded it, and they thanked us in advance for being good sports when loss came to us.

"We had a fine time in Washington—saw everything of interest in or near the Capital and were treated just great by everyone. Of course we were disappointed not to meet the President as the spellers have for the last eight years.

"I'm proud to be Metropolitan Boston's Spelling Champion. I did my best in the National test and my mother, myself and my school thank the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser for the splendid, generous treatment we have enjoyed. My trip to Washington was the most interesting experience in my life."

Death Cheats Felon in Race

Nashua, N. H., June 2—Wilfred E. Lord raced with death and lost. Lord, 15 years ago, went to the state prison at Concord for a life term for the murder of his wife.

Governor John G. Winant, hearing that the prisoner's mother, Mrs. Severine Lord, 79, was dying, granted him permission to go to see her. Lord reached home an hour after his mother died.

MERCHANTS TO PROVIDE ICE

City Councillor Henry Selvitella, who started the collection to provide ice for public drinking fountains in East Boston with a $10 donation, promised today that sufficient funds would be donated by the merchants of the district to provide cold drinking water for the people of the district.

Mayor Mansfield's economy measure which cut $4600, usually appropriated for ice, from the city budget was responsible for the lack of ice.

Ugh! What a Taste!

Children in Boston learned today that warm water also bubbles from drinking fountains. Take the Hicks boys, for instance, George, 9, wanted a cooling drink, and Lesley Allen Hicks, being only 5, was, of course at his brother's heels. One sip at a bubbler made iceless under the economy program, and both boys were disgusted. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

NEW BALANCE OF POWER LOOMS AT PARLEY

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

Universal Service Special Cable

Geneva, June 1—A new European balance of power lineup today threatened to arise out of the wreckage of the disarmament conference, which staved off its imminent collapse by adjourning until Wednesday.

Out of the maze of secret diplomatic currents and cross-currents, rival political intrigue and conflicting fears and interests, a Franco-Russian coalition, on the one side, and what may be called an Anglo-German bloc, on the other, today began taking shape.

France, Russia, Turkey, Rumania, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia are being drawn together by the attraction of mutual interests. Poland and Belgium, with the small neutral states of Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Holland, Switzerland and Spain are gravitating toward Britain. Italy has not yet shown her hand.

GERMANY WOULD REARM

This second bloc stands for moderate rearmament of Germany. Italy has been significantly silent following Premier Mussolini's speech last Saturday in which he talked of war's benefits to mankind.

France and Germany reached their first agreement since Adolph Hitler became German chancellor. The two powers settled on Jan. 13, 1935, as the date for the Saar plebiscite. Italy's intervention brought them together on the issue.

The lockjaw, which had been given other delegations by the Anglo-French row, was broken by some brief oratory when the conference convened today. Immediately after it adjourned, British Foreign Secretary Simon left for London, ostensibly to attend court functions.

OUTLOOK IS GLOOMY

Though French Foreign Minister Barthou was reported to have apologized for his attack on Simon before the conference Wednesday, Arthur Henderson, president of the parley, painted the situation in darkest colors. He said:

"We are at the gravest moment since the Conference opened in 1932.

"The situation cannot be remedied by speeches. The divergence of opinion is too wide. We need time to reflect. I hope that by Monday we shall have found a road on which we can travel."

Polish Foreign Minister Beck rejected the proposal of Russian Foreign Commissar Litvinoff that the meetings be turned into a permanent peace conference to settle warlike differences between nations.

Foreign Minister Sandler of Sweden, speaking also for Denmark, Norway, Switzerland, Holland and Spain, offered a compromise disarmament formula.

He suggested a convention limiting armement, agreement on guarantees and investigation of what arms would have to be granted Germany as Berlin's price for return to the conference.

YOUTH ADMITS TRUNK KILLING

By International News Service

Washington, June 2—Capital police today claimed they had a complete confession from a 23-year-old youth that he had stabbed his attractive brunette stepmother to death with a chisel in Philadelphia, on May 10, and then stuffed her body into a trunk.

The youth, Joseph Martin Hoge, was picked up by police here last night. Hoge, according to detectives, confessed he had killed Mrs. Mary B. Hoge, 30, because she beat his 10-year-old sister.

The murder was committed in the Hoge home at Philadelphia. The woman was stabbed to death with a chisel and the body then dragged to an upstairs bedroom and doubled into a trunk.

The body was discovered by the husband, Jacob Hoge, that night and later the youth disappeared.

Lupescu Told to Flee for Her Life

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.

Paris, June 2—Titian-haired Mme. Magda Lupescu, Jewish companion of King Carol of Rumania, was urged today by Paris friends to seek refuge here from threats against her life in Bucharest, where certain political circles are seeking to break her romantic grip on the monarch.

Magda Lupescu

Anxiety over Mme. Lupescu, who befriended the Rumanian King during his period of exile in Paris, and has been his constant companion ever since, has been heightened among friends here.

Parisian friends are worried especially about reports that Rumania's "Iron Guard," banned nationalistic and anti-Semitic organization, has marked her for death.

Reports from Bucharest have stated that recent kidnap attempts have compelled Mme. Lupescu to become virtually a self-imprisoned recluse.

Meanwhile, her dangerous situation has caused a new outbreak of rumors about her personal life.

Two contradictory versions of how she and Carol met are now in vogue in Paris. She herself has stated that she first met Carol at a children's party when she was 11 and he, then a Prince, 13.

She said the boy Prince made her eat so many chocolates that she was ill. And she confided:

"But that was really when I fell in love with him."

Some members of the Rumanian court, however, say she first met Carol 10 years ago at a royal reception in Bucharest. She was then Mme. Tanyeanue, wife of a rich Rumanian army officer, and noted for her beauty.

According to this version, Carol was "smitten" at first sight. A divorce was arranged and Mme. Tanyeanu resumed her maiden name—Lupescu.

In 1930, when Carol returned to Bucharest and was crowned king, one of his first acts was to have Mme. Lupescu brought back from Paris to be near him.

6000 GOBS IN N. Y. PARADE

By International News Service.

New York, June 2—New York trotted out its ticker-tape today and paid homage to 6000 heroes, a gallant landing party from the mighty fleet which now studs the waters of New York.

Attired in their white hot-weather uniforms, the gobs gathered at Washington square and marched up Fifth avenue to Fifty-ninth street, while thousands cheered their progress.

A detachment of 1500 soldiers acted as escorts for the parading sailors, the first contingent to enjoy shore leave. The balance of the 40,000 men and officers here with the fleet prepared their vessels for the thousands of civilian visitors who will inspect them during the afternoon.

Curley Better; Ready to Get Up

Providence, June 2 — Internal revenue collections in Rhode Island for May were 800 per cent higher than a year ago according to figures issued by Collector Joseph V Brederick.

Delegates for 10 Million Hear McLeod Urge Payoff

By Universal Service.

Washington, June 2—Representing upward of 10,000,000 people who lost money in closed national banks, more than 600 delegates of the national depositors' committee meet here today and Sunday. They ask action on the McLeod bank deposit payoff bill, or the Steagall bill, with the permissive payoff provision.

At the opening session today, Rep. McLeod (R.) of Michigan and Rep. Fish (R.) of New York will be the principal speakers. Rep. Bacharach (R.) of New Jersey will preside. The afternoon session will be addressed by Rep. George A. Dondero (R.) of Michigan.

The bill apparently was scuttled yesterday by the adoption in the House of an almost unprecedented gag rule for the remainder of the present session. The major relief asked for under this measure, however, is embodied also in the Steagall bank deposit guarantee and payoff bill now pending in conference, and confidently expected to be approved by Congress.

Having obtained this week the required 145 signatures which would bring it up for action June 11, the McLeod bill petition now is at the mercy of a hostile Democratic leadership.

Rep. McLeod (R.) of Michigan, sponsor of the bill which has had such an adventurous journey through House parliamentary procedure, and his colleagues now pin their hopes to the Steagall bill, as bearing the brightest prospects of success for depositors' relief.

Mary Pickford to Push Divorce

Los Angeles, June 2 (US)—Despite countless reports from "authoritive sources" to the contrary, Mary Pickford intends to go through with the suit she filed here several months ago for a divorce from Doug Fairbanks.

This was indicated when Superior Judge Frank C. Collier, at the request of Miss Pickford's attorney's authorized publication of summons.

Milton Girl Weds Washingtonian

With a huge bower of flowers forming a background, Miss Ruth McGovern, of Milton, daughter of Charles McGovern, Dorchester coal merchant, became the bride of Maurice Gallivan, of Washington, attached to the PWA department in the capitol, in St. Angela's Church, Mattapan, today.

A cousin of the bride, Rev. James A. Hurley, of St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury, celebrated the nuptial mass. Assisting him was Rev. Fr. James Dolan, of Stamford, Conn., a cousin of the groom. Rev. F. Daniel A. Hurley, another cousin of the bride, was seated within the sanctuary rail.

Edward J. Caffey, Jr., of Medford, was the best man. Mrs. Elizabeth O'Meara was the matron-of-honor.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Maurice Baker, Miss Mary Crehan and Ellen and Catherine O'Meara.

A reception was held at the Copley-Plaza following the ceremony. The couple then left on a motor trip to New York to be followed by a honeymoon in Bermuda and Nassau.

Schooner Rescued Off Salem Harbor

After receiving word that the fishing schooner Ruth & Margaret, of Gloucester, was in distress off Salem, the coast guard patrol boat Thetis answered the call and after a three hour search found the schooner drifting out to sea. The engines of the ship were found disabled.

Swampscott Wars on Petting Parties

A drive against petting parties in Swampscott was begun today after the board of selectmen had ordered Chief of Police Reeves to clean the town of vice. Broken liquor bottles and other objects left by petters on the beaches had been reported by citizens.

FLAMES PERIL FORT STRONG, BURN DOCK

Boston harbor was lighted by a spectacular fire early this morning as flames swept a government dock at Fort Strong, Long Island, not far from Long Island Hospital, causing $5000 damage.

The blaze, which was discovered at 2 a. m. raged for more than two hours before it was brought under control and it was not until 5 a. m. that the flames were extinguished.

The cause of the fire has not been determined.

COAST GUARDS HELP

The Boston fireboat, augmented by a land crew from the Summer street station; the Long Island Hospital fire brigade of 100 men; the former police boat Stephen J. O'Meara; the police boat Edwin U. Curtis and coast guardsmen from the Hull and South Boston stations combined efforts to battle the flames.

Inmates of Long Island Hospital were aroused by the terrific glare of the flames and doctors and nurses, both of the day and night personnel rushed through the buildings, quieting the patients and assuring them there was no danger.

BELIEVE SHIP BURNING

Coast guardsmen also believed this was the explanation of the glare, this fact accounting for the presence of two coast guard boats at the scene of the blaze. Guardsmen at the Hull and South Boston stations were ordered into the harbor when officials at headquarters in Boston saw the glare and believed it to be a burning ship.

Two government lighters, which had been tied up at the dock while pile-driving and repair work was being carried on by the government, were cut lose to save them from the flames.

ford begged the state to hang her instead of her boy.

UP TO GOVERNOR

Between the two women today stood Governor Winant and his council of five. They already have formally voted 2 to 2 on commutation. A poll by the Boston Evening American of the fifth member Councillor Francis P. Murphy of Nashua, found him today in favor of commutation. It was the same stand he took a month ago. He said the plea of Trudeau had not changed him.

But the fate of young Thorp really lies in the hands of Governor Winant. No action before June 15 will mean the gallows sentence must be carried out.

Governor Winant may also commute the sentence without approval of his council. Or he may submit the question to the council with or without recommendations.

MOTHER HOPEFUL

At the home of friends in Biddeford, careworn Mrs. Thorp looked only on the hopeful side.

"Thank God, my boy is saved! I can't see anything else," she sobbed. "I would rather hang than let him."

But in Manchester, where the daughter of Trudeau is a nurse, she insisted in her demands for death.

"He has already been shown too much consideration," she said.

Councillor Murphy, reached by the Boston Evening American, was as optimistic as Mrs. Thorp.

"My position remains the same. I will vote for commutation. If the governor recommends commutation I will stand behind him," he said.

"But supposing he submit the case without recommendation?" he was asked.

"I will vote commutation anyway," came the response.

GOVERNOR SILENT

Apprised of Murphy's stand, Mrs. Thorp broke out in a fresh outburst of tears. They were tears of joy.

"Oh, thank Mr. Murphy! Thank everybody who is trying to save my boy! Thank the Boston American for keeping me in touch with everything going on. Oh, just thanks, thanks, thanks!"

Governor Winant remained silent on the matter. It may be a week before he makes final decision, he said.

Meanwhile, 29-year-old Thorp remained under heavy guard in the state prison here—but keenly interested in the battle for his life.

Girl, 7, Found Starved, Tied In Pen As 'Evil Eye'

By Associated Press

San Juan Capistrano, Cal., June 2—Terribly emaciated, 7-year-old Mary Ebarguarry was cared for at Santa Ana Hospital today while authorities launched an inquiry into the asserted imprisonment of the child in a chicken pen by her mother.

Robert Sandon, investigator for the Orange County district attorney's office, said Mrs. Barney Ebarquarry had penned up the child because she believed her daughter had an "evil eye" and was capable of "casting spells" on members of the family, including six other children.

The child was rescued from her prison by Sandon after her plight had been disclosed by Mrs. Thomas Ramos, whose home adjoins the Ebarguarry cottage here.

"Apparently," said Sandon, "the parents refused her any food except such as is ordinarily fed to chickens, for the poor child seemed almost a skeleton. Her dress was filthy and in tatters and her body and hair showed the effects of long neglect."

Mrs. Ramos told Sandon the disappearance of food from her home for weeks had puzzled her and led to the discovery. She saw her grandson take some bread and run over to the chicken pen, thrusting it through a wire netting to the girl, who ate it ravenously.

Lawrence Race Odds Slashed

Lawrence, June 2 — Reported losses of $43,000 to bookies one day this week has caused a cut in odds. All the money won was reportedly bunched on two horses.

Whereas the odds commonly paid were 20 to 1 to win, 8 to 1 to place and 4 to 1 to show, it is reported that they have now been reduced to 15, 5 and 3 to 1, respectively.

The limit on parlays now is 50 to 1.

LIQUOR VOTE DEADLOCKED

Concord, N. H., June 2—Hopelessly deadlocked on a state stores liquor bill, the New Hampshire Legislature adjourned near midnight last night, and Speaker Louis P. Elkins instructed a committee to make a final effort Monday morning to reach an agreement with the Senate.

Members of the House were kept within locked doors during the closing hours of the long session to guard against the possibility that members would leave for their homes and delay action through absence of a quorum. Governor John G. Winant called the special session three weeks ago for the purpose of passing liquor legislation.

Hospital Visitor Back as Patient

Lawrence, June 2—William Wilson of North Andover today was recovering from injuries which he received when he was returning from Lawrence Hospital, where his wife has given birth to a daughter. He was struck by an auto near the road leading to the hospital. He was picked up by a passing auto and returned to the institution.

LONERGAN WINS NEW JOB TILT

By Associated Press

Washington, June 2—The score stood two up and one to go in favor of Senator Lonergan today in his tussle with the administration over patronage in Connecticut.

Dr. Edward G. Dolan, administration choice for Connecticut collector of internal revenue, became the target ysterday for Lonergan's second decisive blow in his attack on the Connecticut patronage policy.

The Senate, which rallied unanimously to his suport Monday when he effected the rejection of Frank S. Bergin as district attorney, gathered behind him again yesterday when he pushed Dolan's nomination likewise to rejection.

Of the three nominations made over his opposition, only that of Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, as collector of customs remains to be acted upon.

CODY BURIAL IN MAINE

Hollywood, June 2 — Simple funeral services for Lew Cody, movie actor today will be held at 3 o'clock with only close friends in attendance.

Admittance will be by invitation only, said Cliff Durant, automobile manufacturer and Cody's close friend, today.

Interment probably will be in the family plot in Lewiston, Me., within a week or 10 days. Final arrangements awaited the arrival of a half-sister, Cecile Cote, of Berlin, N. H., the actor's only known surviving relative.

JURY REFUTES 'SUICIDE'

Sacramento, Calif., June 2—A coroner's jury has refused to designate the torch death of Virginia Johnson, 22-year-old daughter of State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson, as a suicide.

After hearing evidence the jury retired and returned a verdict of "death resulting from second degree burns."

The girl was found burned to death in a garage a few blocks from her home Monday night. Kerosene had been poured over her clothing and ignited. Police at first believed she had been murdered, but could find no marks on her body other than the burns.

POISON CANDY PLOT BARED

By Universal Service

Sacramento, Cal., June 2—Poison death impregnated in "sample packages" of confections was loose in Sacramento. A mass-murder poison plot had the police searching frantically for more samples of the article, after one woman by keen taste had escaped death from tasting it.

Eight sticks of the poisoned confection—each containing enough to "wipe out a neighborhood"—are in police hands, and in one block whence the find was first reported squads of officers are checking every house in the search for more before it achieves its murderous intent. Dr. Herbert G. True, city health officer, examined a packet and reported:

"Enough poison to kill the whole neighborhood!"

Los Angeles, June 2—The hunt for a Florenz Ziegfeld has ended. As usual, he was found right here in Hollywood among our own screen stars. The great glorifier will be portrayed by William Powell. Carl Laemmle, Jr., who is producing the picture; William Anthony McGuire, who knew Ziegfeld well and is writing the story, and Billie Burke, his widow who is assisting McGuire, have all okayed Powell as ideal.

Billie Burke

That leaves no arguments for anyone. Powell's recent performances in "Manhattan Melodrama" and "The Thin Man" have revealed a versatility hidden in previous pictures. It will be the characterization more than any resemblance which will count in "The Great Ziegfeld." Meanwhile Bill McGuire has rounded up more than 100 former Ziegfeld player who will be reunited for this picture.

The movies have ignored the international unrest. While newspapers and magazines are filled with threats of impending wars motion pictures have gone merrily along with their own problems. "War Declared!" will be the screen's first contribution to anti-war propaganda. This, B. P. Schulberg tells me, will be a war picture without a war. Ben, who is very enthusiastic over the story now being adapted by Liam O'Flaherty from a French play of Vaslov Solsky, says that he considers this one of the most unusual and finest dramatic works he has read in many years. All the action takes place on a ship packed with international passengers. Instead of booming guns, whirring airplanes, liquid fire, we will be given the effect of the declaration of war upon the different nationalities on shipboard.

A Line or Two:

Baby Le Roy will coo at Charles Laughton, Mary Boland and Charlie Ruggles in "Ruggles of Red Gap." The Joe E. Browns are due back from their Oriental trip on June 10. Universal liked Joel McCrea's work enough in "Half a Sinner" to ask him back for "Million Dollar Ransom." Mischa Auer has a letter from Jascha Heifetz saying that Florence Vidor will visit Hollywood for a few weeks and then return to her children in New York while her husband makes a tour of South America. Auer has just been signed for "Stamboul Quest" at M-G-M.

"Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" will be sung by Ginger Rogers. "The Touch of Your Hand" will be sung by Irene Dunne. Fred Astaire will divide his nimble dancing and clever comedy between the two. All of which means simply that "Roberta" will be brought to the screen by Radio Pictures who have finally secured the rights to the Jerome Kern operetta which has been one of New York's biggest hits. Irene Dunne is to be starred. Astaire, who was returning just to appear in "The Gay Divorce" evidently intends to remain in Hollywood for all next season.

* * *

There's no telling how a picture deliberately made for children will turn out. I know one youngster who saw a double bill, didn't like "Tom Sawyer" but exclaimed "isn't Bing Crosby keen!" Nevertheless, Sol Lesser hasn't lost faith in Mark Twain, which is as it should be. Sol is going to make one of the famed Clemens' classics with which every child is familiar. "The Prince and the Pauper" will follow his productions of "Peck's Bad Boy," starring Jackie Cooper and "The Dude Ranger," headed by George O'Brien. Little Dickie Moore is now trying to get out of the hospital as quickly as possible to begin learning his parts as both prince and pauper.

FAY WRAY and FREDRIC MARCH playing in a tournament at the L. A. Tennis Club; JOHNNY MACK BROWN also appearing on the courts after six chukkers of polo with WILL ROGERS the same morning; JEAN HARLOW arranging a party for the Grand Hotel opening Saturday night; RUBY KEELER and AL JOLSON sailing via the Panama Canal today for New York; FRANK BORZAGE and his crew leaving by train tonight for West Point, where scenes will be taken for "Flirtation Walk"; ARCHIE MAYO back from a quick trip to New York, will direct "The Lady Surrenders." That's all today.

Rivoli Theater

Beginning today the Rivoli Theatre ushers in its spring opening festival inaugurating its parade of stars, city and state officials have been invited to attend this gala celebration. The guest of honor is to be ex-Mayor James M. Curley. The feature pictures will include "We're Not Dressing," with Bing Crosby, and "Finishing School," with Francis Dee.

Myron Shellman, manager, has spared no expense to re-decorate the Rivoli.

Maedchen Film Is Superb

By HARRIS MORGAN

For its new program, the Fine Arts theater brought back as the feature, the transcendantly glorious photodrama, "Maedchen in Uniform," which is not only one of the grandest of all times, but one of the very few motion pictures with a soul.

The film has been universally acclaimed as one of the greatest of cinema masterpieces. The story is of Manuela, a motherless girl who at the time of her life when she needs and craves affection and understanding is sent away to a boarding school. Here there is little sympathy for the lonely child, where the tyrannical head-mistress is interested only in sternly disciplining her young charges. Between Manuela and one of the young teachers an affectionate companionship develops, bringing the only moments of happiness the girl has ever known, and from the beginning of this relationship the story proceeds to a dramatic climax.

"Maedchen In Uniform" first brought lovely Dorothea Wieck before American audiences, and her characterization of the young teacher was of such outstanding merit that it brought her a Hollywood contract. Hertha Thiele plays Manuela with charm and sincerity, and Emilia Unda gives a superb portrayal of the austere school mistress. The film was directed with laudable restraint and finesse by Leontine Sagan and Carl Froelich.

A delightful Walt Disney Silly Symphony, "Lullaby Land," a current news reel and other short subjects complete the program.

Fleet's in So Action Starts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Well, the fleet captured New York with 50 thousand dollars worth of blank cartridges.

It fired a salute at the President. And when 91 war boats unload a broadside it ain't Mickey Mouse talking to Minnie.

After that, 40 thousand sailors swam ashore to attend a lecture on ancient Greek civilization in the Museum of Natural History.

Those old sea-going boilers still thrill you when they rumble up the Hudson with smoke in their eyes. That's one garden they haven't sunk yet.

If it's all the same to the pacifists and Geneva we'll keep those boats, the sailors and even the Admiral's rocking-chair hat.

"Little Miss Marker" Gives Met's Screen Glamour, With Fine Show on Stage

For once in its lifetime this department has lost its heart to a movie star. Little Shirley Temple captures our affection completely after captivating us by the most remarkable performance any American child actor has ever achieved on screen. "Little Miss Marker" happens not only to be as entertaining as soul could wish, but it will always be remembered as the film in which a mere teeny-weeny lifted herself to stardom by right of artistic might.

* * *

Shirley Temple

Little Miss Temple—she is only five!—is the little Miss Marker in Damon Runyon's fanciful tale, now to be seen (and thoroughly enjoyed) at the Metropolitan. What she does to one, and how she does it, is something to ponder over, to wonder at and to delight in. There is uncanniness about her playing. It seems too unbelievable to be true. And yet here she is, a mere mite, but a mistress of laughter and tears. Ever so intelligent about it, too—so naturally charming in all the moods of childhood that she is irresistible.

* * *

Changes there are in the Runyon dialogue, but the theme remains, a play of fantasy which makes you recall the whimseys of "Lady for a Day." In that the crooks joined hands to promote Apple Annie's good fortunes; here they group into a King Arthur's Round Table, grotesque figures in armor, absurd beings in royal robes. It is all done with so much camera illusion and so much good acting, that "Little Miss Marker" appears to be Paramount's early contribution to the year's best movies.

The lass in the story is left in pawn with a race "bookie" against her father's I.O.U. as a bet. He loses, and passes out of the narrative by the suicide route. The child is thus thrust into a motley group and her adventures give the cinema a most unusual sort of picture.

The highlight is the Arthurian episode, staged to win her back from the slang for her new friends, to the fairy tales of her previous life.

* * *

Again and again, the theme takes on poigancy, but more frequently it is humorous, and quite often boisterously diverting. It has beautiful balance and tempo, thanks to the direction of Alexander Hall, who has managed to catch the Runyon spirit almost perfectly.

As Sorrowful Jones, Adolphe Menjou is in a role to which he can lend all his talents. Dorothy Dell is Bangles, and gives life to the part. All the other players are expert; but out of the roster rises little Miss Temple, to become the film sensation of the day.

She has had but one superior among youthful players, and that is Robert Lynen, recently seen in "Poile de Carotte."

* * *

This is a notable week in the Met's career; for not only does Manager Edward Smith excel in his program, but he has "done over" the stage, so that it is larger, more intimate, and mechanically superior.

On this stage the "maiden show" is "Milady's Fan," unusually good revue. J. Harold Murray, baritone, was the major hit, scoring an ovation. The Liazeed troupe of 12 acrobats evoked tremendous applause; Eunice Healy, ditto, with her dancing, and Fred Sanborn combined fun and skill in his xylophone turn. The bill is stellar. The orchestra, led by Director Kalich, remained on stage throughout. The settings are lavish, and all hands deserve credit for making the christening of the new stage a distinguished success.

Mr. Sevitzky led the orchestra through an overture out of the famous "Sherherezade" music.

"The House of Rothschild" Is Orpheum Record-Breaker

"The House of Rothschild" passed into Loew's Orpheum yesterday, to continue its long and successful run. It is now being shown for the first time downtown at popular prices. That it still has tremendous appeal was shown by the big audience that enjoyed its magnificence last night. In addition the house has a good bill of vaudeville.

* * *

George Arliss

Seen once more by this department, George Arliss thrilled as before in the film drama built around the rise and supremacy of the great banking house of Rothschild. This being one of Hollywood's outstanding talkie productions, it should not be missed by any lover of cinematic excellence. It has expert story, fine story and one of the classiest of casts—among its players are some of the finest to be found anywhere.

* * *

Featured on the stage are those ace comedy mimics, Mills, Kirk and Howard in a sparkling skit of slapstick comedy entitled "Yizzle See." The Corrinnes presented a clever act entitled "Stars of Yesterday," while others on the program included Dawn and Darrow with Stepping Syncopators in an eccentric display of dancing; Johnny Hyman in "Playing Pranks with Webster"; the jugglers, James Evans and Co.; and Glen Mason, "The Novelty Xylophonist."

New Record

Paragon Park at Nantasket Beach, with its new "admission free" policy, has broken all records for attendance thus far this season. Paragon Park appears this season in new dress. Many of the thrilling rides and shows have been greatly changed and improved.

Annual Race Meet at Brookline

THE FORTY-FOURTH RACE MEETING at The Country Club, Brookline, under the management of the Eastern Horse Club will be held Saturday, June 16 and Monday, June 18, followed by the eighth annual race meeting at Raceland, the estate of Mr. John R. Macomber, Framingham Center, Wednesday, June 20.

There are two races on the flat and four steeplechases the first day, including the nineteenth running of the National Hunt Club, a handicap steeplechase for hunters; about three miles in length, for a purse of $1500 and the cup. This cup must be won twice by the same owner, not necessarily consecutively, before becoming his or her property. The cup has been in competition since 1909 and has yet to be won outright. Among those who have a leg on it are Mr. F. Ambrose Clark of New York, Mr. William Almy, Jr., of South Westport, Mr. John R. Macomber, Mr. Rigan McKinney, Mr. A. F. Goodwin and Mrs. T. H. Somerville, whose Battleship won last year.

The fifteenth running of the Chamblet Memorial Steeplechase will also be a feature the first day. This race is about two miles for a purse of $1500 and a cup presented by Mrs. Lathrop Brown. Among those who have won this race before are such well known owners as Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, Mr. Thomas Hitchcock, Miss Dorothy Neyhart and Mrs. J. H. Whitney, whose Spar won last year

The second day, Monday, June 18, has a racing card made up of three races on the flat and three over the steeplechase course, including the Eastern Dog Club steeplechase; the twenty-fourth running of The Country Club Grand Annual Steeplechase, which was won last year by Mr. Alvin Untermyer's Naylor, and the Cohasset Roll Your Own handicap steeplechase.

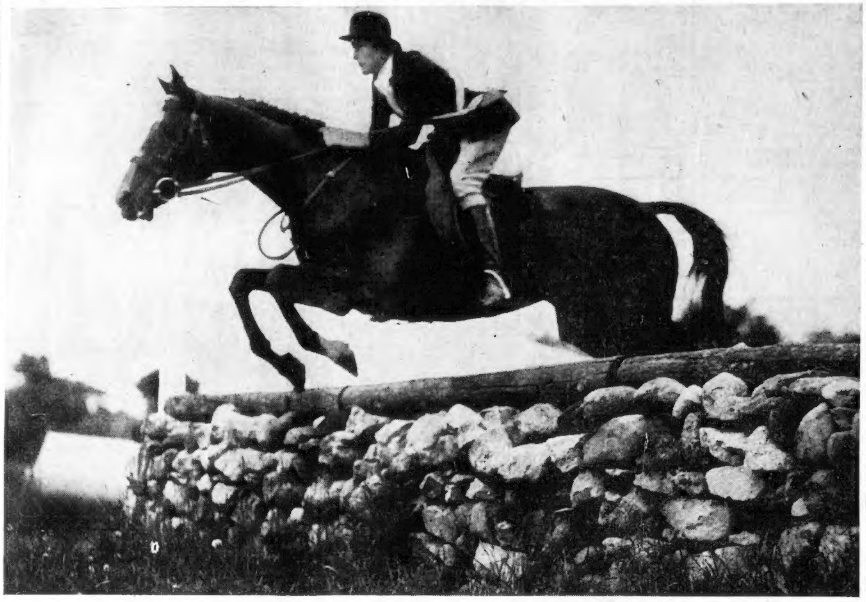
COHASSET FETE TO OPEN SOUTH SHORE FLOWER SHOW SEASON

LEAPING TO VICTORY AT THE ANNUAL MILLWOOD HUNT SHOW



MILLWOOD HUNT is host again today at the beautiful John R. Bird Waveney Farm in Framingham and once again society journeys there for another crowded program. Miss Constance Wharton Smith is shown piloting her entry, Invitus, over a jump to a blue in the ladies jumping class. The Dedham Country and Polo Club's hunt team outscored Millwood's team H on the first day. (Picture by Boston American Staff Photographer.)

Mrs. Benson Is in Charge of Event

ONE OF THE FIRST SOCIAL events of the new season on the South Shore will be the annual plant sale, flower show and tea of the Cohasset Garden Club which will be held on Tuesday, June 5, from 10 until 6, at the Unity Parish House on Cohasset Common.

Pony rides for children and an unusual competition in flower arrangements by prize members from other garden clubs will be special features on this occasion.

The general chairman of the plant sale is Mrs. Philip Benson with Mrs. Alfred Matless and Miss Dorothy Bolles in charge of accessories. Mrs. Charles Higginson, assisted by Mrs. T. Frederick Stoddard, Mrs. Charles Gammons, Miss Alice Hyde, Mrs. Eugene Ladd, Mrs. Charles Wheelwright and Mrs. Henry B. Pennell, will supervise the important details of flower arrangements.

Salesgirls will be Mrs. E. Lawrence Oliver, Mrs. G. Glover Crocker, Mrs. Preston Clark, Mrs. Delano Wight, Mrs. William H. Brown, Mrs. John W. Coolidge, Mrs. Lewis Bell and Mrs. Eugene F. Ladd. During the tea hour Miss Mary McElwain, Mrs. George G. Crocker, Jr., and Mrs. Prescott Cumner will be among the waitresses.

Visiting exhibitors of neighboring garden clubs will include Mrs. Henry Vose Greenough and Mrs. Irving Wright from the Chestnut Hill Garden Club; Mrs. Arthur Rice and Mrs. Charles Guild of the Milton Garden Club; Mrs. Charles Monroe and Mrs. Anson Smith of the Scituate Garden Club; Mrs. James Torbert of the Women's City Club; Miss Martha Sabine of the Duxbury Garden Club; Mrs. Charles E. Thayer and Mrs. Francis W. Mitchell of the Hingham Garden Club. These ladies have all won first prizes in large flower shows.

The proceeds from the plant sale will be used for the maintenance of school children's gardens and other civic work which the club sponsors.

Concert at Art Museum

The second concert by the ERA orchestra conducted by Will Dodge will be given at the Museum of Fine Arts tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The concert is scheduled to last until 4:15, and the Museum will remain open until 5 so that visitors may have the opportunity to see the collections. The program includes Weber's "Oberon" overture, Grofe's "Mississippi" suite, the andante from Haydn's "Surprise" symphony, Tchaikovsky's Italian caprice and numbers by Raff-Pochon, Holmes, Kreisler, Loud, Strauss, Gershwin and Pierne. Admission is free.

Einar Hansen will lead an orchestra of 21 tomorrow afternoon in the outdoor theater of the Cambridge School in Kendal Green, Weston. Orchestral works and excerpts by Mozart, Haydn, Berlioz and Rimsky-Korsakoff will be augmented by the A minor violin concerto of Viotti, in which Mr. Hanson will be soloist, while a string quartet will play the accompaniment. In the event of rain the concert, which will benefit the scholarship and building funds of the school, will be held in Weston Town Hall.

Miss Ruth McGovern of Milton Is June Bride

Maurice J. Gallivan Weds in Mattapan Ceremony

MISS RUTH McGOVERN of Milton, at a 10 o'clock ceremony this morning, became the bride of Maurice J. Gallivan of Washington and Dorchester in St. Angelus Church in Mattapan.

White peonies, purple larkspur and snapdragons and gladiolas in shades of yellow, caught with white streamers, decorated the pews and on the altar tall green palms and fern formed the background for the ceremony.

One of the latest bridal bouquets of the season of gardinias, lilies and orchids in frond effect, worn over the hand and dropping to the knees, completed the bridal costume. Miss Mary Elizabeth O'Meara of Providence as maid of honor carried all yellow daisies and snapdragon interspersed with talisman roses and gerbera. Four attractive bridesmaids, the Misses Catherine and Ellen O'Meara of Providence, Miss Mary Crehan of Dorchester and Mrs. Norris Baker of Milton carried out the yellow and purple motif with daisies and larkspur.

Mr. Edward J. Caffey of Medford was best man and the ushers at the church and reception were Mr. J. R. Gaffey and Mr. Andrew F. Gaffey of Medford, Mr. Leo Walsh of Lowell, Dr. Frances J. Hanley, Jr., of Whitman, Mr. James McGovern of Dorchester, Mr. John W. Wattendorf of Dorchester, Mr. John C. Mulry of Dorchester and Mr. George S. Wattendorf of West Newton.

Miss McGovern is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGovern of Briarfield road in Milton. Mr. Gallivan is in the department of the interior at Washington, D. C.

A reception and wedding breakfast in the Sheraton room at the Copley-Plaza followed the ceremony and after a honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Gallivan will reside in Washington.

POST-DEBUTANTES ASSIST AT GARDEN BENEFIT

MISS MARTHA ROGERSON

MISS SERITA BARTLETT

AN IDEAL SPRING DAY drew a large number of society folk to Weld, the Larz Anderson estate in Brookline, which was open to the public for the first time this season. Post-debutantes and social buds of the new season were on hand to serve the guests and in the group were Miss Martha Rogerson and Miss Serita Bartlett, two of the most popular members of society's young set. READING-WRITING

If the Cadenza Were Used in Literature

By WILLIAM SOSKIN

MR. FRANK (RUTH ST. DENIS) SULLIVAN, the eminent terpsichorean and bowling artist, explained the origin and evolution of the cadenza for us the other day on this page. The composer, he said, gave the virtuoso carte blanche occasionally to interrupt the flow of the main themes with a frantic outburst of notes played in rapid succession all over the instrument, notes improvised as the player's fancy dictated.

Cadenzas should be incorporated in literature, Mr. Sullivan said, and asked us to fancy a cadenza written by Donald Henderson Clark for Edith Wharton's The Age of Innocence.

* * *

IMAGINE, for example, the following excerpt from Noel Coward's Private Lives, with cadenzas by Mr. T. S. Eliot.

Amanda: Match?

Elyot: Wait a minute, can't you?

Amanda: Chivalrous little love.

Cadenza.

Chivalrous love,
Its dreamy eye
Is underlined
For emphasis.
Without mascara
It gives hope
Of hours of rude
And vulgar bliss.

Elyot: Here! (He throws her the matches.

Cadenza:

Very much indeed.
And shall I eat a peach?
Or shall I crush a grape
And throw away the seed?
I hear the mermaids calling
Each to each.

* * *

OR this one:

Mr. P. G. Wodehouse has this dialogue in Very Good Jeeves:

"Hi," I shouted.

He poked his head over the edge.

"Hi," he bellowed, looking in every direction but the right one, of course.

"Hi!"

"Hi!"

"Hi!"

"Hi!"

"Oh," he said, spotting me at last.

Cadenza, by Mr. Cab Calloway: "Hi-de-hi-di-ho!"

* * *

THEN there is Miss Rebecca West, whom I hesitate to place in the company of Miss Gertrude Stein. Still, Miss Stein is one of the best of cadenza-trillers. Indeed her entire literary output might be regarded as a cadenza.

Miss West writes:

"All our youth they hung about the houses of our minds like Uncles, the Big Four: H. G. Wells, George Bernard Shaw, John Galsworthy and Arnold Bennett . . ."

Cadenza, by Miss Stein:

How many Uncles are there in it? Uncle H. G. is in it, and Uncle John two-thirds in and two-thirds out, thank you. And Uncle Arnold is like lilac, in and out and purple. Thank you.

"They had the generosity, the charm, the loquacity of visiting Uncles. Uncle Wells always arrived, always a little out of breath, with his arms full of parcels, sometimes rather carelessly tied, but always bursting with all manner of attractive gifts that ranged from the little pot of sweet jelly that is 'Mr. Polly,' to the complete meccano set for the mind that's in The First Men in the Moon.'

Cadenza, by Miss Stein:

Uncle Wells, once in a while, once in a while, once in a meccano, once in Kew in lilacs in the grass alas, and once in the moon, in the men moon men moon moon men. Thank you very much.

Marginal Notes

THE HANDSHAKE

HANDSHAKING is an unhygienic custom, the French Academy of Medicine has officially declared. Their bacteriologists discovered that there are countless millions of disease-producing germs on the average hand, particularly on the soft white hand of the city dweller. A Commissioner of Health in Detroit has gone so far as to state that "because of their handshaking, politicians are potential disease carriers."

Therefore, theoretically, the popularization of the Fascist salute in Italy and the Nazi salute in Germany ought to bring a drop in disease incidence in these two countries.

Anyway, wholesale handshaking is an awful nuisance. For example, at a reception given at the White House a few years ago President Hoover shook hands with three thousand people as they filed past him. Then he quit—although there were still a thousand more in line. He had to quit—his hand was bleeding! — W. E. Farbstein.

Dusk Drifts

ACROSS ten miles of marsh long shadows loom
Upon the mountains of Manhattan where,
Beyond the dunes of darkness, a bright spume
Of golden surf floods color through the gloom:
Lantern tides sweeping shores of purple air!
A towered skyline lifts its headlands higher
To catch the full reflection of the sun,
Flaming each peak with momentary fire . . .
Until on broken turret, shattered spire
Dusk melts away to mist and day is done.

Buddy

BY FRANK SULLIVAN

WHILE strolling in the park one day recently I was approached by a young man who said "Shine, mister?" in such a cajoling tone that I became putty in his hands, sat right down on the nearest bench and let him wreak his vengeance on my oxfords. He was accompanied by a bizarre and shaggy dog which seated himself by his master, cocked his head and looked on as if the shining of a shoe was a fascinating and novel process which he was now witnessing with rapture, for the first time in his life.

"What's your name?" I asked the young master.

"Buddy," he said. "I'm eleven."

"That's quite a nice dog you got there."

"He'll give you his paw," said Buddy, proudly. "Ask him to."

"What's his name?"

"Lonny."

"Give me your paw, Lonny," I commanded, dutifully.

* * *

Lonny moved his paw an inch or two in my direction and then was overcome with a most embarrassing fit of shyness. He shuddered and turned his head away in an excess of self-consciousness. I could think of nothing but Joe Jackson, the tramp comedian with his bicycle, when he used to be overwhelmed with shyness in the presence of the audience and rush in a panic into the wings.

"Come on, now, Lonny. Give me the paw! That's a nice doggy."

"Give him your paw, Lonny!" his master ordered, sternly.

Lonny thumped his tail on the ground and extended me the paw.

"Tha-a-a-at's a nice doggy," I complimented him.

Crazed with success Lonny ran around the bench several times, barking jubilantly.

"What is he?" I asked Buddy.

"He's half police dog and half setter," said Buddy.

Privately, I felt sure Lonny's ancestry could never be settled by fractions as simple as that. Logarithms at the least were indicated. I felt sure, for instance, that one of his grandmothers had been frightened by a chow.

"Where'd you get him?"

"Got him off a man in the park," Buddy explained. "He was going to throw him in the lake."

"Throw Lonny in the lake!" I exclaimed. "Why?"

"Aw, he just didn't want him. He sold him to me for fifteen cents."

"That's quite a bargain for a good dog like him."

"He wanted fifty cents, but I only had fifteen," said Buddy.

* * *

A GOOD deal of chat followed, while Buddy dallied with the shoes, but conversation was now interrupted frequently by Lonny. The ice having been broken, he felt I was an old friend and was giving me his paw constantly. Buddy was coatless and wore a pair of shorts that left his thin little legs bare halfway up the thighs. On one thigh I noticed a star-shaped mark and I asked him what that signified.

"It's our club at school," he said. "You have to have the star stamped on your leg if you're a member. It's a secret."

He confided a good deal about the inner working and politics of the club, including the recent magnificent coup in which the fellows ganged and put to rout a certain teacher. It seems she had rendered herself pretty obnoxious by insisting on an unreasonable degree of dressiness. I gathered from Buddy's searing remarks that her dream is to teach a class consisting entirely of junior Berry Walls. The last straw was her ukase requiring every one of the young gentlemen to wear a necktie to class. One of the club members forgot and came in without a necktie. She disciplined him for the breach. Feeling ran high at this oppression and that afternoon after school there was a secret meeting of the Wearers of the Star on the Thigh. The next day every member of the club appeared in class without neckties.

"What did she do?" I inquired eagerly.

"She didn't do nothing," said Buddy, darkly. "There was too many of us."

* * *

He decided the shoes were finished. I paid cash. After exchanging paws once more with Lonny I wished him and Buddy well, and expressed the hope that the club would march on to greater and greater triumphs over the faculty. The sun had set and it was chilly. I urged Buddy to hurry home before he caught cold. He assured me he never caught cold.

LETTERS I WOULD LOVE TO MAIL

By J. P. McEVOY

HOLLYWOOD, June 1.

Dr. Philip Fox,
Director of the Adler Planetarium,
Chicago.
Dear Dr. Fox:

I WAS reading in the paper today about a scheme of yours for communicating with Mars—a system of searchlights 500 miles apart—that would form triangles, squares, and, I suppose, an occasional rhombus. I hope so, anyway. About the rhombus, I mean. When I went to school, I had to learn to draw the darned thing and now that I've grown up I find it was a dance all the time. I was misled and I am mildly bitter about it. If only I could live those days over again! I had such a pretty little teacher and I would enjoy doing a rhombus with her.

But that isn't what I started out to say. It was about your system of communicating over vast distances, and I was wondering if we couldn't apply it to local conditions. I mean, could you help work out some kind of a system whereby we could signal New York—which is much farther than Mars—and possibly find out what's happening in the world.

True, there are trains from the East and planes and boats and telephones and radio, but we Easterners, lost out here in an impenetrable forest of orange trees, hear about nothing but movies and movies and movies.

A FEW weeks ago there was great excitement in Hollywood. A weazened old man, ragged and travel-stained, staggered into the Brown Derby with the latest news from New York. "What plays have you seen?" everyone cried, and he told them about Jeanne Eagles in Rain, and Abie's Irish Rose which everybody said was in for a long run, and he had seen a dress rehearsal of a grand war play, What Price Glory?

We were all thrilled. So the theater was still going in New York! We laughed and cried and wished more visitors could find their way to us from that fabled land. He told us how they had torn down the Waldorf-Astoria and were planning to build the Empire State Building, which would be the tallest in the world, and he described the reception that Jimmy Walker was planning for Lindbergh, who was arriving the following day.

How did it come out? And what is Jimmy doing now? And Lindy? Did he fly over after that? We'll probably never know unless you help us. That is why, when I read this morning about your ingenious idea, new hope was born in me. Would you help us to establish a system of communication by searchlights, say, three or four thousand miles apart—we've lots of room out here? Do you think New York would see them? Do you think if they saw our signals they'd care a damn?

STUPIDEST THING

Prize for 1933 Goes to Hitler's Germany

Says G. K. CHESTERTON

LONDON—Having been asked the question "What in your opinion were the most stupid things of 1933?" I can answer it very simply, if I may be permitted to answer it sincerely. By far the stupidest thing done, not only in the last year but in the last two or three centuries was the acceptance by the Germans of the dictatorship of Hitler—to say nothing of Goering.

But indeed it was much worse than that. Any man at any moment may do a stupid thing. It is the rare privilege only of a gifted few to do about six stupid things at once. It is reserved for really fine farcial heroes, like the heroes of the superhuman farces of Mr. P. G. Wodehouse; the sort of stories in which a man lightly throws away a lighted cigar which at one and the same moment sets fire to his father's most favorable will, spoils his fiancee's beauty, breaks the vase he might have sold for a thousand, sets the hotel on fire involving damages in millions and singes his sister's dog so that it yelps and bites her wealthy suitor in the leg.

That is the sort of grand harmony and unification of comic blunders that the Nazi victory has really achieved. It may be well to enumerate them roughly, as in the case of the far less disastrous gesture of the gentleman with the cigar.

* * *

1. The Germans have silenced the Pro-Germans, without making the slightest difference to the Anti-Germans. Pro-Germans were people found all over the world, but especially in what is called the Anglo-Saxon world; and that not necessarily in any sense that anybody could have counted treasonable during the war. For certain historic, religious or racial causes, which we need not debate, it is true that many a good American or British soldier had more understanding of the Germans he attacked than of the French he defended. I do not feel like that myself; but I am not speaking of feelings but of facts. As a fact, the reaction in favor of Germany had been mixed up with a reaction in favor of peace. All that worldwide backing has been lost; meanwhile every Pole and every Frenchman is as vigilantly hostile as ever.

* * *

2. It killed the discussion of disarmament by a new discussion of rearmament. But again, it was worse still. If a man in a street recently swept by gun-fights puts a cannon on his roof, puts on a new uniform and practices with a pistol in the garden, teaches his two sons to hack each other with sabres and flies a flag with a warlike motto, it is rather worse if he then looks over the wall and explains (like Hitler) that he does not mean to fight. Simple people will answer: "You are either a lunatic or a liar who does intend to fight. The most respectful view is that you are a liar. The only other is one rather worse than both; that you are a bloody minded fool who loves to talk and think about fighting and who dares not fight."

* * *

3 It gained all the ill-fame of fanaticism and yet it was a compromise. It fell between two stools. It might really have won Catholic Germany by dropping a few fads which are to Catholics crimes.

There are three hundred other cases, and three urgent ones, but there is no space for them here.

(Mr. Chesterton will complete the six reasons in his next article).

Music

IF I seek music it shall be
The singing branches of a tree;
When little winds, uncertain, brief,
Rustle the bowstrings of each leaf,
And matchless harmony evoke
From elm and maple, spruce and oak.
Or, when the fingers of the rain
Weave beauty of a slow refrain;
A rhythmic rune in cadence long,
As drowsy as a slumber song,
With merry interludes as sweet
As patter of a peri's feet.
If I seek music I shall go
Where rippling brooklets seaward flow,
Or where the ocean's mighty power
Is bass profundo of the hour.
The fountain has a lyric throat,
The thunder never flats a note,
And blest is he who listening hears
The voices of the singing spheres.

LOOKING AT LIFE

Humanitarian Judge — Note on Immorality by

ADELA R. ST. JOHNS

A JUDGE recently sentenced a man who pleaded guilty to second degree manslaughter to pay the funeral expenses of his victim and to make weekly payments of $15 to the widow over a period of five years, for her support and the maintenance of her three children.

This sentence seems to me a great forward step and the judge is to be highly commended for it.

He might have sent him to jail, an expense to his country, a burden to society, to be punished, and only punished for his misdeed. Instead, he has given this man a chance to repay in some measure for the life he took, to assume the burdens of his victim and carry them upon his own shoulders. He will be obliged to work, and work hard to make those payments and keep out of jail. But he will have an opportunity to redeem himself, to prove himself, and to be a useful member of humanity.

Let's hope that the judge's action will serve as a precedent in many future cases.

* * *

THERE has been a rebellion recently among the girls at Hunter College against the Dean, who, according to the students, frowns upon all romance and wants them to be "very moral young ladies." She objects to organdy blouses, red finger nails, crushes and skirts buttoned up the front.

None of which is very important, even if occasionally in bad taste.

I am sometimes distressed by our American habit of connecting the word "morals" only with sex. A girl is either moral or immoral, in our general usage of the term, according to her relations with the opposite sex, a man is accused of immorality upon the basis of his affairs with women.

There are, after all, Ten Commandments. Only two of them deal with sex. The other eight have to do with our relationship to God and our dealings with humanity. Marcus Aurelius, who should be read by every thinking person, had a great deal to say about morality — and practically none of it referred to sex. Jesus mentioned that the publicans and the sinners would go into heaven ahead of the hypocrites.

I am not advocating sex immorality. Far from it. It's a degrading and stupifying thing as a rule. But to regard it as the only immorality places humans on a pretty low level. Honor, truth, courage, unselfishness, kindly treatment of our brother men, tolerance and fair play are all pretty important—and when we kick any of them overboard we are definitely immoral, whether we realize it or not.

The man who wrecks a bank, cheats his neighbor, defames the good name of some one, robs another of any chance in life, betrays a confidence or judge unjustly is just as immoral—maybe more so — as the man who yields to lust.

ALLOW ME TO SAY

Miraculous Hour of Eleven in Morning Viewed By

CHAS. HANSON TOWNE

A FRIEND of mine was telling me of his "new freedom" recently. He had spent twenty years or more at office work, and suddenly could arrange his affairs so that a portion of the week became his own. He found himself walking up the avenue at the miraculous hour of eleven in the morning—not going to an office. He was headed for the park, where he knew the trees had loaded their branches with leaves and the grass was green.

He had never seen shop windows with quite this slant of the sun on them. Always he had viewed them early or late or wistfully at noon, when the streets were so crowded with other escaped office men that he could take little pleasure in what he saw. Shop windows at eleven in the morning were for the elect of the town! That hour had always heretofore meant something that made it impossible for him to call it his own.

He had looked often from a high window at that hour and seen the people in the streets as they trailed like ribbons round and round the vast city, and he sometimes wondered what it would be like to be one of them—not hurrying on some commercial errand but jogging along with nowhere to go save where one please.

* * *

AT last his dream had come true and when he found himself projected upon that thrilling avenue and realized that he had nothing—absolutely nothing—to do until lunch time—and he could skip that, if he wished—he could scarcely believe that it was he who had broken the traces.

The green of the park greeted him and, like Raleigh's cloak, a gay pattern of flowers was laid at the entrance for even his unworthy feet metaphorically to tread. To think that these bright blooms unfolded here day after day and he had so seldom seen them! He saw paths and bypaths everywhere that reminded him of his vanished youth. And all this while the park, like a green island set in a throbbing sea, had waited for him to come back to it! Anchored to a desk, he had dreamed many a time of such an hour of freedom: and now that it was actually his he determined that he would not analyze it but simply drink it in. It would have been as criminal as to pluck a flower apart.

POLICEMEN went their weary rounds, swinging their sticks and it suddenly came to my friend that even in this sylvan retreat there was stern labor to be done. Just as someone, some time, must sweep out a shrine—possibly nowadays with a vacuum cleaner—so papers must be picked from God's grass, and pickpockets must be diligently looked for in holiday crowds.

At this hour it was as though he had gone behind the scenes of a theater while the stage hands were busy about their necessary labors. For all his practicability, through his sense of strange freedom, had left him, and he was ardent for a mad, glad world, where for a long time there would be little for anybody to do. He wanted masons and policemen and icemen and nursemaids and electricians and keepers of zoological gardens to be as free as himself. He was like a child with a new toy or, rather, a child with an old toy which he had almost—but not quite—forgotten how to play with.

Assurance

I'M always dragged to churches where
A tiny handful goes,
And Sunday after Sunday, I
Am just another nose.

I'm asked to look as big as two
To make the singing loud,
No matter where I wish to be
I simply "swell the crowd."

If Peter sees me at the gates
He will not ask of sin
Nor question virtues of my life.
I think he'll let me in.

He'll say: "It does not matter much
The place your soul reposes,
The people here are far too few—
Come in, we're counting noses."

VAGABONDIA

Our Capital Is Called Great and Variously Viewed

Says BRUNO LESSING

WASHINGTON, D. C. — This is a great city. Here's where Congress meets and the President lives and the United States Supreme Court makes its decisions. The Constitution sets forth that these are three distinct and separate divisions of the government whose individuality must be kept inviolate. Just now—the weather being stormy—these three departments are bumping into one another.

Having been away from U. S. so long I am not in a position to judge the present governmental situation intelligently. To be frank, I don't understand it at all. They tell me that N. R. A. (New Riding Academy) is riding the country. I'm a little puzzled, though, by the functions of the A. R. G., and the Q. B. Z., and the C. R. C., to say nothing of the L. M. N. and the G. K. R.

I can, however, tell you all about L. H. O.—Lynn Haven Oysters. But first I must tell you about my trip to Washington.

* * *

I LEFT New York under a cloud. I had many friends to see and couldn't see them because I'm traveling westward with the sun. I may even land in Japan and India. I just have to hurry back to my little place in Italy and it doesn't matter much from which direction I approach it. Although I would like to find out for myself if the earth is really round.

I took one of those little sleeping rooms just to save the extra half fare that you have to pay before you can buy a compartment. My baggage which included a typewriter, a couple of boxes of books and several suitcases fitted nicely into the room but I didn't see where I fitted in. I told the Pullman porter that I was probably excess baggage and ought to ride in the baggage car. He laughed heartily and said, "You jes' watch me, boss." (Isn't it strange how we like people who laugh at our jokes?)

The way he tucked that baggage away was wonderful to behold. By balancing on a suit-case I managed to undress partially. I shared the bed with a couple of bags. About 6 a. m., I fell asleep and at 7 a. m., I was awakened by the announcement that we were in Washington.

* * *

IT is, as I said, a great city. It is the symbol that we present to the world of our strength and greatness. It is THE broadcasting station of the U. S. of A. It is named after the father of our country and we all were brought up to attach great importance to it. Its greatness as a city, however, lies merely in our patriotic mind. Judged only by the eye and by the impressions of casual contact, Washington is a hick town.

A few outstanding spots of artistic delight. The capitol with its graceful dome — copied from Michelangelo's model of St. Peter's — is attractive. The White House, while not as impressive as many a European palace, is a nice bit of Colonial architecture. Many government buildings are of great size but not beautiful.

Many vacant lots overgrown with weeds. Many dingy houses. A few skyscrapers that seem out of place. And little clusters of pretentious mansions and foreign embassies. No end of filling stations and awful poster advertising. A painful jumble.

* * *

ITS population—permanent and transient: Many thousands of Federal office holders and good natured darkies. The great majority of visitors have an axe to grind. Want to pull wires and get something. The minority represent curiosity and sentimentalism. There are many visitors who gaze with awe upon a Senator or a Congressman.

There is no communal life in Washington. Social activity is organized in cliques devoted to mutual interests or advantages. As a matter of fact, the city of Washington isn't a city at all. It is just a concentration of importance, patriotic fervor and bunk. And "the greatest of these three" is importance.

Please don't think that I'm trying to belittle Washington, D. C. I'm merely considering it as a city and not as an emblem. Compared even with Copenhagen or Bucharest—which are very unimportant capitals—it is a jay town.

ANYWAY, I had a grand time at the Shoreham Hotel. I wanted to see the manager and telephoned to him to come up. He didn't know me from Adam but he came up promptly. I was so flabbergasted that I nearly forgot what I wanted to ask him. In most hotels in Europe and in many in this country, if you want to see the manager he wants to know beforehand what you want to see him about. This chap evidently learned that the job of a manager is to manage. He fixed up my laundry O. K.

Then dinner with my old pal Senator Copeland who lives in the Shoreham. Royal S. Copeland is not only a U. S. Senator but is also a physician of renown. The best feature of the dinner was some Pilsener beer that he had dug up for me. The worst feature was that a newspaper in Toronto, Canada, called him on the phone and asked him what was the best thing to do for an epidemic of Oystrophia muscularis progressiva that they were having. And kept him busy for half an hour. I think the best thing to do is not to have it.

Dear Aunt B:

Do you think it would broaden the children if we took them on an auto camping trip this vacation? Anxious Parents.

Ans.—Yes. They'd see nature in its various moods — particularly human nature. There's nothing like listening to a family row to make children think.

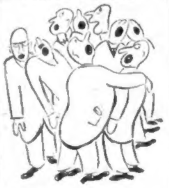
A LULLABY FOR BABY



To be sung by Big Business, the Brain Trust, Radicals, Conservatives, Inflationists, Deflationists, Hitler, Japan, et cetera. But not together—

If you'll just let us go ahead
Without any interference,
Keep your hands off, raise no Ned
With our plans or their appearance,
We'll soon show you what we've got
And we're sure you'll think it hot.
Dum-de-dum. Dum-de-dum.
Dum-de-dum.

Please show a little confidence,
Just trust us for a minute;
Don't be suspicious, don't be dense,
For there's no future in it.
A bit of privacy will suffice for us to fix things up sooooo nice!
Dum-de-dum. Dum-de-dum.
Dum-de-dum.

Don't crane your neck and peer around
Or raise a puzzled eyebrow,
And close your trap, don't make a sound,
Relax your low or high brow.
Relax and take a little nappie;
When you wake up you'll be so happie.
Dum-de-dum. Dum-de-dum.
Dum-de-dum.

Stengel One of New Showmen Now Left In Major Leagues ↕ Tennis Pros Have New Scheme: Mouse Test for Racing

By AUSTEN LAKE

TELEPHONES JANGLED in the hayloft offices of the Braves. Secretary Ed Cunningham cat-footed his 230 pounds to report a queue of callers cooling without. But the Judge was on his favorite subject, showmanship, or "theatrics" as he called it, puffing his cigar to a red headlight and stomping around the office furniture.

AUSTEN [illegible]

"We are selling entertainment," said he, stabbing the air toward Bill McKechnie, "We don't chase the umpires enough."

McKechnie grinned up the side of his mouth and raised his eyes wearily. He had heard the theme often before.

"What profit do you get out of that?" he asked.

"Profit?" snorted the Judge. "No profit. It just looks good. Color, action, dash. The public pays for it."

* * *

AS A MATTER of fact there are few, if any, hell-roaring types left among the major league managers today, few with the theatrical sense of John McGraw, Hugh Jennings, or George Stallings, all dead now. McKechnie, being a cold rolled type, keen in his baseball percentages and perhaps the most competent mechanical ball man in the game, is not colorful.

In looking around the leagues today, about the only vivid personality with a dash of showman in his system, is the tea-pot nosed, plow-chinned manager of the Brooklyn team, guests of the Braves today.

It was Casey Stengel, who refers to himself as a half-breed Irishman, or a 50 per cent Dutchman, giving you the choice, who prepared a beautiful sign, reading "So we ain't in the league any more, eh." This was in the South, last spring, just before the first exhibition game with the Giants.

The gag was, if Brooklyn won, to hoist the sign on a truck and parade it back and forth in front of the Giants' hotel, as a rebuke to Bill Terry for his slighting remark of the previous winter. Unfortunately for the scheme, the Giants won and have kept on winning until last Thursday, when Casey's men broke through their service for the first time.

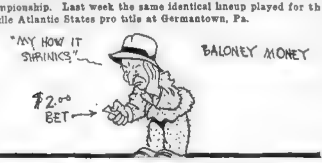
LATEST MONEY snatching scheme by the tennis professionals, is to tour the land playing for imaginary intersectional championships. Thus the flying circus, of which Vines, Tilden, Richards and various small fry are the keymen, is coming to Longwood next Monday to play for the New England professional championship. Last week the same identical lineup played for the Middle Atlantic States pro title at Germantown, Pa.



One of the interesting characters in the troupe is Mel Kamm, a genial lad, who acts as advance man, disseminating publicity and goodwill among the sport authors. He also plays in the early parts of the tournaments, and spends his spare time in supervising the sale of tickets, much as old time barnstorming actors would double in brass.

EXPERIENCED HORSE players complain that the "breakage" amendment to the state pari-mutuel bill, just passed by the House, is too large a bite to take out of the bettors' capital.

By "breaking" on the dime instead of the nickel, the state takes all odd pennies up to nine cents above even money. Thus the bettor stands to have his two dollar investment whittled down, not only by 10 per cent tax, but also by one to nine cents. In other words he stands to lose 39 cents every time he wagers two dollars.

In running the money through the laundry seven times in an afternoon, the original betting capital is pretty well washed out at the end of the day.

INCIDENTALLY A Temple University professor of chemistry has devised a simple and direct way to detect horse doping, that may well be introduced into Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

Dr. James C. Munch finds that a 10-minute test with a mouse will show whether a horse has been treated with morphine or heroin. A quarter-teaspoonful of the horse's saliva in injected into the mouse. Within 10 minutes, if the horse has been "dynamited," the mouse's tail will curve into an S shape, his back will hump, his hair stand on end and his hind legs begin to shiver.

At the moment laboratory tests for dope require two days and are said to be less accurate than Dr. Munch's mouse test, which will detect the presence of as small a dose as one-seventy-five thousandth of a grain of morphine.

Dean Relents, Hurls for Cards

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 2—The strike ended but the melody lingering on, Jerome "Dizzy" Dean was scheduled to take the mound for the Cardinals today in the second game with the Pirates.

Dizzy refused to pitch the first game here, saying he would not throw another baseball for the Cards until they came through with a raise for his younger brother, Paul.

Some sort of compromise was effected overnight, for Dizzy seemed pacified this morning.

Dizzy and brother Paul have won 11 games between them this year. Paul is getting only $3000, despite the fact that he is undefeated.

Dusek to Meet Bull Martin at Arena

Alex MacLean, matchmaker at the Arena, was one of the first to confer with Ernie Dusek following the latter's sensational victory over Gus Sonnenberg at the Arena.

Alex secured Dusek's consent to battle "Bull" Martin in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Arena on Wednesday night.

BRAVES SEEK 7TH IN ROW AT TEPEE TODAY

By Joe Cashman

It took 16 long, thrilling innings and resulted in 1600 cold dinners but they did it.

So as our intrepid Tribesmen enter the second game with Brooklyn this faternoon they're seeking straight victory No. 7 from a spot only three games removed from the pinnacle.

And, after their Ladies' Day performance, you'd be daffy to wager a plugged nickel that they won't be leading the parade one of these very early rare June days.

It came as hard as repeal that sixth consecutive triumph but it showed the Warriors in a more favorable pennant light than did did their five previous wins put together.

COME FROM BEHIND

In each of the other victories they were always front runners. Shooting would have been too good for them had they failed to come through.

The hectic marathon contest, however, saw our lads four runs behind from the first to the eighth and on the brink of disaster in five of the seven overtime frames. From Billy Urbanski down to the pitcher, each of them had to display every known championship quality to ward off defeat.

It was impossible to signal anybody out for the hero's toga. They all were entitled to a piece of it.

MARTY DOES IT

The Black McManus knocked in the winning run. Hal Lee scored it. Billy Urbanski and "Pinkey" Whitney overcame the Dodgers' early lead with eighth-inning home runs, each coming with two mates on the sacks. Leo Mangum and "Huck" Betts each pitched seven scoreless frames with the aid of errorless, spectacular support.

No wonder the stoical Bill McKechnie, who under ordinary circumstances considers it a sign of weakness to display any emotion in public, tossed his cap high in the air and danced a jig of joy when it was all over.

The team play and winning spirit he had witnessed for three hours, 35 minutes are unmistakable flag symptoms to an experienced baseball specialist like Wilkinsburg Will.

The Dodgers made the fatal mistake of snubbing the Black McManus once too often. In the 14th, with Berger on third, Randy Moore was purposely walked to bring up Martin Joseph, and Marty flopped.

So in the 16th, with Lee on second, Handy Randy was again passed intentionally. This time Marty shot a single over third, which Al Lopez knocked down but couldn't hold. McKechnie wanted Lee to halt at third, but Hal had a date or somethin', kept on going and made it.

Jumbo Jim Elliott had five runs charged against him when he was yanked in the first frame, but they weren't all his fault. A miscue by "Buck" Jordan was responsible for four of the markers.

Three of the Tribe's six runs in the eighth were also due to a bobble. After Whitney's homer with two gone, which also scored Lee and Berger, Spohrer reached on an error by Frey. Tommy Thompson, batting for Mangum, then singled, setting the stage for Urbanski's circuit smash.

Bobby Smith's appearance on the Tribal hill in the ninth was strictly a case of the spirit being willing but the flesh being weak. The Atlanta Thrush had saved games Tuesday and Wednesday and his arm wasn't equal to another rescue task so soon again.

A single by Boyle, a walk to Frederick and a triple by Leslie tied up the game before Betts could be rushed to the scene.

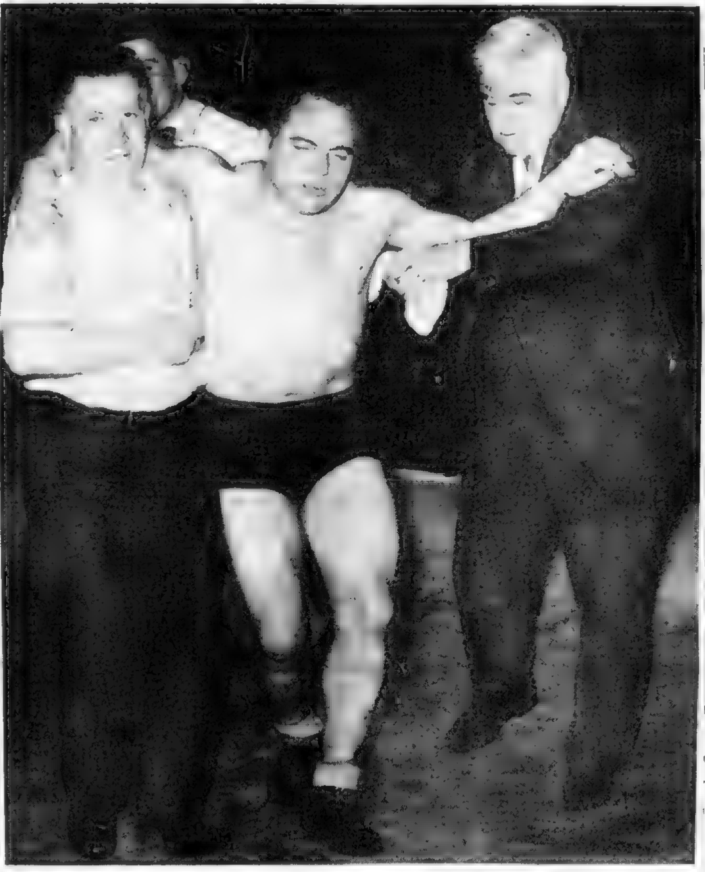
The Old Guard Dies but Never Surrenders; Gus Comes To



Gus Sonnenberg's bout with Ernie Dusek at the Garden may have marked the last appearance of the old Dartmouth Dynamiter as a topnotch wrestler. Gus had been doing well in his comeback around the gaslight circuits, and thought he was fit to cope with the best of them again. But he was slammed hither and yon by the fiery young Nebraskan; indeed was 10 minutes regaining consciousness after the second fall. Here Dr. Fraser and Gus's second are escorting him from the Garden, probably for the last time. One of the great heroes of the 1920-30 decade, Gus's best days seem far behind him. He lost in straight falls to Dusek. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Maranville for Manager of N. L. All-Stars!

Only Logical Choice for Job, Says Bill Corum

By Bill Corum

New York, June 2—John Arnold Heydler, president of the National League, probably will never buy one of Joe Penner's ducks, but if he doesn't buy a Rabbit for his tenth of July lawn party at the Polo Grounds, this bureau is going to be chagrined and disappointed.

The particular "Rabbit" that Mr. Heydler must buy is, of course, "Rabbit" Maranville; and if the fans, the Baseball Writers Association of America, and the officials of the National League do not agree that he is the only logical man to manage the National League team in the coming all-star game, they are going to break my heart.

The idea is not original with me. Vic Grandin of the Palm Beach Daily News and Palm Beach life suggested it to me over a beaker of something or other at one of those new deal soda fountains the other night.

It appealed to me as such a complete "natural" that I was all for rushing right down to the office to do a stop-press piece on it. But since it was 4 o'clock in the morning I decided the printers might not be so enthusiastic. They would have been however, if they followed baseball or knew "the rab."

The man himself, the fact that he has been for two decades the war horse of the league, his present plight due to a tragic accident suffered in line of duty, the managerial situation in the Heydler loop—all these things seem to me to make Maranville the only logical choice for the job.

But gosh, the suggestion is so perfect it's silly to enlarge on it. It's like saying President Roosevelt is the right man for his job. Who could say no?

There he is, Mr. Heydler, tailor made for the post.

From the miracle Braves of 1914 to the all-star National Leaguers of 1934—Walter James Vincent Maranville!

MANUSH GAINS WITH WILLOW

By Associated Press

New York, June 2 While most batting leaders ran into one setback after another during the past week, [illegible] Hemsley of the St. Louis Browns, the big league pace setter, maintained his steady, strong gait.

[illegible] couldn't equal the clouting feats of [illegible] Manush, the Washington veteran and Joe Moore of the New York Giants, but added one point to his average, bringing it up to .415 with eight hits in 19 times at bat.

Manush laid down a hit barrage that carried him from fifth place among the American League leaders to second, a gain of 26 points that shot his average up to .390. During the week he had an even 500 mark, hitting 16 times in 32 trips to the plate. Billy Knickerbocker, who had been tied with him, made 12 hits in 33 attempts and boosted his mark 15 points to [illegible].

While the first two men on the National League list, Harvey Hendrick of the Phillies and Sam Leslie of Brooklyn, were losing 16 and seven points, respectively, Moore registered the week's outstanding gain for the circuit by swatting out a 20-point gain and taking sixth place at .353.

He made 15 hits in 34 times up. Hendrick's two blows in eight appearances at the plate dropped him to .375, while Leslie, hitting 10 out of 29, wound up two points behind

GUS PROVES EASY MARK FOR TIGER

Coin Clicks Again as Dusek Wins

Jack Conway's famous Magic Coin clicked once more when Ernie Dusek, on the short end of the betting, upset the dope and won from Gus Sonnenberg at the Garden.

By Jack Conway

Gus Sonnenberg, the man who came out of Dartmouth to lift wrestling to the standing of a major sport in the United States, is today nursing a badly injured body after being subjected to a terrific battering as he went down to defeat before youthful Ernie Dusek at the Boston Garden.

A crowd of 6000 pop-eyed wrestling fans saw the famed old Dynamiter crushed in two straight falls by the mat cyclone from the open stretches of Nebraska.

They were surprised when Dusek's aggressiveness and wide-open style of warfare sent Sonny to the mat for the first fall in 24m. 40s., and were stunned when Dusek won the second toss in the startling time of 3m. 58s.

Sonnenberg's physical reserve cracked under the drive of the new mat sensation. He was knocked unconscious when belted to the canvas for the second fall. It was 10 minutes before his frantic seconds, aided by Dr. Fraser, were able to revive him sufficiently to carry him from the ring.

PITIFUL PICTURE

Gus presented a pitiful picture as he was helped through the ropes, and assisted to his dressing room.

The man who has drawn $3,000,000 at wrestling shows in the United States and Canada showed the effects of the frightful hammering he had received from Dusek, and the marks of numerous other gruelling mat battles.

I thought of the night Gene Tunney licked Jack Dempsey in Philadelphia, the night in the Garden when Sonny, fresh from college, won the title from Strangler Lewis.

The crowd lingered around the ring as Sonny's seconds worked over him, and then assisted him to his dressing room. There was a hush as the crowd pulled back to make a path for the old Dynamiter and his handlers.

I saw a veteran mat fan brush away a tear from his cheek. He undoubtedly was thinking of Sonny's days of athletic greatness, of the days when he was king of the wrestlers, and of the roaring thousands that greeted him everywhere he appeared.

Maybe Sonny will still come back. His new matrimonial deal has made him very happy. He told me as he rested in his dressing room that with proper training he still can lick most of the heavyweights. I hope so, but I have some doubts on the matter.

TIRES QUICKLY

It had been a hard, rough match. In the early stages of the contest the old Dynamiter used his flying tackle to rock Dusek. He bombarded him with butts and sent him crashing to the canvas with flying tackles.

At times Dusek sought refuge outside the ropes. Youth, however, turned the tide of battle in his favor, and after 24m. 40s. Dusek won the first fall of the match with an inside crotch hold, body lift and slam.

Sonny didn't seem to have much left when he returned to the mat. He was tired and slow. Dusek swarmed all over him and subjected him to terrific punishment.

He finally nailed Gus with a giant swing and whirled him around a dozen times, and crashed him to the mat. Gus' head hit the canvas with a frightful thud.

The old fighting spirit enabled Sonny to avoid being pinned, but a minute later he was tossed by an inside crotch hold, body lift and slam. Once again his head hit the canvas first which is what knocked him cold.

I felt like standing in salute as they carried Gus past me. I felt as if I had witnessed the passing of a king of sport.

DE GLANE WINS.

Henri De Glane, former world champion and Casey Kazanjian went 20 minutes to a draw.

Joe Malcewicz and Hardy Kruskamp were also on even terms after 20 minutes of stirring grappling.

Everett Marshall of California returned to the Boston wrestling wars and knocked off Boris Demetroff in 10 minutes 55 seconds with an inside crotch, body lift and slam.

It was 50-50 between Hans Steinke and Billy Bartush at the end of 15m. of milling.

John Spellman and Pat O'Hara furnished plenty of action in a 15m. draw.

Len Macaluso won from George Saunders in 7m. 30s., using a flying tackle and body press to win.

Jake Patterson disposed of Cowboy Turner with an inside crotch hold, body lift and slam after 4m. 55s. of wrestling.

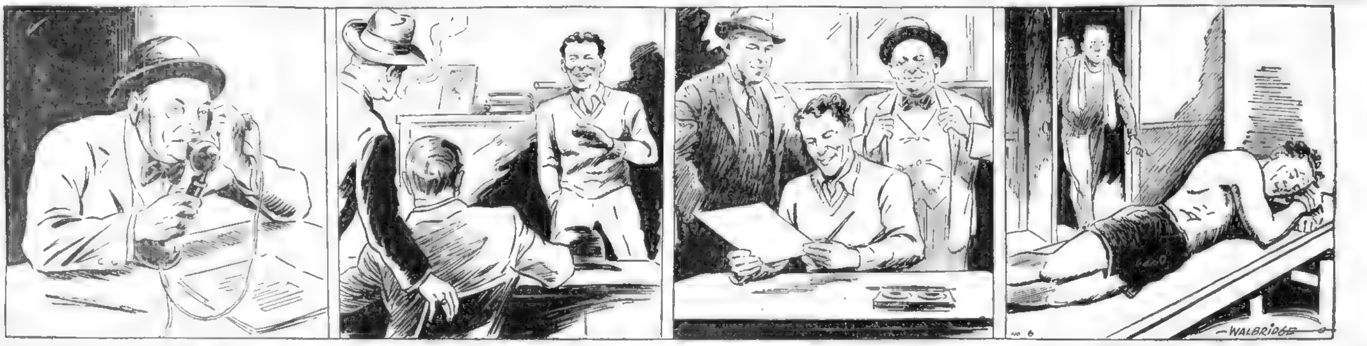
'From Palookas to Primo' — Life of Max Baer

By Al Santoro and John Walbridge

Copyright 1934



PARENTE WARNED BAER IS GOING TO JUMP—

One day Parente and Klatt got the "grapevine" Baer was going to jump to the Dreamland promoters in San Francisco for a fight with Chet Shandel. Shandel was as big as a house and had scored many knockouts across the bay.

Parente had purposely sidetracked any attempts to match Baer with Shandel. Louis said:

MAX COMES INTO THE OFFICE

"Shandel was the only fighter I thought might whip Baer—and I didn't want Baer beaten. But I'd heard the Dreamland promoters were trying to get him for Shandel, and decided to beat them to it. I figured that if Baer wanted to get himself licked, he might as well get beaten right in Oakland, where we had promoted him to $1000 main events."

HE LAUGHS AT FEAR OF SHANDEL

Parente called Baer in his office. He came alone.

"Max," Louis said, "there are two or three fellows I've lined you up to fight and you have your pick. There's a big, rough fellow over in San Francisco, but I think at this time he's a little too tough for you. Chet Shandel!"

Max laughed! "That's the guy I want!"

Louis chuckled, too. He signed Baer to fight Shandel.

BEFORE RING TIME: FAST ASLEEP

Shandel was a two-fisted man, young and strong. He was a murderous puncher when he worked opponents against the ropes. He was installed the favorite. Did that worry Baer? Before ringtime at the Arcadia he was stretched out on a rubbing table—fast asleep.

Women Seek State Title Monday

By Walter Kiley

Winchester Country Club's long and exacting fairways, offering a special premium on distance clouting as well as accuracy and physical stamina, will present a stern test to 84 women golfers who start out in search of the 1934 state title over the 18-hole qualifying route on Monday morning.

The fight to dethrone Mary Parkinson of Dedham, defending champion looks to be an open scramble with no less than six former W. G. A. titlists entered in the lists.

Miss Parkinson is once again an important factor. She has been playing well throughout the spring series of W. G. A. matches.

Among the former champions who will play are Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., of Oakley, six times former champion; Rosamond Vahey of Trapelo; Margaret Curtis of Essex County, a veteran who not only won the W. G. A. title some four or five times in the old days, but the national title no less than five times; Mrs. D. M. Belcher of the home course, who won the state title about a decade ago; and Dorothy Richards of Weston, winner at Salem.

Others who are formidable are Dorothy Hunter, former girls' junior champion and winner of the Townsend Cup at Kernwood last summer; Ruth Batchelder, who, after a winter of Bermuda, is back in the form which made her a threat in the old days, and Mrs. Henri F. Prunaret, Jr., of Charles River, one of the most consistent W. G. A. team match winners.

Sox Send Ace Southpaws After Nats, Following Pennock's Masterpiece

By Bill Grimes

Washington, June 2—Since returning to the East the Red Sox have played the best article of ball they have shown this season, taking two out of three from the Athletics and getting away to a one-game lead over the Senators here by the overwhelming score of 18 to 1.

Today the Red Sox are playing their first doubleheader of the season. Manager Bucky Harris is so set upon cleaning up this series that he has decided to send two more left-handers after the Senators, and has assigned "Lefty" Grove and Fritz Ostermueller to do the twirling this afternoon.

FERRELL FOR RELIEF

Due to the nine run lead the Sox acquired in the first inning, Herb Pennock coasted through to the easiest victory the House of Harris has turned in this spring. It was the first time Pennock had been called upon to go this distance.

Today's Baseball Form

* Braves—Frankhouse.
Dodgers—Leonard.
* Red Sox—Grove and Ostermueller.
Washington—Burke and Thomas.
* Probable winner.

Harris had planned to have Pennock go five or six innings and then retire in favor of Wes Ferrell. Instead Pennock went the entire route, and now Ferrell is available for relief work, if necessary, this afternoon.

After beating St. Louis and Cleveland, Grove was driven to the showers by the Tigers in Detroit last Monday. Grove has never been known to submit gracefully to defeats. He is rarin' to get another victory to his credit. Grove did not have a thing on the ball in Detroit. He realized it before he went to the mound, but, because the staff was pretty much shot to pieces, he decided to go in and take his licking.

HARD LUCK FREDDIE

Ostermueller has been the hard luck pitcher on this trip. He twirled good ball in every game but either he was not given proper support by his mates or he came up with a bad play. As a result he has yet to be officially credited with a victory.

"Dusty" Rhodes will strut his stuff in the getaway game tomorrow. Rhodes is at the peak of his form, having defeated the A's, 2 to 1, on the holiday.

SALEK DEFEATS APICE AGAIN

Portland, Me., June 2—Steve Salek of Lowell repeated his victory of two weeks ago over Paris Apice of Providence in the feature 10-round bout at Exposition Hall.

It was a two-fisted embroglio from start to finish, one of the best seen here in several seasons.

Most of the early rounds were even, but Salek's stiff punching told in the seventh and eighth rounds, where his margin was wide enough to earn him the decision.

Durham, N. C.—Steve Smith, Bridgeport, Conn. lightweight, outclassed Norment Quarles, University of North Carolina, 10 rounds.

Martin Twins Win 4-Ball Tourney

The Martin twins of Watertown, Leo and Eddie, had their second four-ball championship dangling from their belts today.

Winners of the Oakley event earlier in the season, the twins repeated in the Woodland tournament with a card of 67. A field of 69 pairs competed.

A home club combination of Bill Donnelly and Gerry Moore finished second to the schoolboys with a 68.

There was one 69, by Fritz Warren, Woodland, and Searles Reed of Thorny Lea, and one 70, by Win Trowbridge of Cohasset and Bunny Wilson of South Shore.

HELEN JACOBS IN 2 FINALS

Paris, June 2—Helen Hull Jacobs, U. S. women's singles champion, was to meet Peggy Scriven of England, defending champion, in the final round of the French hard court singles today. Miss Jacobs has yet to win the French championship.

The California girl also is in the doubles final, which will be played tomorrow. She and Sarah Palfrey of Boston, 1932 U. S. doubles champion, defeated Susan Noel of England and Jessie Jedrezowski of Poland in their semi-final match.

Sailors Best Fight Fans, Runyon

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1934, Universal Service, Inc.

New York, June 2—This writer was out mingling with the sailors and marines on the Louisville, talking fights and fighters. They are greatly interested in the Carnera-Baer match. Most of them seem to favor Baer.

Our sailors and marines are the greatest fight fans in the world. Both branches have produced heavyweight champions, the marines Gene Tunney, the sailors Jack Sharkey. The navy has one of the finest referees that ever crawled through the ropes, Lieutenant Jack Kennedy, suggested as the third man in the ring with Carnera and Baer in the event an outsider is brought in.

I asked the deep sea boys if the navy has any more potential Tunneys or Sharkeys at this time. They thought not. They said the new rule prohibiting navy gladiators from fighting "on the beach," making them more amateurs than anything else, has retarded the development of navy fighters.

"On the beach" means on shore.

In other times a sailor fighter could take professional bouts at clubs on shore, and it did not affect his status as a contender for navy titles.

This meant a bit of extra money to the sailor battlers, as well as valuable experience. But often professional promoters were inclined to take advantage of the sailors, besides the short bouts cut into time that belonged to Uncle Sam, so now the sailors do their fighting "at home," so to speak.

Perhaps it is better so.

Game time—9:30 a. m.

By Bill Connell

Boston English and Boston Latin nines collided this morning at Alumni Field, Boston College, in their annual public school classic. The game fired the opening gun in the day's battery of thrilling school contests.

Andover's invasion of Exeter for the track games, the eighth annual Fitchburg relay carnival, the Needham interscholastic track games for small schools, and in baseball Malden at Everett, Revere at Medford, Dedham at Norwood and Lawrence at Haverhill helped make today's school slate the best of the season.

The English-Latin meeting provided a close fight. English was unbeaten up to today's game, in city competition, while Latin had lost only to Mechanic Arts. Bill Ohrenberger, English coach, sent Gus Rasmussen to the mound. Charley Fitzgerald ordered "Bud" Davis to toss for Latin.

Rasmussen took an enviable record of four victories and no defeats into the game. Davis' average was not quite so high but he had been a consistently fine tosser all season, and commanded the stuff to chill the English attack.

Andover, winner of the Harvard crown, was a heavy favorite to conquer Exeter in the track and field stunts. Andover's Adam Wolf and Henry Fullan in the dashes, Herb Furse in the quarter, Sherman Brayton in the half, Bill Watson in the mile, Kevin Rafferty in the hurdles, John Castle in the hammer and discus, Bob Hite in the shot, all were favored or even money bets in their specialties.

Exeter, however, had a real chance to provide an upset. Nick Kerr in the century was quite capable of winning over Wolf, Stannard in the half had a fine chance, Johnny Herrick, Ben Fisher, Emmons Turner, Bob Campbell and Frank Wilson in the weights, Johnny Donovan in the high hurdles and running broad jump, Bob Campbell, Gus Beltzner and Win Pettingill in the pole vault, carried enough strength to match Andover's best efforts.

In the Fitchburg relays Hamilton High defended the Class A crown, Fairhaven was Class B defender, Watertown Class C and Medford Class D. With a nicely balanced schedule the games offered fast action.

Belmont defended its Needham games crown, with Needham a strong contender. Milton, Natick, Lexington, Framingham and Wellesley were other schools competing.

Revere had a chance to tie for the Greater Boston League baseball title as it went to the Fulton street field in Medford. Medford's league leader sagged a bit since the loss of Art Johns, second base thunderbolt. During this stretch Revere made a great recovery in the title fight and so today had visions of the crown as it stepped into the final league game.

DUSTY PRINCESS BEST BET

AMERICAN OAKS BELAIR ENTRY OBJECTIVE

By Dave Wilson

(Selections Made for a Fast Track)

BEST BET—DUSKY PRINCESS

DUSKY PRINCESS and Fleam which will run coupled as the Belair Stud and Wheatley Stable entry should have little trouble in finishing as named today in the $4500 added Coaching Club's American Oaks, nine and three-furlong feature at Belmont Park.

Fleam and Dusky Princess drubbed this same field with ease about 10 days ago. At the finish of that race Fleam was five lengths in advance of her stablemate which in turn was three lengths in front of Lady Reigh.

The allotment of weights for this event has given Dusky Princess a royal chance to reverse the tables on her stablemate. She has been assigned 111 pounds, one less than in her last start. Fleam which toted 109 pounds in that winning effort will be obliged to carry the crushing impost of 121.

Mountain Elk, Judge Schilling, Scotch Gold

FIRST RACE—Seven furlongs [illegible] Prob.

[illegible]

This event shapes up as a two horse affair between MOUNTAIN ELK and JUDGE SCHILLING. Mountain Elk has been racing well of late and he should cop the verdict. Judge Schilling has been freshened up since his Jamaica campaign. The Judge is an odd fellow and he may need a race. SCOTCH GOLD has gone back a long ways. Only a few seasons back, he was racing with the best.

Amagansett, Azucar, Rocky Run

SECOND RACE [illegible]

[illegible]

Rigan McKinney believes Amagansett is the equal of Carandagas, rated the best jumper on this side of the Atlantic. McKinney has both jumpers in his barn so he should know what he is talking about. AZUCAR was a top notch performer last season. He has been assigned 153 pounds, top weight, but if up to a good effort he should prove dangerous. ROCKY RUN'S last was a big improvement. If the top pair makes any mistakes he may get it all.

Go Quick, New Flag, Sunned

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs [illegible] Prob.

[illegible]

GO QUICK is the most improved juvenile racing around New York. In her last start she trimmed King's Pleasure, No Sault and other fast ones. King's Pleasure came right back off that effort to defeat Gay Schultz. NEW FLAG mastered the top one over at Jamaica, but I don't think she will be able to repeat the trick now that Go Quick has reached her true form. SUNNED has been racing close up with good ones.

Dusky Princess, Fleam, Lady Reigh

FOURTH RACE—One and [illegible]

[illegible]

This looks like a gift for the Belair Wheatley entry. Either appears capable of winning although I prefer DUSKY PRINCESS at the weights. Weight and all, FLEAM should have little trouble in downing LADY REIGH. The latter was eight lengths in the rear at the finish of their last outing. With little or practically nothing left in the race Lady Reigh should snare the minor award.

Good Advice, Thursday, Springsteel

FIFTH RACE One mile Probable

[illegible]

I'm going to string along with GOOD ADVICE in this event, despite the fact that I believe he would be better suited at a shorter distance. He is the speed of this party and just looks like a question of him being able to go the distance at top speed. He finished second to Halcyon a few days ago in a seven-furlong sprint. In that effort he gave every indication of being able to carry his speed at a longer distance. THURSDAY defeated Kievex in his last. With a little improvement he may be dangerous. SPRINGSTEEL with his well suited by all conditions will be should prove a dangerous contender.

Tempestous, Col Greene, Arbitrary

SIXTH RACE—Five furlongs Probable

[illegible]

TEMPESTOUS has been working like a house on fire in the mornings. He was well beaten off by Plat Eye and Psychic Bid in his last, but that test should serve to put him on edge for this affair. His handlers must have thought right well of him to place him with Plat Eye and that sort. COL GREENE has a good racing record. In most of his efforts, he has been thereabouts at the finish. He looms as the main danger. ARBITRARY brought a big price at the Saratoga yearling sales last summer. To date most of his efforts have been creditable, therefore he must be accorded some sort of a chance.

Pending, Portfolio, Outbound

SEVENTH RACE One mile Probable

[illegible]

This is the worst race of the day. PENDING won a race of this sort over at Jamaica. That effort repeated would make him the winner of this affair. PORTFOLIO has a second to Pretty Wise to recommend him for the place. OUTBOUND is the class of this affair, but he hasn't been out for some time. If right, he may take it all.

CAVALCADE 2-1 IN RICH DERBY

Washington Park, Ill., June 2.—Cavalcade, winner of the Kentucky Derby, was a 2-1 favorite today to do what no other colt has been able to do for nearly 50 years—win both the Kentucky and American Derbies.

The Brookmeade entry was favored in the latter event despite the fact that he was giving away eight pounds to Discovery, which chased him home in the Kentucky classic, 10 pounds to Mata Hari, and 3 pounds to Singing Wood, winner of the recent Withers.

WIND, SEA HALT TRIAL RACE

By Associated Press

Harwich, Eng., June 2.—The first trial race for Endeavour, T. O. M. Sopwith's America's cup challenger, today was halted by a high wind and a rough sea after Velsheda, one of the other starters, broke a boom in the heavy going.

Velsheda, which many think is a faster boat than Endeavour, as now rigged, made a perfect start and had a two minute lead on Sopwith's yacht when her boom carried away and she had to withdraw from the race. The other five, including Endeavour, reefed their sails soon after fearing similar fate.

W. L. Stephenson, Velsheda's owner, said a new boom will be obtained and she will be ready to go out again when the trials are resumed next week.

Others racing today were Kay, George's Britannia, the late Sir Thomas Lipton's last challenger, Shamrock V, Astra and Candida.

American Entry in Trial Gallop

By Associated Press

London, June 2.—America's one entry in the Epsom Derby to be run next Wednesday, William Woodward's Bondsman, today had an exercise gallop of five furlongs over the Lowry, along with several other derby hopefuls.

The Aga Khan's Umidwar, second to Colombo in the betting at 10 to 1, worked the full derby distance of a mile and a half under his veteran jockey Harry Wragg, but his time was not announced. Colombo merely jogged a mile.

LAST CHANCE IN BLONDE HUNT

The "Unknown Blonde" was found in the record breaking time of a single minute yesterday afternoon by Clarence Christianson, Arlington, and young Mr. Christianson is richer today by $10. She was found on Tremont street near Avery street.

When asked what he was going to do with his ten dollars Clarence laughingly said he was going to have a good time.

The "Unknown Blonde" is on the streets again today and this is your last chance to find her and win the $10 offered for the lucky finder. She will be on Boylston street between Washington and Tremont streets between 2 and 3 p. m.

The "Unknown Blonde" hunt is sponsored by the Boston Evening American and the RKO Boston Theater in conjunction with the showing of the motion picture "The Unknown Blonde," which is an amazing expose of the divorce racket as practiced in different states.

It is necessary, when you approach "The Unknown Blonde," that you have an American in your hand and you must repeat the following words to her exactly: "You are the 'Unknown Blonde,' for whose capture the Boston Evening American and the RKO Boston Theater offer a cash reward."

401st Telegraph Holds Reunion

Sports luncheon, dinner and a dance will feature the reunion of the 401st Telegraph Battalion at the Sandy Burr Country Club, Wayland today.

Joseph D. McLaughlan, supervisor of installation in Boston, is in charge. Guests include Matt B. Jones, president of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company and other executives.

CLARENCE CHRISTIANSON MYSTERY BLONDE

It took Clarence Christianson, of Melrose street, Arlington, just a moment to take advantage of the stroll of the "Mystery Blonde" along Tremont street yesterday and collect the $10 award offered by the Boston Evening American and the R. K. O. Boston theater. Here is Clarence with the Mystery Blonde. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

IMPS' OUTPOSTS NEAR CITY

One big reason to Boston are the inexorable Imps. Monday the couriers should be able to give definite news of the dread advance.

Watch Monday's Boston Evening American for news of the fateful march on this city.

And when they get here this newspaper will be blamed for a city full of snarling people hung in a battle to control the Imps. The happy grinning people will be winning.

Everybody is wild over this little puzzle of the numbers, which appears so innocent but which turns out to be maddening.

Millions at home and abroad are Imp-conscious, and daily and nightly they are jiggling the numbers and muttering beneath their breaths or smiling and chortling—the mood dependent on their success.

Watch for the Imps! They are getting closer to Boston!

U. S. BIRTH RATE TAKES DROP

By Associated Press

Washington, June 2—A plunge in the United States' birth rate—certain to carry the 1933 figure to a new low, and still dropping—was disclosed today by the bureau of vital statistics.

"We did not expect a decrease as rapid as it is," said Dr. Timothy F. Murphy, chief of the bureau, reporting on the plummet-like movement. "A situation thought to have extended over a long period of years has been hastened."

Margaret Sanger, veteran birth control exponent, was quick to call the declining birth rate a general boon as well as a triumph for her cause.

"The birth rate can well afford to go down," she said. "A decreased birth rate doesn't mean a population decrease. Fewer babies are born, but with much less infant mortality."

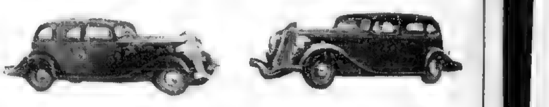
"HUDSONS AND TERRAPLANES ARE FAST SELLING CARS"
—Says Harold L. O'Neil



This year's Hudsons and Terraplanes can most easily be described, in a few words, as cars that possess luxury merged with ruggedness . . . fleetness with endurance. They are the last word in automobile smartness and performance.

There is always a ready market for used Hudsons and Terraplanes, because the careful, excellent workmanship that has gone into their making guarantees them long life and extra thousands of miles of riding pleasure.

The Harold L. O'Neil Co., of Dorchester, has sold many cars through American-Advertiser Automobiles-For-Sale Ads, and know they will sell many more. Ever so many other automobile dealers have had the same experience and feel the same way. That's why you will find an excellent selection of all makes and models of used cars advertised daily on the Classified Pages of the American and Advertiser.

MADGE TALKS TO AVIS ARLEN AND LEARNS, WITH SURPRISE, THAT THAT SCHEMING YOUNG WOMAN HAS BEEN EMPLOYED BY VERITZEN AS "PRIVATE SECRETARY."

CHAPTER 53

IF THE [illegible] had [illegible] from the [illegible] fixed me with [illegible] I could not have been more astonished [illegible] I was a [illegible] Avis Arlen's [illegible] the wire from Philip Veritzen's office.

I do not think that [illegible] in my life have I [illegible] nance [illegible] woman [illegible] approach [illegible] feeling [illegible] Philip Veritzen [illegible] the [illegible] first [illegible] to The [illegible] I was [illegible] first [illegible] background of [illegible] part of Mrs. Arlen [illegible] Avis, widow and daughter [illegible] his oldest and best [illegible] to wean Noel's affections [illegible] Mary and attach them to Avis.

A Reminder of Grace Draper

I have dreaded [illegible] more. The feeling toward [illegible] Draper, for instance, [illegible] lifetime held [illegible] fear and—yes, I must [illegible] jealous hatred [illegible] which the [illegible] any of Avis Arlen [illegible] in me.

Perhaps this was because Grace Draper, when she was [illegible] was my own personal problem, while I felt that Avis Arlen was striking at the happiness of a child dear to me; but I also knew that the loathing and contempt I felt for the girl had no touch of dread. In the hands of any experienced woman, who could understand her ruthlessness and cattiness, she was as [illegible] in the hands of the [illegible] I had [illegible] her once. I was sure that I could do it again, if this reappearance of hers in New York, when I had supposed her a thousand miles away, signified any attempt upon her part [illegible] to interfere with the happiness of Mary and Noel.

A perfunctory curiosity was not only permitted but expected of me, I was sure, but my response to her sugary, "Don't you remember me? I am Avis Arlen," masked a real and avid desire to know the reason for her presence in Philip Veritzen's office.

"Avis Arlen!" I exclaimed. "Of course, I remember you. But I am so surprised! I thought you were in Chicago."

I detested the hypocrisy with which I forced my voice to cordial inflections, matching hers. But I had no scruples where Avis Arlen was concerned. I knew what detestation must be in her heart toward me for the way in which I had [illegible] her [illegible] Mary at Christmas time and [illegible] manner [illegible] I had given [illegible] of my husband's young [illegible] I had realized [illegible] occasions that she was unquenchable in the face of rebuffs, and she evidently [illegible] to keep up the pose of affectionate admiration for me, which she had adopted [illegible] since my first meeting with her.

Her [illegible] my [illegible] hom [illegible] as she answered [illegible] Chicago [illegible] a few days [illegible] and [illegible] now I'm [illegible] stay [illegible] heard [illegible] Mrs. Graham [illegible] I suppose [illegible] what has happened to me?"

"No, dear," I said [illegible] I have heard nothing. What is it? Tell me."

"Why, didn't Uncle Phil or Noel tell you?" she asked, [illegible] Noel's name the affected, baby [illegible] intonation which had so annoyed me [illegible]

"No, they [illegible] ing of you," I [illegible] of my voice [illegible] If it were her mother's death of which she wo [illegible] tainly had not affected her spirits perceptibly.

"It's simply tra [illegible] exclaimed, but her tone [illegible] bear [illegible] the words. "Mamma lost [illegible] all of her [illegible] Our [illegible] what stocks [illegible] go to work [illegible] It wonderful of Uncle [illegible] give me this place, as private secretary in his own office."

"Private secretary!" I echoed incredulously. "Where is Miss Brown?"

"Oh, she's here, too," Avis returned, and in her voice was all the condescension which an unduly pompous head of a department would [illegible] humblest of her [illegible] Phil would [illegible] to make room for some one he wanted. But so glad I can help him! He needs somebody around here who knows him intimately, I think. I'm sure I'm going to save him a lot of wea [illegible]

A Ludicrous Situation

I nearly choked in the attempt to avoid laughing [illegible] I knew the [illegible] but the [illegible] Philip Veritzen was [illegible] her a place in his office [illegible] use she might [illegible] to [illegible] was [illegible] seen Miriam Brown [illegible] Miriam Brown [illegible] private secretary for [illegible] between him and [illegible] body [illegible] mam [illegible] had been [illegible] Veritzen [illegible] behind her [illegible] supposed [illegible] Avis Arlen [illegible] present [illegible] I [illegible] parrying and [illegible]

FRAGRANT NEW BATH ADJUNCT IS GOOD AS QUICK, SOOTHING PLUNGE

Afternoon Hats Are Important

The smart tailored hat, left, is for wear with a town suit. Its crown is navy blue felt and its brim is stiffened waffle pique which resembles straw laid on in a series of bias circles. Below, a more formal hat of brown tapcord, trimmed with a cluster of dark grapes whose stems form the band. The gloves are matched to the [illegible]

By PRUNELLA WOOD

ANY WOMAN knows that [illegible]

Right, a very sophisticated quilted blue toyo hat, bent up in back to reveal the coiffure, and trimmed with citron ribbon and matching patent leather flowers.

It is the hat, moreover, which must preserve a woman's proportions, as well as show off her gown, and she should let no one devil her into buying a model that saws her off, makes her look top heavy, or suggests that her head and neck are too long or too short.

• • •

In afternoon hats it is a cinch that they must become one when sitting as well as when walking. Luncheon and cafe tables, not to mention contract tables, have a way of hiding all the best points of an ensemble except the hat and [illegible] it sets off a bodice beneath.

• • •

The three models sketched are nicely assorted for the three major types of afternoon costumes. They are: top, for the classic tailleur; center, for the chiffon, wedding reception sort of getup; and, bottom, for the print or plain dressmaker model, good for general afternoon wear in place of a tailleur.

"Fickleness" Is Normal in Child

By Lisa Grenelle

HAVE YOU HAD occasion to be at first amused, then disturbed and finally a little shocked by rapid changes in the personnel of your child's intimates?

Is first this little girl your daughter's "best friend," then that, and in another month at most does a third little girl stand first in your child's affections while former favorites fall out of the picture so entirely that not even their names seem to be remembered?

• • •

Does this mean that Janie is naturally shallow; that she is not loyal and will never be emotionally stable? That perhaps she cannot [illegible] along for any length of time with anyone? Surely that would be distressing!

But it doesn't mean that. Possibly Janie is too shallow to "rub noses" comfortably with any one pal for any considerable period, but it is more likely that she is just a healthy, alert little girl, hungry for living and experiences, growing rapidly, developing normally.

• • •

This is good in a child, although a bad sign in an adult. While it tends to show maladjustment, instability and shallowness if a grown woman constantly changes her friends, it shows nothing of the sort in a little girl. Again, if a man is not on speaking terms with his last year's buddy this indicates that he "wears a chip on his shoulder," is disloyal and difficult, but it may mean nothing of the sort in a growing boy.

A child, in order to develop, must be essentially selfish. He must be absorbed by the process of his own growth alone. He has a sense only of his need.

• • •

A child changes friends often because, on account of his rapid growth his needs change. Each new friendship supports some weakness or affords an experience necessary to further that particular phase of growth through which the child is passing.

Why can't the child make new friends and at the same time keep up with the old? First, because a boy is too concentrated; it is all or nothing with a growing child. Second, he is too logical. He has no further need for his former friends, so why clutter up his time and affections with them?

Care of Blankets

IF YOU WANT to add years and beauty to your blankets' life, don't overwash them. Washing and rinsing waters must always be softened and if you use a mild softening agent allow time for it to work. Remove the scum and then add soap to the water.

How to Smoothe Out Lines on Forehead

Question: I am 23 years old and I have an extremely dry skin. I've tried washing without soap for a few days but my skin never appears clean. I use tepid water. My forehead is wrinkled with rows and rows of tiniest lines. If you could suggest something to remedy these blemishes, I would be very grateful.

J. W. R. Stoughton

Answer: Since your skin is dry you should use cream for cleansing every night. You really can get your skin just as clean with cream as you can with soap and it removes makeup more effectively. You need an oily cream, one that will penetrate the pores and lift up the dust and makeup. Remove with tissues, then apply again, leave on a minute and remove. Use soap and water about twice a week. If you feel that you must, you may [illegible] it with cream cleansing, then apply your nourishing cream.

To treat your forehead: smooth on nourishing cream. Then, using the tips of the first fingers on each hand, beginning at the center of the forehead over the nose, work with gentle rotary movement toward the temples. Cover all the forehead in this way, and repeat movement several times. Then place palms of hands on eyebrows and massage upward to hairline with definite lifting movements. Use lots of cold water on your forehead and a good astringent to tighten the skin.

Facial Hair

Question—Would you please tell me if peroxide and ammonia is a good bleach for hair on the face. If so, how often should it be used, and how long should it take to bleach very black hair? Does it discourage the hair growth. M. L., South End.

Answer: Peroxide and ammonia combined is a good bleach. Do not, however, make the solution too strong, as it is quite drying to the skin. The right proportion for the face is one-half teaspoonful ammonia to three tablespoonfuls peroxide. It will lighten black hair but, naturally, it will take longer than it would if your hair was lighter. It lightens the hair, deadens the growth, and makes it less noticeable.

"Hapsburg Lip"

Question: My lower lip protrudes quite a bit, that is, the under part below the red of the lip. Could you suggest a way of reducing it by exercise or some other manner?

E. R., Winthrop

Answer: The best way to reduce the size of your lip is by massage. Use the tips of two fingers (both hands) beginning at the center of the lip and working outward with firm, pressing movement. When making up your lips, use very little red on the lower lip and do not let it extend below the lip. Make the lower lip as inconspicuous as possible.

Lotion That Quickly Erases Skin Eruptions Another Beauty Discovery

A NEW soap wash-cloth, that smells like geranium blooms in a window box and that makes possible a very refreshing sponge-bath in exactly one minute's time, is described today by Juliet Shelby. Ida Lupino, Hollywood star, looks as though the heat and humidity held no terrors for her behind this attractive bath screen.

By Juliet Shelby

NO MORE THAN YOU WOULD DREAM of walking down Tremont street in a diaphanous frock that was made for waltzes and moonlight can you do without a breath every now and then of the country where geraniums bloom riotously in window-boxes everywhere and the air has that far-off tang of woods in springtime.

Few of us can afford to take "a month off in the country" where there is no noise, no smoke, no fog. The best we can do for ourselves when this mood makes life more difficult is to seek a refreshing pause under a cooling shower.

The morning bath is the first call of re-awakened life—the antidote for the laziness of sleep. But how about those other times—moments in the middle of a busy day, or before dinner when the time and place is incongruous for bathing?

I know of a delightful all-over sponge to fit just such needs. This sponge—or bath—requires one minute and leaves you smelling like a lovely geranium window-box for hours to come.

It comes in a neat little oilcloth envelope and is no larger than a pocket handkerchief. All you have to do is run a bowl of water, dip the cloth in and rub your skin until you are lathered from head to foot. Next you dip a towel and remove the soap. You feel so refreshed and fragrant that you probably won't want to dry yourself but it's not a bad idea if you don't want the sniffles later. Your bath is now over—and the time record was exactly one minute.

• • •

These geranium soap cloths come in sets of three and are ideal for travelling and week-ending. Can you imagine anything more advantageous for summer use? You will be buying a couple of sets for the country, where bathrooms don't always boast of showers and hot-water on tap.

• • •

Are you really serious about getting rid of pimples? If you have ever felt a pimple manifesting itself under your skin and you wanted desperately to ward it off before you stepped into your loveliest evening gown and on to the dance, I know of a lotion that will help you.

An application of this liquid—which by the way imparts a fierce little sting for a few seconds—and the pimple gradually vanishes. If the eruption has already reached a head, there is [illegible] do for it. But if it [illegible] you can effectively nip it in the bud.

• • •

By telephoning to Juliet Shelby, Lib. 4000, you can learn the name of this lotion and the geranium scented soap wash cloths and where they may be purchased. If you prefer writing for this information send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Pandora Tells You

DEAR PANDORA:

I read in your column one day last week about a man who craved a little loneliness. His wife [illegible] to hie himself to a lighthouse and there, with a raft of good books and tasty canned goods spend his declining days in peace and quiet.

Well, he can have it. I'm [illegible] a prolong [illegible] for just that type of existence and, Pandora, I not only can't take [illegible] but I don't seem to [illegible] how to [illegible] My wife [illegible] a perfect sphinx [illegible] although I have [illegible] word for her. I don't know how [illegible] ever [illegible] I'm a very [illegible] fellow, quite a card, in fact, when I get together with the boys, and this silence of the tomb pervading my home life is beginning to get on my nerves. I don't believe my wife [illegible] A-No. 1 housekeeper and a splendid cook, but sometimes I think it would be preferable to be married to a gabby rattlepate, who let dust and dishes stack up until the board of health complained.

If anybody asked me I couldn't say honestly that I want a divorce from my wife. It's just that I'm beginning to break under the loud silence. What do you suggest?

Lowell. FRANK X. L.

DEAR FRANK X. L.:

[illegible] cracker. I'm told this is sufficient to rile any modern, up-and-coming parrot. Then start the radio and the rest will take care of itself. There isn't the sneed of a doubt that you'll have enough pandemonium to reconstruct the Tower of Babel scene so far as [illegible] And it won't be long, brother, before you'll yearn for the erstwhile peace and quiet you rail against. PANDORA

Daily Suggestion FOR Self-Improvement

Any person who uses nicknames on personal cards, business cards, stationery and commercial signs not only shows very bad tasted but heaps indignities upon his own head. The world cannot be expected to take seriously a person who uses such a form as "Art B. Jones."

Shower, Rub-Down

BECAUSE EXPOSURE to sun and wind frequently tends to toughen the skin, it is wise to have a bottle of lavender, pine or verbena cologne handy for a brisk-rub down after a game of tennis or golf. Use it before your shower and see that the water is neither too hot or too cold. This combination of rub-down and mild shower will protect your skin and keep it stimulated.

Pre-Emptive Bids Require Long Trump Suits

By Josephine Culbertson

Pre-emptive Bids

Pre-emptive Opening bids are [illegible] effective at the Contract table, often not so much because the contract undertaken is fulfilled as because they perform [illegible] a paying [illegible] ally through preventing opponents, who may have very fine hands, from reaching makable contracts — possibly games — of their own.

The theory of Pre-emptive bids is, of course, extremely simple. A pre-emptive bid must have as [illegible] backbone a long trump suit [illegible] reasonably favorable distribution, that the loss will not be great so far as that suit is concerned. With length in one suit, there is necessarily shortness and perhaps voids in the others, and the design of the Pre-emptive Opening bid is thus not only to seek to buy a contract—perhaps a losing one—cheaply before the opponents can find out whether their hands fit for a game or Slam, but also to camouflage the defensive weakness of the hand. When a Pre-emptive game bid is made and the Dummy is laid down containing two or three tricks in side suits, the Declarer feels reasonably well satisfied, even though one opponent has doubled, indicating one or more trump tricks.

North and South vulnerable.

North:
♠ 9
♡ A K 7 5
◇ J 9 8 6
♣ K 9 6 2

West:
♠ A 10 5 4
♡ Q 9 3 2
◇ 7 5
♣ A 10 7

East:
♡ 10 6 4
◇ A Q 4 3

South:
♠ K Q J 8 7 6 3 2
♡ J 8
◇ K 10 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	4 ♠	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

South's Opening bid of four spades was based upon what he considered the probability of eight tricks in his own hand—in other words, it was an overbid of two tricks. West, with two trump tricks and the Ace of another suit, felt that here was a splendid opportunity to punish vulnerable opponents for overbidding. Hence the Double.

The Opening lead was a heart, and when the Dummy went down everything from the South standpoint appeared serene as but two diamonds and one spade should normally be lost. The Ace of hearts was played to the first [illegible] and a spade [illegible] led. When East did not follow, the situation now appeared quite different. West won this trick with the Ace and returned another heart. The King was played, and the nine of diamonds was led from Dummy. Fortunately for South, East did not play the Ace, and the contract of four-odd, which should have been defeated one trick, was fulfilled, South losing only one diamond and two spades.

While West's Double was apparently very close, it was fully justified in the scoring situation, unlike other close Doubles which prove of assistance to the Declarer.

South erred in his play. He should have visioned the necessity of the diamond finesse and taken it at once. In other words, even before playing a card from Dummy he should have made a general plan of the entire play.

Oven Dinners Save Time When Mercury Climbs

By MARTHA LEE

WHILE THE HOUSECLEANING may be finished, you no doubt are finding that there are still many tasks that keep you so busy that the preparation of dinner seems to consume entirely too much time.

It need not require so much attention and time if you plan oven dinners for the days when you want to be away from the kitchen. It does require a little planning but you will be well repaid.

Much of the preparation can be done in the morning when the breakfast dishes are being done. Following are some menus and recipes that offer possibilities for appetizing oven dinners that are quickly prepared:

Meat Loaf Franconia Potatoes
Baked Cauliflower
Tomato and Lettuce Salad
Hot Rolls Butter
Baked Apple Delight
Coffee

MEAT LOAF

2 pounds hamburg steak
1 egg
½ onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
½ cup milk
1 cup bread crumbs
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Have the meat chopped fine, mix it thoroughly with the unbeaten egg, bread crumbs, seasonings and liquid. Form into a flat loaf and fry in hot drippings until well browned, about 15 minutes. Remove to a well greased baking plate or baking pan, and lay strips of bacon over the meat. Place in a moderate oven, 350 deg. F., and complete cooking, allowing 45 minutes. Serves 6.

Scalloped Ham and Potatoes
Baked Carrots Cabbage Salad
Corn Bread Butter
Apricot Upside Down Cake
Coffee

HAM AND SCALLOPED POTATOES

1 thick slice ham
4 cups sliced raw potatoes
1½ cups thin white sauce
Salt and pepper

Cut a slice of ham one-half inch thick and flour lightly. Fry each side until it begins to brown, then put into a baking dish, cover with the white sauce and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for half an hour. Turn and bake another half hour. Cut pared potatoes into medium thick slices, boil until almost tender and drain. Arrange in the casserole, lay the slice of ham on top and bake 25 minutes. Serves 4 to 5.

Swiss Steak
Baked Potatoes Casserole of Corn
Tomato Lettuce Salad
French Dressing
Stuffed Baked Apples Coffee
Serves 4 Time: 45 minutes
Temperature: 375 Deg. F.

SWISS STEAK

1 pound round steak, cut 1½ inches thick
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1-3 cup flour
2 to 3 tablespoons bacon drippings.
1 onion (medium)
¼ green pepper
1 cup boiling water

Wipe meat with damp cloth, rub seasoning into both sides of meat. Sprinkle one side with half the flour. Pound it into meat with hammer or the edge of thick plate. Turn and do the same to the other side. Melt drippings in small Dutch oven or iron skillet with cover. Brown meat well on both sides. Add sliced onion and diced pepper. Pour over boiling water. Cover utensil tightly and continue cooking in 375 deg. F. oven for 45 minutes. Add more seasoning and thickening to gravy just before serving if desired.

TOMORROW'S MENU

GIRL IN THE FAMILY -:- A Choice Between Marriage for Love or Loyalty -:- By Beatrice Burton

Susan Decides to Wear Stunning Party Dress to Attract New Roomer at House

SYNOPSIS

Susan Broderick, young and pretty member of a poor but aristocratic family, is engaged to Wallace Steffen, promising young [illegible]. Susan is exceptionally fond of Wallace but is not sure that she loves him. Although she doesn't realize it, Susan is more attracted [illegible] Allen Sholes, the new roomer, whom her snobbish relatives ignore. Uncle Worthy, his wife Edna and Aunt Lutie, still consider themselves the cream of society and will not tolerate anyone they regard beneath them. That is why they discourage Susan's and John's (her brother) friendship for Uncle Arthur Cullen and his family, their late mother's relatives. A few days before Christmas, John tired of his relatives' superior attitude, upbraids them for being snobbish. He stalks out of the room, asking Susan to go with him to the Cullens, who were always ready for company. Fearing family disapproval, Susan refuses.

Just then Allen appears and John invites him to go to a place where there's "real" people. Wallace calls but Susan cannot warm to his caresses. He speaks of the Country Club house he is interested in for their future home, but Susan is not enthusiastic for the reason that the present owners are forced to give it up because of financial reverses. Christmas morning, Morris Broderick, Susan's father, stuns the family with the news that he is to marry Mrs. Hopper, a widow.

CHAPTER XIV

The door of the pantry swung open and Anna came in bringing the coffee and a tray loaded with Christmas [illegible] everyone in the family. She always crocheted things [illegible] nightgown tops for the three women and neckties for [illegible] men.

Looking at her, good-natured and comfortable and reliable, Susan realized that if any one person had brought herself and John up, that person was Anna. She had always packed their lunches for school, run after them with raincoats in wet weather, mended tears in their clothes before Aunt Edna should find them and scold about them.

"Something nice from Mr. Sweetie, hmm?" she asked, pausing behind Susan's chair to admire the wrist watch. "He paid a lot of money for that, I guess."

"His name is Mr. Steffen, Anna," Lutie said sharply, looking at her with disfavor. The family had never been quite satisfied with Anna. She might work for them twelve hours a day, and usually did, but they were never pleased with her manners as a servant. She was forever forgetting to say "Mr. Broderick's residence," when she answered the telephone, and she often forgot to cover the palm of her hand with a napkin when she was handing the plates around the table. She listened at the crack of the pantry door to the talk that went on at the table, too, and did other little things that got on the nerves of the old members of the family.

"Mr. Steffen," she said now, all apology.

"Excuse me," she continued after a second. "I like to tell you something—In my country on Christmas if you take some stranger into the house and feed him you get the good luck all the year."

She inclined her blond head toward the hall, and, listening, Susan could hear Mr. Sholes coming down the stairs, evidently on his way to buy his breakfast.

HOLD OPEN HOUSE

"What I think is this—maybe we could give Mr. Sholes something to eat now," she finished in a low voice. "I mean it's Christmas day, and—"

"I understand, Anna," said Uncle Worthy, frowning at her over the top of his nose-pinchers. "That's not the custom in America." He seemed actually to shove her out of the dining room with a long wave of his hand. "You may go now. We'll ring when we need you."

The Brodericks held open house every Christmas afternoon from four to seven.

The same people always came to shake hands, drift out into the dining room for eggnog and fruitcake, and then go away—to reappear at the [illegible] Christmas.

Massed Bands Air Concert Today

By N. F. T.

An out of the ordinary band broadcast has been scheduled to occupy the "red" network of NBC facilities late this afternoon. Edwin Franko Goldman, prominent musical director, leads some 5000 or more musicians in a special concert to be wafted out of Des Moines, Iowa. Radio relay is through WEEI in these parts, the time between 5 30 and 6 o'clock this evening.

Goldman is acting as the judge in a country wide contest of selected band groups, the finals coming to pass today at Drake University in Des Moines. As the honorary chairman of the [illegible] contest [illegible] to locate the winner of the competition, as well as wield the guest baton while the above [illegible] concert holds forth on the coast to coast air waves.

Comedians can come and comedians can go. Indeed many have gone, in the estimation of this ether entry recorder, but still a guy named Joe Cook is due to win a high road way few of us realize the significance of at this minute. Stage and screen have brought Joe most of the fame he now enjoys. However, listeners on the air are in for something splendid when they hear more of the original comedy chatter of which Joe Cook is naturally capable.

Forget for example (WEEI) there is another "House Party" program ready and waiting at 9 o'clock, with Joe Cook in the comedian role.

Listen awhile and write the writer if he doesn't split one of your sides, or both.

Floyd Gibbons happens to be one more favorite where this colyum takes shape. Somehow or other Floyd lends an electric effervescence to everything he says (WEEI) and drives his every discourse home with a bang. Lend old friend Floyd an ear this evening between 8 30 and 9 o'clock. Call the "Colyum" down if you do not think him fine and thoroughly well versed with regard to every subject he tackles.

Even so, they have a hard time convincing Hub radio rajahs of their rare keyboard technique.

EX-GOVERNOR ALLEN ON UNION TRUST BOARD

Holds Numerous Other Directorships; Is a Trustee of B. U.

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Frank G. Allen, former Governor of Massachusetts, has been elected a director of the Union Trust Company of Boston. Other directorships held by the former Governor include the chairmanships of the board of directors of Winslow Brothers & Smith and J. K. Mosser Leather Corporation. Mr. Allen is also a member of the Executive Committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and a trustee of Boston University, Wellesley College and the Franklin Savings Bank. The Union Trust Company is headed by former Secretary of the Navy, Charles Francis Adams, who, on retiring from office, took over with several associates the business and quarters of the old Kidder Peabody Trust Company. The name of the institution was subsequently changed to the present title and larger quarters were taken at 24 Federal Street.

A large and influence-exerting investment counsellor located in Boston made a remarkable forecast to clients over a month ago. At that time suspension of purchases was suggested. As the counsellor saw it, the motor industry was due for a sharp letdown which would affect steel production and car loadings adversely. At the same time home construction was not viewed as a potent force in sustaining industrial activity. But the real point is that holdings of long stock were not liquidated. The reason: Inflation loomed too large for investors to be without a hedge.

* * *

Notes: When the above forecast was delivered one other factor was studied . . . The textile industry was considered to be facing at least a partial shutdown in order that the price schedules might be maintained . . . From where the writer sits that is calling the turn with almost uncanny accuracy . . . But we wish to place the emphasis on the insistence of a hedge against inflation . . . That has been preached here often . . . It is doubly impressive when good observers see a downtrend but dare not sacrifice protection against the whims of money jugglers.

* * *

The stock market, measured by the behavior of the dual averages, is in a danger zone. For the 30 industrials the critical low closing price is 90⅝. The 20 rails should not register a final price under 40⅛. While a break through by one index would be unsettling, it is to be remembered that both must break down under the prices noted if we are to be certain that a thoroughgoing test of the October lows is in prospect.

* * *

Earnings tell the real story of prosperity or depression. That is axiomatic. And it might be added that dividends in turn tell the real views of industrial and business management toward the future of earnings. From the Standard Statistics Company the writer learns that unfavorable dividend changes in May were the lowest since the beginning of the depression. For the first five months of this year favorable changes were 596 against 200 in the 1933 period.

* * *

Briefs: One other dividend figure is worth study . . . Unfavorable dividend changes in 1933 were 981 in the first five months while the same period this year found only 173 concerns reducing disbursements . . . Air Reduction is one big stock that does not behave as well as it might . . . In setting a new 1934 low at the weekend the issue created some uneasiness in certain speculative circles.

Thin Market Seen Attracting Good Brand of Buying

By WALL ST. SPECTATOR

Stocks are finding it easier to go down than up. Volume still is low.

The lows of the present decline are being given another test.

If they hold, the market will have a triple bottom to its credit. For the time being, however, no one but the chartists will care particularly . . . There is some talk of a pretty good brand of buying coming into the list. This could easily be accomplished with the present weakness, since the market is so thin that anyone who wanted a line of stocks would have to buy it on the way down.

U. S. FINANCING IS WATCHED

The Treasury's June 15 refinancing should bring some support to prices.

This has been usual in the past . . . The smart boys are watching their step here on wheat, and are inclined to sell on bulges. The market is considered top heavy . . . One of these days speculative profits from wheat will find its way into stocks . . . Current prices are expected to bring a heavy movement of corn and other grains from the farm. This should offset some of the ill effects of the drought.

The Socony Vacuum cut in par value to $15 is appropriate as it brings it in line with the market.

Substantial support orders are expected in General Motors and Chrysler not much under current levels . . . Put and call dealers in an effort to drum up business are trying to sell 90-day options against the usual 30-day arrangements. In some cases like U. S. Steel calls are fairly close to the market, around 5 points above present prices.

CIRCUS DAY IN LOWELL TODAY

Lowell, June 2—With its blaring bands and calliope, its wild beasts and its unusually splendid array of horses, its clowns and its sideshows, the circus was in town today.

Downie Bros.' show was seen and enjoyed by to near-capacity crowds, and the street parade, which took place at noon, attracted one of the old-time throngs. The children were in their element, and many a grownup reverted to the dim and distant past in his reaction to the familiar sights and sounds.

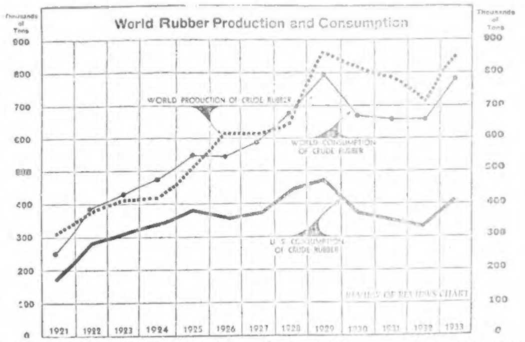
The aerial stunts, the equestrian features and the animal acts vied with each other in popularity at the big top, and the appearance of Jack Hoxie, hero of many a Western melodrama of the stage and screen, with his wonder horse, Dynamite, won the plaudits of the crowd. The costuming of the traditional pageant with which the programs opened was particularly brilliant, and the entire show was marked by its cleanliness and thrills.

ROWLEY FOLKS HURT IN AUTO

Haverhill, June 2—Two women and a man were injured last evening and taken to Gale Hospital, when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a pole on South Main street, near Ward Hill.

The injured are Mrs. Josephine Pillsbury, 47, of School street, Rowley, reported to be the operator of the car, Mrs. Alice Spaats, 21, and Chester Warden, 31, also of Rowley.

World Rubber Production



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE, Review of Reviews.

The accompanying chart shows the world production of crude rubber, its consumption, and the part played in the rubber picture by the United States. At the present time approximately one-half the total output of rubber is consumed in this country.

During recent years, particularly since the application of the Stevenson plan, the proportion of the total output consumed by the United States has tended to decline. This is due partly to a general world increase in rubber consumption, more rapid than that experienced in the United States, and also to the greater use of reclaimed rubber in this country.

In spite of the diminished importance of the United States as a preponderant market for the rubber producers, it nevertheless remains a vital factor and it is important that the rubber producers proceed warily in their efforts to raise prices. The United States has always been anti-monopoly minded, and this aversion to control expresses itself much more forcibly against a foreign than a domestic combination.

One weakness in the rubber picture may be noted in the gap between consumption and production. This gap first appeared in a serious way during 1925. Consumption then kept up with output but was again exceeded by it in 1929. Since then there have been five years in which crude rubber output exceeded consumption.

During these years excess production amounted to 435,000 tons, equal to more than seven months' consumption by the world. This situation, of course, will be helped to some extent by a revival in consumption, but it nevertheless means that the consumer is protected for the time being at least against any undue exploitation by the rubber producers.

BOSTON STOCKS MOVE LOWER

Share prices were worked lower in today's short session of trading on the Boston Stock Exchange. Rail issues were soft with Atchison and Pennsylvania showing fractional recessions. Boston & Maine prior preferred showed a loss of more than a point.

New England Telephone dropped more than a point and American Telephone was down a major fraction. Edison Electric dipped fractionally. Eastern Gas & Fuel issues were easy with the preferred and prior preferred recording slight recessions.

Hygrade Sylvania advanced a point. Stone & Webster was a shade higher. United Shoe held steady around its previous closing level.

Coal Supply for Haverhill

Haverhill, June 2—Alderman Thomas J. Conlon, public property commissioner, has been advised by Mayor George E. Dalrymple to buy hard coal at $11.25 a ton for the city from members of the Haverhill Coal Dealers Exchange c. o. d.

The city's contract with the exchange having expired Thursday, representatives of the dealers informed the municipal council that it would sell coal to the city at the price being charged the public, or $11.25 a ton. The city under the contract had been paying $12.45 a ton.

Protest over the price the coal dealers had been charging the city was made by Alderman James M. Costello, health and charities commissioner.

Lawrence Probes Buying of Gold

Lawrence, June 2—With one man awaiting trial on a charge of receiving stolen property in connection with the old gold buying business, police today began a checkup on the complaints of several persons who have been approached by a travelling gold buyer.

Police have an accurate description of the travelling man who has visited many local homes.

New River Co. to Pay on Preferred

New River Co., producer of low-volatile or "smokeless" bituminous coal, declared a dividend of $1.50 per share on account of accumulations on preferred stock, payable June 15 to stock of record June 6. This is the first preferred dividend since one of like amount paid on Nov. 2, 1931.

Lambert Co. to Pay Usual Dividends

New York, June 2 (AP)—Directors of the Lambert Co. declared the usual quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the common stock; payable July 2 to stock of record, June 18.

Chevrolet Motor Reduces Prices

New York, June 2—Chevrolet Motor announced price reductions on all models of passenger cars and trucks ranging from $25 to $50. New base price is now $465.

Public Is Entering Grain Market

By International News Service

New York, June 2—The public has now come into the grain market for the first time in months, which is the traditional signal that tops for the movement have been established, according to veteran traders.

While the seriousness of the drouth cannot be minimized, extreme caution is being urged in view of the fact wheat prices have risen 27 cents from their lows on April 19. Oats are up 14 cents, corn 13 and rye more than 12.

That a substantail portion of the speculative community has switched from the stock market into the grain pit this week is evidenced by the fact that turnover in wheat is now running between 57,000,000 and 75,000,000 bushels daily compared with 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 a month ago.

On the week, wheat prices soared 10½ cents net to hit a peak of $1.07⅞ a bushel, crossing the dollar mark for the first time since last August.

Cotton, rubber and coffee were the only other leading staples to close higher on the week.

The sudden reversal of trend in cotton with a run-up of $2 a bale enabled that commodity to show a net gain of 1.75 on the week. This abrupt rally was predicated on reports that to avert the threatened strike of 400,000 textile workers, the Administration would make use of its powers under the Smith bill to appropriate $150,000,000 to buy cotton and convert it into cloth for relief purposes. This would tend to keep the mills busy during the summer and so avert necessity for 25 per cent curtailment in production.

The belated announcement of the Cuban sugar quotas failed to stimulate the market for that staple and prices were off 1 to 3 points on the week.

The recovery of 60 points in rubber prices followed the announcement that the Dutch East Indies had imposed a 5-cent tax on exports.

Prospects for a smaller than anticipated coffee crop in Brazil coupled with indications of a strict enforcement of the crop destruction program produced a rise of 12 to 15 points in Rio contracts and of 3 to 5 in Santos.

Reflecting drouth conditions, butter futures have soared to new highs for the year in the heaviest trading on record.

Silver futures rose from 15 to 30 points on the week, copper 22 to 28, cocoa 15 to 19, and hides 20 to 35 while silk broke 3½ to 4½ cents a pound.

2 PASTORS TALK TO GRADUATES

Lowell, June 2—Two local institutions will have baccalaureate services in different Lowell churches tomorrow. The graduating class of Rogers Hall girls' school will attend St. Anne's Episcopal Church and Lowell Textile Institute seniors the First United Baptist Church.

Rev. Francis E. Webster, rector of Christ Church, Boston, and secretary of the Episcopal Diocesan convention, will deliver the sermon at St. Anne's. Rev. Mr. Webster's wide experience makes him a popular baccalaureate speaker.

The pastor, Rev. Ambrose M. Bailey, D. D., will conduct the service at the First United Baptist. His sermon, which will deal with higher education, will be preceded by an academic procession in which the members of the faculty and the seniors at the institute will participate.

Jewett Denies Ring Rules Middlesex

Lowell, June 2—Victor F. Jewett, a member of the Middlesex County commission, addressed members of the Lowell District Women's Republican Club in the home of Mrs. Bowden Pillsbury, 257 Nesmith street, yesterday. Jewett vehemently denied the existence of a "county ring" in this county, declaring that the commission form of government was by far the better for the taxpayers of the state. He also urged strong support of the Republican party and asked that the women use their influence in the coming elections. At an election of officers, Mrs. Pillsbury was chosen to head the club for the fourth consecutive year.

Crude Rubber Lower

New York, June 2 (AP)—Crude rubber futures were barely steady, 5 to 13 lower. July, 12.85b; September, 13.23-25; October, 13.30b; December, 13.52-60.

MAYOR TO FIGHT FOR ZONING

Newburyport, June 2—Newburyport city council members will be urged to take some action on forming a zoning ordinance for the city at their regular meeting on Monday evening, according to plans made here by the Historical Society of Old Newbury.

On three occasions Mayor Morrill has requested councillors to initiate proper zoning action, he reveals, but the council has ignored his suggestion.

He believes that there is need of public pressure to force the council to appoint a committee immediately to consider a zoning ordinance. He urges that other organizations join the historical society in the zoning movement.

May Sets Record In Fire Alarms

Newburyport, June 2—Although during January, February and March the fire department did not have a bell alarm, in May there were 11 alarms, 9 of which came during the night of May 18, when the $1,000,000 Merrimac street blaze took place. The nine alarms in a period of four hours were by far the greatest number the firemen ever had in such a short time.

CASH VIEWED AS HOLDING MAIN ATTRACTION

Quiet Retreat From Securities Seen Taking Place

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER

(Copyright, 1934, By Universal Service, Inc.)

New York, June 2—Whatever the intentions of the politicians may have been, financiers and investors have interpreted some of the recent moves at Washington as deflationary.

Accordingly, there has been a quiet retreat from securities to cash. Evidently the new trend toward "sound money" in the administration has made cash seem relatively more attractive than it did in the earlier months when devaluation was a prospect rather than a reality.

John Maynard Keynes, British economist, who has been visiting here, has expressed the opinion that the basic economic statistics in the United States do not merit the prevailing pessimism.

Ward Melville, president of the Melville Shoe Company, in chatting with me, said that the pessimism was ascribable to the unwarranted tendency to compare present conditions with those of 1928-29 instead of with such normal years as 1925-26.

Mr. Melville said that the retail sales in his own chain of stores was a good barometer of the industrial trend, and that thus far there had been no recession. Mr. Melville said that sales have been running 42 per cent ahead of a year ago, but that the percentage of improvement would now fall because of comparisons with a better record after the early months of 1933. Mr. Melville said that his company was budgeting at least a 10 per cent improvement in sales for the fall period.

Incidentally, as one of the younger business leaders, Mr. Melville is in sympathy with many objectives of the "New Deal". He thinks it will be healthy to put a larger portion of the national income in wages, especially in the lower brackets.

In the matter of business confidence, unquestionably the matter of labor unrest is an important factor. In the steel, automobile and public utilities industries, there seems a disposition on the part of management to maintain their freedom.

3 INJURED IN AN ANDOVER CRASH

North Andover, June 2—Three persons, including a woman, narrowly escaped death at Marblehead and Middlesex streets last night, when the automobile in which they were riding was struck and overturned by another car.

William Wilson, 26, of Water street was injured when thrown from the capsized car. He was taken to a Lawrence hospital, where he is under observation.

Philip J. Donnelley, 40, also of Water street, driver of the overturned car, and his wife, Mrs. Anna Donnelly, were pinned beneath the car, but escaped with bruises and cuts.

Police are investigating the accident today. They report that Donnelly's car was struck by a car operated by Salvatore DeRosa of 326 Meridian street, East Boston.

Kidder, Peabody to Concentrate on Securities

By Associated Press

New York, June 2 (AP)—Kidder, Peabody & Co., one of the country's oldest financial firms, will give up its deposit banking business and concentrate on the securities business after June 16, the date specified in the Banking Act of 1933 for the separation of deposit and securities functions, it was stated authoritatively today.

The company will continue to act as fiscal agent and as corporate trustee, it was said, and to underwrite securities and maintain a brokerage business. Customers will not be able to draw checks against balances carried with the firm, however.

The firm's deposit business has been of comporatively minor importance in relation to other functions of the company, it was said, and has not been as large proportionately as in some other firms of the same type.

Kidder, Peabody & Co. was founded more than 67 years ago, making its start in Boston. On Jan. 1, 1932, it was merged with Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., and last year some of the sales force of the Chase, Harris, Forbes organization came into the company. The firm has two offices here and several in Boston and neighboring New England cities.

In past years before the securities underwriting business dried up Kidder, Peabody & Co. was active in participating in new issues for a number of the largest American corporations.

It was reported in Wall Street that the separation of the Guaranty Co. of New York from the Guaranty Trust Co. would be discussed by directors on June 6, and that plans would be announced immediately afterwards.

Fox Film Co. Has Large Program

Fox Film Corp. for the season 1934-35 contemplates production of 58 feature films, the largest number in the company's history and an increase of four over the season now closing. In addition there will be released 112 short subjects and 104 issues of the Fox Movietone News.

Many of the features will be based on outstanding novels and plays and will also include eleven musical productions.

Simms Petroleum Dividend Likely

New York, June 2—When directors of Simms Petroleum Co. meet in July a dividend on the 461,698 outstanding shares of $10 per capital stock will in all probability be declared. On February 1 this year the company paid a 25-cent dividend. This was the first dividend paid since January, 1933, when the company made a similar distribution.

Associated Gas Output Increased

New York, June 2—For week ended May 26 net electric output of Associated Gas & Electric Co. System totaled 56,134,932 k. w. h. an increase of 4.9 per cent over the same week in 1933. Gas output was 327,708,500 cubic feet, an increase of 8.9 per cent.

Boston Gas Co. Has Output Decrease

Boston Consolidated Gas Co. reports output for May, 1934, of 985,750,000 cubic feet, a decrease of 1.9 per cent compared with May, 1933.

COTTON FACTS ARE REVEALED BY HANEY

Code Increased Cost of Production in Big Mills

By LEWIS HANEY,
Professor of Economics, New York University.

New York, June 2—The most interesting and significant facts are these: (1) The cotton code authorities are about to force a 25 per cent curtailment in mill production for three months; (2) The cotton textile workers' union is asking 400,000 laborers to strike against any reduction in pay on account of the proposed curtailment.

Lewis Haney

These facts present a sad picture of two New Deal chickens coming home to roost. One chicken is the bird of "price fixing;" the other is the bird of "creating purchasing power" by high wages.

Incidentally, the bird of "boosting farm prices by government credit" is also in the picture.

The cotton textile code greatly increased the cost of producing cotton cloth. It raised wages and shortened hours. Furthermore, the processing tax on the manufacture of cotton has added millions of dollars to the cost of putting cloth on the market.

All this has meant an increase in prices charged to consumers, a result that has been intensified by the price boosting fostered by the "codes" all along the line.

Two results were inevitable, and were pointed out long ago in this column and elsewhere. (It needed no "experimental approach" to find them out.) First, production has been encouraged by high prices. Second, consumption has been discouraged by high prices.

These two results mean "overproduction."

Like an ostrich sticking its head in the sand, the textile people have tried to conceal the fact that stocks of goods have been accumulating. They did as the copper producers and others have done, and quit publishing statistics. But the unsold stocks accumulated just the same.

Now they want to curtail production. But at the same time they want to keep their prices up! Of course, evasions will be encouraged, and even if they succeed in reducing supplies, the same situation will again develop in time. It is ever so with price fixing.

As to labor, we find the united textile workers imbued with the new deal spirit. Doubtless they are saying to the code authority:

"You want to create purchasing power by paying more wages; now go ahead and do it. How can you expect us to buy shirts if you don't hand us out money?"

Or they may say, "We have a right to work."

If they are honestly facing the facts, they will just say, "we want our dole." That is what it comes to when we try to pay more wages for making things which cannot be sold at a profit.

Mill hands cannot buy all the cloth they weave. The goods must be sold to other consumers. And if the price is too high, the consumers will not buy, which leads to overproduction.

Then wages must be reduced, simply because they are not earned.

There is only one way out of such conditions, and that is to follow the law of supply and demand. First provide a low, but decent minimum wage, and enforce fair rules for competition. Then let raw cotton and cotton goods sell for what they will bring in free markets. Let the least efficient mills fail and be forced to shut down permanently.

Auto-Lite Co. to Act on Preferred

Toledo, June 2—Electric Auto-Lite Co. will set a date early next week for action on the preferred dividend.

Whitney Promises to Co-operate on Bill

By International News Service

New York, June 2—The New York Stock Exchange will "do everything in its power to co-operate" with the Federal commission which will administer the law to control stock exchanges.

Richard Whitney, president of the New York exchange, made that promise in a public statement today.

The Whitney statement follows:

"The National Securities Exchange Act of 1934, which was passed by Congress differs in many important respects from the original Fletcher-Rayburn bill. The New York Stock Exchange opposed the original bill because it contained rigid and inflexible provisions which would have proved unworkable in practice.

"Many of these objectionable features have been eliminated, and the present act creates a new administrative commission of five persons to be appointed by the President and gives this commission broad powers to protect investors and prevent unfair practices in the security markets of the country.

"The exchange has always advocated these fundamental provisions that may prove impracticable. I am truly hopeful that if wisely and judiciously administered the act will be a constructive measure.

"For these reasons, and because national recovery and the revival of business are of paramount importance, the Stock Exchange intends to do everything in its power to co-operate with the commission in the administration of the act."

STOCK PRICES RE MIXED AT CLOSING

New York, June 2—Trend of leading shares was mixed at the close of today's short session of trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The list encountered a dribble of liquidation earlier in the session but steadied somewhat near the finish.

The grain markets were again the scenes of wild trading wheat, corn and other grains after opening a cent a bushel higher turned down sharply in sympathy with Winnipeg where prices broke 3 cents a bushel and also on reports of general showers over the belt. The cotton market, though, maintained a firm tone to get up about 75 cents a bale over yesterday's close.

Steel shares were again the principal targets for the sellers today. United States Steel, Bethlehem, American Rolling Mills and others went through to new lows for the year on a moderate turnover before rallying.

General Motors was another feature of weakness opening fractionally lower and then extending the loss to about a point where it was down to the year's low. Chrysler, Auburn and the lower-priced motor shares were heavy.

Selling of New York Central which dropped to within a fraction of its year's low unsettled the rest of the carrier shares. Atchison, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific and the lower-priced issues suffered fractional losses.

Farm equipments were subjected to further selling. Deere, Case and International Harvester gave ground without any great show of resistance.

In the utility division American Telephone, and Consolidated Gas declined on a small turnover. This apparently indicated that the decline was due more to a general lack of buyer interest than to any agressive selling.

Oils continued to mark time, while mail order and merchandising shares worked lower. Aviations, mining and specialty stocks drifted lower along with the rest of the market.

Moderately lower prices ruled in the first hour with volume higher than in previous sessions of the week. Losses in leaders were largely confined to a point range. First National Stores was soft, sagging 2 points. U. S. Steel hit a new low on a fractional recession.

Air Reduction, Commercial Alcohol, Atchison, Central Aguirre and Congoleum were down a point or more. Spieger May Stern was down around 2 points. Seaboard Oil dropped more than a point and Erie was slightly more than a point lower.

Recessions of moderate proportion were recorded by American Car. Continental Can, du Pont, Deere & Co., Liquid Carbonic and New York Central, Homestake Mining moved against the general trend, advancing a point.

Sales to 11 a. m. approximated 240,000 shares.

While labor struggles and crop damage reports held much of the attention of the financial district, indications of a little better feeling toward the new exchange control law, passed yesterday by Congress, were seen in the statement of Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, that the organization "intends to do everything in its power to co-operate with the commission in the administration of the act."

Although the bill still contains provisions that the Stock Exchange head fears may prove impracticable, he hoped that "If wisely and judiciously administered the act will be a constructive measure."

As a result of the Memorial Day holiday, automobile production for the week ended today showed a sharp decline from the preceding period and the upward trend of new passenger car sales, of last week, says Cram's review, was not maintained.

Six of the larger companies operated only during the first two days of the week and output was estimated at 54,185 units against 76,281 in the previous week. The total, though, was 7496 units above that of the corresponding week of last year.

The dollar displayed a fairly steady tone in foreign exchange dealings. The British pound was off ⅛ of a cent at $5.06⅛ and the French franc was up .00¼ of a cent at 6.58¾ cents.

PROFIT SEEN IN FERTILIZER

Washington, June 2—At present prices, according to a survey by the National Fertilizer Association, fertilizer manufacturers expect to make a profit of about $1 a ton of average fertilizer, but interest on investment is not included in the cost of production.

A substantial increase in manufacturing costs is the principal cause of the increase in fertilizer prices this spring, states the survey. In common with prices of other commodities, fertilizer prices have advanced considerably during the past year.

The survey shows that this increase is due largely to the increased cost of materials, bags and labor. Fertilizer prices were so low last year that practically all manufacturers lost heavily and the published statements of a number of fertilizer companies confirm this fact.

Consumption of Sugar Is Lower

New York, June 2—Sugar consumption in the United states during April amounted to 413,773 long tons, raw sugar value, against 516,389 in the same month last year, it is estimated by B. W. Dyer & Co., sugarbrokers. For the first four months of the year consumption is placed at 1,707,716 tons against 1,790,032 in the corresponding period of 1933.

50 P. C. of Denver Bonds Deposited

New York, June 2—Notwithstanding the relatively short time the company has been working on the plan of deferment for interest on its general mortgage 5 per cent bonds, due Aug. 1, 1955, holders of more than 50 per cent of the bonds have already presented their coupons for stamping, and have received the cash payment to which entitled under the plan, T. M. Schumacher, chairman of the executive committee of the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad, announced.

Curb Ruling on "W. I." Trading

New York, June 2—The New York Curb Exchange has made no further ruling on "when issued" trading in United Aircraft & Transport Corp., or Armour & Co. of Illinois issues, which were suspended from dealings Thursday because of a Federal Trade Commission ruling. It is understood the Exchange's legal department is considering the matter, though Curb officials were unable to predict whether any new ruling will be made.

Blue Sky Rulings Given

Securities division of the Department of Public Utilities has barred from sale in Massachusetts the following securities: New York Athletic Club of New York City; National Press Building Corp. (Del.), and Trustee Food Shares "A" (National Food Shares Corp., N. Y., depositor)..

Jewel Tea Co. Sales Gain

New York, June 2—Jewel Tea Co. reports its sales for the four weeks ended May 19, totaled $1,265,773 against $1,034,299 for the like period last year. The average number of units in operation was 1520 in 1934 and 1434 in 1933.

Eighteen Favorable Dividends

New York, June 2—There were 18 favorable dividend changes during the week against 20 in the previous week, according to Standard Statistics Co. Unfavorable changes numbered 4 as compared with 3 the week before.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Josephthal & Co.—Volume of trading was slightly heavier than in the two previous sessions and the market closed around the lows of the day. This leads us to feel that another test of the year's lows is in prospect in the near future.

Hornblower & Weeks—Those who have not already done so on our previous advices should place accounts in a position to withstand a possible move into new ground below the early May resistance points, inasmuch as there is nothing in the way of support indicated between that level and the lows of last October.

Soucy, Swartsweiter & Co.—While we do not believe that any decline from here will assume major proportions, persisting through the summer, we see no reason to be particularly optimistic for the next few weeks.

Livingston & Co.—With the exception of the crop failure effect we have felt the low prices of May 14 pretty well discounted the unfavorable factors in the situation. It may be that stocks can again hold at about the current level. If not, an unfavorable technical indication would be given and the sagging movement in prices would likely be continued a time longer.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW
National Director

By LIEUTENANT L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

Greetings, Junior Birdmen! Model Plane Derby Day for members of the Boston American-Boston Sunday Advertiser wing of the Junior Birdmen has been set for Saturday, July 7. On that same day there will be gala model plane activity in all of our 18 wing cities.

The Boston American wing is going to make this one of the biggest events in the history of local model airplane activities with a tremendous outdoor meet. We will announce the location of the meet just as soon as the site is definitely chosen.

Creighton Willcutt

The official committee for the event consists of Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield, honorary chairman; William P. Long, head of the Boston park system, honorary vice-chairman; Carl Dreyfus, publisher, chairman; and Edward W. Herne, state secretary, Y. M. C. A.; O. A. Kitterman, executive, Boston District, Boy Scouts; Walter E. Myers, president, Advertising Club of Boston; A. L. Edson, superintendent, Boston Municipal Airport; Paul Collins, president, National Airways and Crocker Snow, president Ames Skyways, Inc.

Any member of the Boston wing may enter this derby in competition for the many fine awards to be announced in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

We will also announce in the Sunday Advertiser the name of the national winner of the Junior Birdmen motto contest and the winning motto which has been selected as the national slogan for this organization.

Today we will give you the general scope and plan for the great outdoor Junior Birdmen model plane race.

To enter the competition all you have to do is write to the Junior Birdmen, 100 Summer ,st., Boston, Mass., and ask for a model plane derby blank and the official book of contest rules. If you are NOT a member of the Junior Birdmen and want to enter this competition, fill out the membership application blank adjoining this column and send it in with a dime for your wings. The derby entry blank and the contest rules will be forwarded only to those boys and girls who are Junior Birdmen.

You can belong to all other junior aviation organizations and still take part in this competition by joining the Junior Birdmen.

The rule book has been published at considerable expense. So please do not write for the entry blank and the book unless you really intend to enter the derby.

As soon as you receive your entry blank, fill it out and return it to Junior Birdmen headquarters and you will be registered as a contestant.

Start Building Models Immediately

After you have sent in your entry blank, it is time to look through the book of rules and start building your models. You have over one month to construct them—plenty of time even for beginners!

The book of rules which will be sent you, free, contains eight pages of vital information, rules, regulations and details covering the procedure of the derby and the specifications for models in each event, including size, weight, etc.

These new official Junior Birdmen national outdoor model contest rules are the finest ever prepared for model builders and have already been praised by many junior aeronautical experts.

Every boy and girl entering the Junior Birdmen model plane derby on Saturday, July 7, must adhere strictly to all the rules published in the official book. All measures and specifications of models must be exact.

Three Events Will Be Held

Three outdoor events will be conducted. An event for gliders, similar to one built by many members from instructions published in this column during the week, but larger in proportion. A single propelled stick model event, and a twin propelled stick model event.

A derby for the more advanced cabin (fuselage) models and autogyro craft will be conducted later in the summer. By next year you will probably all be building these, as well as the flying replica planes.

National Contest Set for Washington

The winner of each wing city meet, who will be recognized as the 1934 wing model plane champion, will be sent to the national Junior Birdmen all-American model plane championship contest to be held at Fort Meyer (near Washington, D. C.) on Saturday, July 28. Full expenses of all eligible contestants to the national contest will be paid by the Junior Birdmen. It will be the greatest model plane contest ever held anywhere, having but the 18 wing city champions as contestants to vie for the United States national model plane championship.

What a meet, and wait until you read in tomorrow's column about the fine awards for the local model plane derby winners and the dandy prizes for the winners.

IT sure pays to be a member of the Junior Birdmen!

Send for Rules And Blanks Now

You can get all of this information beforehand, however, in the official book of rules which will be sent free to any Junior Birdmen. Just drop a penny postcard—or a letter if you prefer. Address it to Junior Birdmen, 100 Summer street Boston, Mass., and say you want to enter the Junior Birdmen model plane derby on July 7 and would like to have an entry blank and book of rules. That's all there is to it, but don't forget to give your full name, address and your membership number.

The Junior Birdman whose picture is printed today is Creighton Willcutt, 10, of 44 Melrose st., Boston. Creighton was the first member to respond to a request for pictures, paintings and models to help decorate the walls of Junior Birdmen headquarters at 100 Summer street. He brought in a picture of Lindbergh's Lockheed-Sirius. His chum, George Christo, 11, of 90 Village street, Boston brought in a painting of a plane diving at a pilot dropping in his parachute. Anthony Fumia, 14, of 111 Pleasant street, South Hanson Mass., donated a small, orange and gray model. If any other Junior Birdmen have attractive paintings or models to exhibit at our office, we'll be glad to get them.

Happy Landings!

JEWISH VETS MEET HERE

The Massachusetts Department of the Jewish War Veterans and Ladies Auxiliary will convene at the Hotel Statler today and tomorrow.

Following the registration, delegates tonight will dance. Governor Joseph B. Ely, Lieutenant-Governor Gaspar G. Bacon, Rear Admiral H. H. Hough, and Major General Fox Connor have been invited. A banquet and concert tomorrow evening will close the convention.

Dewing to Speak at Police Rites

District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing of Norfolk and Plymouth counties, prosecutor for the government in its cases against the Millen brothers and Abe Faber in Dedham superior court, will speak at the memorial services of the Milton police department tomorrow afternoon in Milton Cemetery.

Listen World!

By Elsie Robinson

Man on the Flying Trapeze

I've a bunch of records. When I'm blue, I play 'em. Want to know what record I play when I'm bluest of all? Want to know the record that yanks me back again, when I'm completely sunk—puts a backbone in me, when I'm soggy as an old bath sponge — sets me laughing, sets me singing, sets me hitting the highway again on all sixteen? Give you three guesses what it is!

Elsie Robinson

Something grand and solemn, from Wagner or Beethoven?

Something bright and lilty, from Sullivan or Mozart?

Something soft and sobby, from the days of the Gibson Girls—"Love's Old Sweet Song" or "Silver Threads Among the Gold?"

No, you're wrong. It's none of these. Nothing gorgeous—nothing classy—nary a heart throb—not even refined.

The tune that gets me going again, when I've taken to eating worms, is just that buoyant, lowbrow blurt:

"THE MAN ON THE FLYING TRAPEZE!"

Know that boy? Who doesn't!

"He could fly through the air with the greatest of ease" . .

It wasn't safe—flying through the air. It was probably not always convenient.

BUT HE TOOK A CHANCE, WHILE THE OTHER FELLOW WAS THINKING ABOUT IT—AND, AS A CONSEQUENCE, HE LANDED ALL THE PRIZES.

Not an arty song—nor a refined one—nor, maybe, particularly moral. And yet I'm thinking there's a great lesson in it for all of us who are wondering how to tackle life in these topsy-turvy days.

Where are the road maps and what are the rules for life today? There aren't any. But there's one technique you can bet on! It won't be safe. It won't be comfortable. It will land you in many a mess—and many a time leave you lonely, and wishing you hadn't started it. But, you'll risk it, it will keep you young and eager, warm and free, envied and followed.

And what's that technique?

Just the brave old, gay old technique of TAKING CHANCES! BEING MOBILE. FACING THINGS AS THEY COME, AND FLOWING WITH THEM, INSTEAD OF FLOPPING!

MAKING A TRAPEZE—INSTEAD OF A TRAP—OUT OF LIFE!

"He could fly through the air with the greatest of ease."

And the whole world followed!

Well—what's holding YOU?

TOURJEE BIRTH OBSERVED

Exercises commemorating the 100th anniversary of the birth of Eben Tourjee, founder of the New England Conservatory of Music, were held in Jordan Hall last evening.

Introduced by Wallace Goodrich, director, Charles Dennee, president of the Conservatory Alumni Association, spoke on Tourjee's personality and the early history of the conservatory.

The musical program, given by the choral class, Conservatory Choral Club, and Conservatory Orchestra under the direction of Mr. Goodrich, included favorite works of Tourjee—Nicolai's Church Festival Overture on the choral, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," an excerpt from Mendelssohn's "Elijah," and Beethoven's fifth symphony.

Joan Crawford Is True Acting Star in "Sadie McKee"

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

By all the adult audience measures "Sadie McKee," new feature at Loew's State, is a triumphant success. For Joan Crawford it provides a peak performance of acting; where the script offers, she does wear smart clothes very smartly indeed; but best of all is the revelation of herself as a lady of emotional power. It is but proper to state that this seems to be another in the recent M-G-M string of cinematic pearls—superior photoplays, all of them.

At this point this reviewer departs from his usual routine to go personal. Excellent is the star, but Miss Crawford excels in yet another, and a rarer field. For it is too often the habit of celebrity to "hog" the stage. The notable exception is Marion Davies, who in each and every picture of hers has permitted others a chance in the cinema's sun. In "Sadie McKee" Miss Crawford gives a grand example of the same sort of fair play. It's really an index to personality and character; so you may write down Miss Crawford as being worthy of admiration.

Joan Crawford

Because of this, and because of Clarence Brown's brilliant direction, "Sadie McKee" is something of a field day in audience enjoyment. Here you have roles gleaming in the supporting cast; here you see that remarkably versatile actor, Edward Arnold, turning in the finest full-length portrait of a dipsomaniac that I can recall in all my years as a screen fan.

For once this writer refrains from giving a synopsis of the story. The reason is, that in this instance no skeleton sketch can convey any idea of how the actor-director partnership whips up such a frenzy of reality out of none-too-new a plot. Suffice it to say, that the theme is to those of the Cinderella flavor, with hokum touches, and yet so artistically handled that at no point is there less than tense attention and interest.

You may call this a "love quadrangle." For there are four points. To one woman, there are three men—her childhood sweetheart who interweaves her career and wins her at the finish; a youth with whom she flees the home town and who leaves her waiting in the marriage bureau; and the millionaire who loves her through most of the footage.

From start to finish Miss Crawford acts with restraint, and with utter sincerity. There are smiles, and there are moments when you feel the clutch in the throat. It was brave of her to surround herself with a skilled personnel; she has to match wits with the most expert. But she acts up to, and with them; and strikingly grand though Arnold's playing be, Miss Crawford steps with him all the way.

Franchot Tone is the victor in this love story, and he is entirely satisfactory at one of the pivotal points in the plot. The other chief role is in the hands of Gene Raymond, effective in a mostly unsympathetic part.

Of others, there is Esther Ralston, a re-creation—not the mere "American Venus" any longer, but developed into the finished artist.

Director Brown is as much a star as any of the players; one of the most expert in Hollywood, he trots his tempo fast—save only at the beginning. Here the pace is slow—necessarily so, to tide over a ticklish moral situation.

"Sadie McKee" entertained this department royally.

Wanted—Rooms to Rent

. . . Mrs. A. Turley, of Jamaica Plain, inserted the following ad in the Boston American. She immediately rented her room, and then ran another ad for a second room with equally good results. Now she is sorry that she hasn't a dozen more rooms to rent because she has found such a splendid medium for her rental advertising.

JAMAICA PLAIN — Heated, front room, hskpg.; tile bath, shower. $4. End. 6788.

Results are what count every time. Because the Classified Columns of the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser produce such gratifying results for their advertisers these papers are able to say:

Progress Is The Proof of Merit
